MOVE BEGINS NEXT MONTH

ALLIES SHOW IRRITATION

Briand Said to Have Won Stresemann to Evacuation Not Earlier Than March.

APPEAL TO M'DONALD LIKELY

French Premier Will Thresh Out Whole Situation With Him at Meeting in Geneva.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 19.—The British Government has now definitely decided to begin the withdrawal of its 6,000 troops from occupied German territory next month and to complete the operation as soon as practicable, possibly by the end of the year. The decision stands whether the Young plan comes into effect next month, next year or never.

This, of course, brings yet another clash between London and Paris, since the French do not intend to start evacuation until the Young plan has gone into effect and, indeed, it would be very difficult for any French Government to take a different position. Whether the British move will have the effect of pleasing the Germans and making trouble between Berlin and Paris may have been considered, since any government would consider the political effects of such action.

Naturally, this decision by the British and their action in holding up the Young plan is irritating the other former allies, especially the French. Premier Briand has been conducting painful negotiations with Dr. Stresemann, who, as the English know, ardently desires to take back to Berlin with him a definite evacuation arrangement. He and M. Briand are believed to be in agreement on complete evacuation by March, if the Young plan comes into effect next month, and not even Dr. Stresemann expects the French to evacuate without the Young plan in force.

Ends Compromise Plan.

When, several days ago, the British made it plain that Prime Minister MacDonald wished to make a dramatic announcement in Europe that the English troops were on the move home, M. Briand suggested that the Second Zone be evacuated by both countries, starting next month, even if the Young plan was not in effect, and that the Third Zone be a subject of agreement after the Young plan was ratified. The new decision by the British to withdraw all troops with or without the Young plan naturally ends the prospect of this compromise.

Naturally, if the Young plan could have come into effect on Sept. 1, which it could have done were it not for the British opposition, the evacuation problem would have been easy, since every one decided that evacuation was a natural consequence of the new reparations plan. But now that it promises to take at least two months of struggle, through the British objections to the Young plan, it is obvious that the British decision to evacuate alone complicates matters.

Certainly the new development does not purify the already poisoned atmosphere at The Hague conference, which was called to liquidate the war and bring brotherly love to Europe. Although this ill-fated conference is to adjourn, to be resumed after the League Assembly session, the prospect it faces is not bright.

The French and other delegations are firm in their belief that if Philip Snowden, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, is met on his demand for 48,000,000 marks (about $11,000,000) more out of the reparations than is allotted to England by the Young plan, he will straightway make new attacks on the provisions of the experts' scheme.

Would Trim Its Powers.

It is known that he intends to attack the plans for the international bank. He does not like the broad powers given to the institution which its authors think will become important in world finance. Mr. Snowden would trim it considerably, having its functions rather limited to the handling of reparations pay-

Five Men Drown Testing Home-Made Motor Boat

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 19.—Five men were drowned today when a home-made motor boat tipped over in making a sharp turn in Lake Mendota.

The boat was made by Leslie E. Davidson, one of the owners of the Wisconsin Truck Equipment Company of Madison. It was equipped with an automobile motor and Mr. Davidson was giving his friends a ride when the accident happened. He was among those drowned.

The boat turned over about a quarter mile from Spring Harbor and in the sight of many cottage residents along shore. Weighted with its heavy motor, it sank almost immediately. The occupants were seen struggling in the water but all sank before other boats could reach them.

The tragedy occurred during the rest period of the University Life-Savers' Station, the lapse between the closing of Summer school and the start of the regular session. The life-saving boat was called and reached the scene, but discovered that it had left its equipment behind and returned to the boathouse.

CHINESE RUSH TROOPS IN 6 LINES TO BORDER

Army Will Concentrate on All Railways Under Command of Chang Hsueh-liang.

SOVIET DISPATCHES A NOTE

Warns White Russians Must Be Disarmed and Raids on Reds Prevented.

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 19.—An indication that Manchuria fears formal warfare with Russia despite Nanking's persistent declarations that the Nationalist Government is certain of a peaceful solution, was given today when Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, war lord and Governor of Manchuria, appealed to Nanking to send government troops to protect the frontiers of the distant provinces of Sinkiang, Charhar and Suiyuan.

Reports from Mukden confirm the stories of the fighting near Manchuli on Friday and Saturday, listing more than forty Chinese killed and more than 300 wounded.

It is claimed that two Russian advances were repulsed.

The bulk of the troops from Mukden are moving northward on six routes to reinforce the troops along the Kirin and Heilungkiang borders.

Soviet Troops Take Town.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUKDEN, Aug. 19.—Another Soviet raid is reported at Tungningshsien, near Suifenho. The raiders attacked the town on Saturday night, occupied it on Sunday and evacuated it on the appearance of Chinese reinforcements this morning.

The raids were made for foodstuffs, which were collected and carried off.

The Soviet force operating at Dalainor, near Manchuli, is also reported withdrawn. Manchuli is reported quiet.

General Ho Chen-chun of the General Staff of President Chiang Kai-shek today arranged with Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang that all Nationalist troops south of the Great Wall should be concentrated on the Peking, Mukden and Tientsin-Pukow railways, coming under Marshal Hsueh-liang's orders in the event of development of hostilities.

May Reopen Negotiations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HARBIN, Aug. 19.—Soviet raids on frontier towns in the last three days culminated in the occupation of Sanchagou, thirty miles south of Pogranichnaya.

Yesterday morning General Liu, representing the Nanking Government, with seven delegates from three provinces in Manchuria, arrived at Manchuli. There is a prospect that the negotiations will be reopened.

Soviet Warns China.

MOSCOW, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Soviet Government, in a note sent through the German Embassy here, today warned the Chinese Government at Nanking and Mukden that they must disarm bands of White Russians and prevent Chinese troops from making further alleged attacks on Soviet territory.

The note enumerated a series of raids said to have been made by the White Russians and Chinese, accom-

Fire Sweeps Liner Paris at Dock in Havre; 1,000 Americans Planned to Sail on Her Today

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVRE, France, Aug. 19.—Fire of undetermined origin started in the second-class section of the Paris of the French Line while the liner was tied up at her company's pier here this evening.

The Paris was scheduled to leave for New York tomorrow and the French Line officials could make no announcement as to what will be done with more than a thousand Americans who have booked passage on the Paris and who have made all plans to leave Paris on the boat train at 9:30 tomorrow morning for Havre.

The blaze rapidly gained headway and required desperate efforts by the entire fire-fighting forces of Havre to prevent complete destruction of the ship. At 10 o'clock tonight the spread of the flames was checked.

The fire started in cabin 3 and soon reached the second-class smoker. From there the flames spread to the first-class public rooms, then to the information office, and finally all of the central part of the liner was ablaze.

The electric lighting system was put out of commission and the fire fighters had to rely on their own electric torches, which handicapped their activities.

It was impossible tonight to estimate the damages to the rugs, tapestries and rich decorations in the liner's public rooms. The beautiful grand stairway suffered seriously.

The American mail, which had been taken on board, was being diverted tonight to Cherbourg for the Olympic's sailing on Wednesday.

On Oct. 15, 1927, the Paris crashed into the Bessengen as she was leaving New York Harbor. Six of the Bessengen's crew lost their lives.

On April 6, this year, the Paris ran aground in a fog on Owl's Head Flats, off Bay Ridge. On her way back to New York she ran aground on the rocks in Plymouth Harbor.

REDRAFT OF TARIFF MADE BY SENATORS UPSETS HOUSE RATES

Republicans Reveal Some Rises for Industry as the Senate Meets and Adjourns.

MANY CUTS IN 360 CHANGES

On This Basis Majority Outlines Defense as Democrats Assail Bill All Along Line.

A detailed summary of the tariff schedules thus far prepared by the Senate Committee, as compared with the House rates and those now in effect, is printed on Pages 18 and 19.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—After more than two months of continuous hard work the Republican members of the Senate Committee on Finance today handed to the committee's Democratic contingent and gave to newspapers for publication their revision of the tariff schedules which the House of Representatives passed on May 29.

No formal explanation or defense of the scope and character of the revisionary process was furnished by those responsible for it, with the result that the first reaction came from critical and dissatisfied Senators and others interested in this important effort to give the country a new tariff law.

In consequence, the initial reception of the revision was of a hostile nature, symptomatic of what is expected to be one of the bitterest contests ever engendered by any general overhauling of rates on our dutiable imports.

Many House Rates Reduced.

Although no expert analysis of the schedules made public today is at hand, an examination of the revision made by the Republicans on the Finance Committee carries the impression that, compared with the House bill, it has been downward, broadly speaking, although higher in the general aspect than rates in the present law.

Whether it be true or not that the initial tendency of the Republican committeemen was to raise instead of lower the House rates and to have the bill embody an even more general tariff overhauling than came from the House in opposition to the expressed desire of President Hoover for a limited revision, the outcome of the committee's labors seems to have been a reversal of that predicted tendency.

Evidence that President Hoover, personally, was responsible for curbing a disposition of the Finance Committee Republicans to adhere to the House's rather comprehensive revisionary trend is accepted by most observers as responsible for the more restricted overhauling of the schedules and the policy of lowering the House rates in a majority of instances.

Senate Reassembles After Recess.

The publication of the revision was synchronous with the reassembling of the Senate after a recess of two months.

The Democratic members of the Finance Committee are to have about a week to study the Republican revision and decide what attitude they shall take toward it. About next Monday they will be called into session with their Republican committee associates and a meeting, or series of meetings, will be devoted to the perfunctory process of hearing Democratic protests and witnessing that party's minority voted down on all the changes they offer to the rates prescribed by the dominant party faction.

Pending the assembling of the full committee, the Republican committeemen will make their revision of the provision for administering the law.

The overhauling of the entire tariff structure has not been completed by

UNITED CIGAR SOLD TO GOLD DUST GROUP IN $100,000,000 DEAL

Whelan and Associates Turn Over Control of Stores and Affiliated Companies.

NEW OFFICIALS ELECTED

Control of the United Cigar Stores Company of America and affiliated companies, having assets of more than $200,000,000 and operating the largest cigar store system in the country, has passed from George J. Whelan and associates to a syndicate headed by George K. Morrow, chairman of the Gold Dust Corporation.

The transaction, which is regarded as probably the largest ever negotiated in this field, was completed yesterday when the Whelan group relinquished the management as well as ownership control to the Morrow interests. A far-reaching expansion of United Cigar's operations is believed to be indicated, including possibly an affiliation with the food products branch of the Gold Dust organization.

Part of the stock bought by the Morrow interests was accumulated in the open market, but most of it was acquired by a purchase agreement made with Mr. Whelan and associates. The Whelan interests had been planning for some months to dispose of their holdings and they found a ready purchaser in Mr. Morrow's group.

Interest in Schulte Stores.

A large block of stock of the Schulte Retail Stores Corporation that was owned by United Cigar subsidiaries also passed to the Morrow syndicate, creating, in effect, a triple alliance of United Cigar, Schulte and Gold Dust. Control of the Schulte organization remains, however, in the hands of David A. Schulte and associates, but the community of interest between the Schulte and United systems will be strengthened.

Through the transaction the Morrow group becomes heavily interested in nearly a dozen large companies in which United Cigar has investments. These include Philip Morris & Co., Ltd.; the Beech-Nut Packing Company, the American Safety Razor Company, the Gillette Safety Razor Company, Life Savers, Inc., and the United States Tobacco Company.

Transfer of the Whelan control of United Cigar to the Morrow interests was accomplished through the purchase of a majority stock interest in the Tobacco Products Corporation, which owns about 80 per cent of the common stock of United Cigar. The exact amount of stock acquired and the terms were not disclosed, but it was understood that the Morrow interests were paying the equivalent of close to $100,000,000. An agreement has been entered into, it was reported, for the exchange of the bulk of the Whelan holdings for stock in a new holding company to be formed by Mr. Morrow and associates. No comment could be obtained from either side concerning these reports.

Formal Announcement.

Announcement of the transfer of control was made in the following statement:

At meetings held today of the boards of directors of Tobacco Products Corporation and United Cigar Stores Company of America the following were elected as directors of both companies:

GEORGE K. MORROW.
FREDERICK K. MORROW.
R. W. JAMESON.
EUGENE W. STETSON.
WILBUR L. CUMMINGS.
SIR HERBERT HOLT.
HOBART PORTER.
JOHN FOSTER DULLES.
W. A. BLACK.
THOMAS McINNERNEY.
GEORGE M. MOFFETT.

George K. Morrow was elected chairman of both boards of directors. Frederick K. Morrow was elected president of both companies. R. W. Jameson was elected vice president of both companies. C. A. Whalen and W. T. Posey

WOMAN DERBY FLIER IS LOST IN ARIZONA

TWO CHARGE SABOTAGE

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 19 (AP).—Apprehension over the fate of one of the contestants in the Santa Monica-Cleveland Women's air derby was felt tonight as the fliers checked in at the second lap control point here from San Bernardino, Cal.

Miss Marvel Crosson, of San Diego, was reported to have made a forced landing in the mountains twelve miles north of Welton, Ariz., and searching parties were dispatched to that locality in an effort to find the aviatrix.

Florence Barnes of San Marino, Cal., and Phoebe Omlie of Memphis, Tenn., led the two classes of fliers at the end of the second lap, which saw the field of twenty cut by four. Three planes were down from motor trouble or wrecked landing gears.

Mrs. Barnes, in the heavy-craft division, had an unofficial elapsed time from Santa Monica of 3 hours, 13 minutes, 9 seconds. Miss Omlie, flying a light plane, chalked up an official time of 3 hours, 9 minutes, 2 seconds.

Louise Thaden of Pittsburgh, the first arrival here at 1:04:36 P. M., trailed Mrs. Barnes with a time of 3:17:11. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal., was third, with 3:28:47, and Amelia Earhart was fourth in the heavy division, in 3:27:15.

Edith Foltz of Portland, Ore., was second in the light class, with a time of 5:09:02. Mrs. Keith Miller of New Zealand, the only other contestant in that division, had 5:18:14.

Miss Earhart Breaks Propeller.

The leads of Mrs. Barnes and Miss Omlie gave them the first lap prizes for the second consecutive time, both having led the pilots in the first lap Sunday from Santa Monica to San Bernardino, Cal.

Miss Earhart, whose transatlantic flight brought her aviation fame, sped into the lead at Yuma, but smashed her propeller in landing and the misfortune dropped her to third place. She reentered the race after a thirty-minute delay for repairs.

Her difficulty was but minor compared to four others who tonight appeared out of the $75,000 race. Bobby Trout of Los Angeles smashed her landing gear in a forced descent at Algodones, Sonora, Mexico, and Thea Rasche of Germany came down at Holtville, Cal., with a clogged carburetor, wrecking her landing gear. Claire Fahy of Los Angeles stopped at Calexico, Cal. These mishaps cut the original field of six in the light class in half.

Miss Rasche was unable to complete repairs and announced she probably would not attempt to con-

Lindbergh Instructs Bride In Rudiments of Flying

Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has been an air passenger for many hours, apparently is to learn to fly.

Yesterday Colonel Lindbergh and his bride took out a training ship from the Valley Stream Airport and flew over to the Aviation Country Club at Hicksville, L. I., where they spent an hour landing and taking off. Mrs. Lindbergh "following her husband through" in the operation of the plane.

The "lesson" took place early in the forenoon when the air is smooth and at its best for students. No announcement was made regarding Mrs. Lindbergh's intentions or progress, but the presence of the training ship and the following of elementary instruction methods indicated that she was at least showing an interest in piloting a plane.

NAVY HALTS ENTRY IN SCHNEIDER RACE

Ingalls Is to Decide Whether Lieut. Williams's Racer Will Be Sent to Cowes.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 19.—Last minute complications tonight threatened to bar participation by the United States in the Schneider Cup race.

Lieutenant Alford J. Williams, naval aviator who privately financed construction of the Mercury racer in an attempt to bring the world speed laurels back to America, waited at his Summer home here for a decision by David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics, as to whether he would be permitted to take the plane across to England for the race, which is to be run Sept. 6 and 7.

The Mercury lay on its cradle at the Santee Wharf of the Naval Academy, ready to be loaded aboard the aircraft tender Sandpiper for a dash to New York, where it is hoped that it may be loaded upon the White Star liner Majestic, sailing Friday. The Sandpiper's crew were being held aboard in case orders to load the racer would reach here during the night.

Williams Summoned to Capital.

Lieutenant Williams was summoned today to a conference with naval officials in Washington after he had spent the morning dismantling his home here.

In Washington he conferred with Assistant Secretary Ingalls, Commander John H. Towers, Assistant Chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics; Dr. J. R. Poppen, who was to manage the racing crew's trip to England, and Lieutenant Charles Fox, Navy Paymaster, who was to have been a member of the party.

The conference was held after the department offices had closed for the day and lasted for more than an hour. What transpired neither Assistant Secretary Ingalls nor Lieu-

SWISS OVER AZORES ON HOP TO AMERICA

Two Youths, 22 and 21, Neither a Navigator, Pass Island of Terceira on Way.

STARTED FROM NEAR LISBON

By The Associated Press.

HORTA, The Azores, Aug. 19.—The airplane in which two young Swiss aviators, Oscar Kaesar and Kurt Luescher, are attempting a transatlantic flight, circled over the village of Praia, Victoria, on the Island of Terceira today at 6 P. M., Greenwich Mean Time (2 P. M. New York Daylight Saving Time).

The airplane was identified by the number CH245 which appears on the fuselage in addition to its name, Jung Schweizerland (Young Switzerland). After circling, it continued its flight with no indication that the crew had experienced any trouble.

Weather conditions here were good this evening. A watch for the monoplane had been closely maintained, although no preparations for landing were made, as it was understood that the fliers would attempt to make the American coast without a stop.

Praia Victoria, which appears as "Praya" on many maps, is on the eastern coast of the Island of Terceira in the central part of the Azores group. It is about seventy-five miles from Horta and about 800 from Lisbon, which the aviators left at 3:30 A. M., New York Time. The elapsed time would indicate that unfavorable winds had cut their flying speed considerably below the 105 miles an hour they had hoped to maintain.

Confident at Take-Off.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LISBON, Aug. 19.—Despite the fact that neither was a navigator, the two Swiss airmen were confident when they started from the beach on the banks of the Tagus River twenty miles from here this morning in their attempt to reach Halifax in a small Farman monoplane.

"Neither of us is a professional navigator, but I've used a sextant and studied navigation some, and I feel sure that we will get there," said Kaesar. "We have wonderful weather for our start and the reports we have received indicate that we have a good chance of success if our luck holds."

Kaesar indicated that they would fly directly over the Azores and if the fuel consumption at that part of their journey conformed to their estimates, they would continue to Halifax without stopping, otherwise they would try to land in the Azores and then make a new start for Halifax a day or two later. The plane carried 2,000 liters of gasoline (about 2,112 quarts), and with them the fliers had a small monkey doll as a mascot.

The two, the youngest to attempt to fly the Atlantic, are mere boys, one 21 and the other 22, exactly "Magnificent," Rosendahl Says of Trip—Official Time Is 101 Hours, 50 Minutes.

By HUGH BYAS.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Aug. 19.—The Graf Zeppelin's silver gray hull appeared over Tokio north at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon, her motors throbbing like distant drums and scattering the temple pigeons in alarm.

The city had been in constant wireless contact with the ship since morning and newspaper extras had informed the populace when to expect her. Three blasts from the city's time siren announced that she was in sight and presently every roof and open space was crowded with sightseers. Traffic came to a spontaneous halt as virtually the whole population rushed out to welcome the airship.

The dirigible swung slowly across the city at reduced speed, so low that her name was easily read and the figures of passengers discerned at the cabin windows.

Residents of Tokio were greatly excited. The men waved their hats, shouted "Banzai!" and many wept with emotion at the sight of this strange and graceful form with its human cargo in the sky.

Steamer Delays for View.

The ship crossed the centre of the city and followed the curve of the bay to Yokohama, where a mail steamer had delayed its departure to let its passengers see her; then the air liner recrossed Tokio and proceeded to the Kasumigaura Airport, where she docked.

The great balloon was first sighted at Kasumigaura at 3:50 P. M. (2:50 A. M. in New York). It appeared above the airport at 4:14, then spent more than two hours visiting Tokio and Yokohama. It was 6:20 when she returned to the airport, and she entered her hangar at 7:07. By 7:30 P. M. (6:30 A. M. in New York) Dr. Eckener had landed and was receiving an official welcome from the Minister of Communications in behalf of the government.

The Zeppelin made less speed in the long sweep south than in crossing Siberia. Fog and rain encountered over Sakhalin Island reduced her speed to as low as forty-six miles an hour, but as the day advanced the weather improved and the last lap was made in magnificent, cool weather with light head winds.

Time for Breeze to Die.

Dr. Eckener visited Tokio and Yokohama partly to allow time for the breeze to die away before landing. When he finally descended the huge, yellow moon was rising, the wind had fallen and scarcely a breath disturbed the manoeuvre.

The airport was crowded with Japanese spectators, whose scant Summer costume made a striking picture.

The Zeppelin's return to Kasumigaura was dramatic. She suddenly appeared directly above the hangar, made a wide circle, then descended with the steadiness of an elevator. The naval ground crew handled the mooring ropes skillfully and everything went smoothly, although the spectators broke through the barriers as the ship was entering the shed. No damage was done.

The Germans were shouting "Hoch!" the Japanese were yelling "Banzai!" the passengers waving frogs and everybody was in a state of hilarious excitement.

After an official reception the officers and passengers went to Tokio in a special train to spend the night at the Imperial Hotel. In private messages during the day they described desires the voyage had engendered. Lady Drummond Hay said her greatest desire was for a bath, most of the men wanted smokes and Dr. Eckener said all he wished for was a long, quiet sleep.

The official time from Friedrichshafen to Kasumigaura was 101 hours and fifty minutes.

Refueling Under Way.

TOKIO, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Graf Zeppelin, having sailed 6,880 miles across Europe and Asia from Friedrichshafen, was being groomed tonight in her hangar at Kasumigaura, forty miles from Tokio, for her flight to Los Angeles while ancient Yedde and the world acclaimed Commander Eckener as the hero of the air. Dr. Eckener plans to stay only three days in Tokio before heading for California and on to Lakehurst, completing the flight around the world.

The twenty passengers, who ate breakfast in Germany Thursday, had dinner in Tokio Monday evening. Their first food in Japan was a ceremonial meal, the tribute of Dai Nippon to the men of the machine that annihilated the distance between East and West. Although Dr. Eckener had expressed the desire only for rest for himself and his officers and crew, he could not escape the entertainments and festivities an admiring nation tendered him.

The end of the voyage was surprisingly matter of fact. Almost without concern and with no excitement, the passengers descended an improvised gangplank tonight. There was the customary flurry over customs, baggage and hotel reservations just as with passengers arriving by train or steamship.

Landing Dramatically Feasid.

All of the twenty passengers, including one woman, Lady Drummond Hay, were well and in good spirits when they boarded a train for Tokio. With them went the mail, which had been transported faster over this great distance than any other letters in history.

The coolness of the passengers, the efficiency of the Zepelin's crew and the phlegmatic manner in which 500 Japanese blue jackets walked the big ship into her hangar could not rob the navigation record of its romance.

It is estimated here that the Graf Zeppelin covered 6,950 miles, including her cruise beyond Kasumigaura to Tokio and Yokohama. When she first roared over the airport she had completed 6,880 miles in sixteen minutes under 100 hours of flying.

Rain and fog about 600 miles from her goal brought a slight alteration in the course, but the weather wizards in the Zeppelin's chart rooms nosed through the treacherous elements with the success of their Atlantic flights. They even tried to hook their air wagon to the tail of a typhoon, but it got away from them.

A light Summer haze made for poor visibility when the Zeppelin was sighted, but Japanese airplanes took off and in a few minutes were darting and dancing as if in joy at the arrival of the envoy from another continent. Circling in recognition of the welcome, the ship sailed onward Tokio to receive the banzais of the densely populated city.

Strange Spectacle to Orient.

Everybody, from high officials to lowly coolies pulling burdens through narrow twisting streets, turned eyes to greet the stranger in the sky. The Zeppelin's arrival provided a spectacle never before witnessed in the Orient. No airship of her size ever before cruised the skies of the Empire of the Rising Sun.

During the formal reception at the airport when Dr. Eckener landed, he and Admiral Takarabe, Minister of the Navy, had difficulty exchanging felicitations because of the excitement of the cheering crowds. Cordons of police and troops were broken repeatedly by masses eager to get a near view of the ship and the persons who came on her. Immediately the ceremonial affair of Japan accorded to honored visitors was provided, consisting of dried chestnuts, dried cuttlefish and saki, the national drink fermented from rice.

A geisha dinner, another feature of Japanese life, at which geisha girls danced and sang classic and modern songs of the country, was then given for the officers and crew by the commandant of the airport. Before the passengers were entrained for Tokio, engineers were busy on the airship's motors and others began the replenishment of her stores in preparation for the transpacific flight.

Rosendahl Enthusiastic.

Among the first to disembark was Commander Charles E. Rosendahl of the United States Navy, who declared the voyage had been "a magnificent performance." The other American naval observer, Lieutenant J. C. Richardson, was close behind him and joined in the praise of the behavior of the dirigible and its accommodations.

Dr. Eckener, almost the last to leave the ship, received an ovation, particularly from the large German gathering.

The semi-darkness during the landing operations was relieved by searchlights. A little later the rays of the rising full moon imparted a fresh sheen to the silvery shell of the dirigibl.

A rapid inspection of the Graf Zeppelin in the hangar showed that it and its five engines had emerged from the test of the long voyage in excellent condition.

The Graf Zeppelin probably will start for the Pacific Coast of America on Thursday. This flight over the waste stretches of the Pacific, never yet traversed by an airship, marks the third stage of the globe-circling journey. Together with the run across the American continent from Los Angeles to Lakehurst, the Zeppelin must still fly nearly 3,000 miles to reach her goal, the New Jersey airfield from which she set out on Aug. 7.

The Zeppelin has already traveled 11,080 miles—4,200 from Lakehurst to Friedrichshafen and 6,880 from Friedrichshafen here. The flight to Los Angeles is estimated at 5,470 miles and that from Los Angeles to Lakehurst at 2,500.

The average speed on the trip here as put at sixty-four miles an hour. Part of the time only three of the ship's five motors were used.

ZEPPELIN WORLD ROUTE IS ABOUT 15,480 MILES

At the 180th Meridian She Will Gain a Whole Day—Time in Different Areas.

The Graf Zeppelin's voyage thus far on the trip around the world has been principally confined to a zone between 30 and 60 degrees north latitude, except where she approached the Arctic Circle in Siberia between Laysak and Nikolaivisk. The sun is now moving south from the Tropic of Cancer, so in the zone of 30 degrees daylight ranges from 13 hours and 40 minutes to 12 hours and 30 minutes in length and the nights from 10 hours and 20 minutes to 11 hours and 10 minutes, respectively.

When it is 12 o'clock noon Standard Time at Lakehurst, whence the Graf Zeppelin began her voyage on Aug. 8, the time registered simultaneously at the places over which she passed, or is to pass, will be as follows:

Paris, 6 P. M.
Friedrichafen, 6 P. M.
Leningrad, 7:01 P. M.
Laryansk, 10:20 P. M.
Nikolaievsk, 2 A. M.
Tokio, 2 A. M.

Continuing her voyage east, at Bering Sea she will cross the 180th meridian and will gain one day, doubling whatever day of the week she happens to cross the meridian. There the difference in time from Lakehurst will be, west 17 hours, east 7 hours, or when it is 12 noon at Lakehurst it will be 5 A. M. at the 180 meredian, and so on:

Seattle, 9 A. M.
San Francisco, 9 A. M.
Los Angeles, 9 A. M.
El Paso, 10 A. M.
Jackson, 11 A. M.

If the Graf Zeppelin returns to Lakehurst on Aug. 30, as intended, she will have traversed in her zone along the parallel equidistant between the parallels of Lakehurst and Leningrad, where forty-three miles are reckoned to a degree, a distance of 15,480 miles, without allowing for divergencies, in a total of twenty-two days, or 8,360 miles less than the circumnavigation would have been on the Equator.

Around-the-World Log Of the Graf Zeppelin

Following is the log of the Graf Zeppelin's around-the-world voyage as reported by The Associated Press. The time is Eastern Daylight:

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 7.

12:40 A. M.—Left Lakehurst, N. J.

SATURDAY, AUG. 10.

7:05 A. M.—Landed at Friedrichshafen, 4,200 miles, in 55 hours 25 minutes.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 14.

11:55 P. M.—Left Friedrichshafen.

THURSDAY, AUG. 15.

5:30 A. M.—Passed over Berlin.

FRIDAY, AUG. 16.

11:30 A. M.—Dropped postcards at Kizel, in the Urals, on the Siberian border.

SUNDAY, AUG. 18.

2 P. M. (Approximate)—Reached eastern coast of Asia at port of Ajan on the Sea of Okhotsk.

MONDAY, Aug. 19.

2:50 P. M.—Sighted over Kasumigaura, naval airdrome, near Tokio.

6:27 A. M.—Landed at Kasumigaura Airport, completing trip of 6,880 miles in 101 hours, 53 minutes.

FRENCH PRESS LAVISH IN PRAISE FOR ECKENER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—French newspapers hailed the Graf Zeppelin's achievement with unstinted praise today.

Come what may, the Zeppelin already has accomplished an exploit imperishable in the history of aviation, the French press concludes unanimously. Dr. Eckener and his crew are accorded lavish admiration, but the newspapers are reserved as to the future of dirigible travel, declaring that many similar exploits and much more general facilities will be necessary before it can be regarded as established.

"It can be said that the entire world for four days followed with anxious attention this superb flight," says the Journal des Debats. "All modern inventions united to assist it. Radio permitted the dirigible, even in the midst of immense, deserted regions, to maintain contact with inhabited lands and receive constant weather reports and furthermore allowed the Zeppelin the possibility of a call for aid in event of an accident.

"Such an exploit, even under these conditions, however, remains extremely hazardous and under other conditions might become foolhardy. But Dr. Eckener and his aids have shown a determination and courage worthy of success. They have done honor to their country and, what is more, they have done honor to mankind.

"Two long and dangerous flights remain before the completion of the enterprise, but whatever their outcome it can be said that the organizations behind this formidable undertaking realize perfectly the difficulties they are facing and have done everything humanly possible to overcome them."

"This marvelous finish to the first stage of the around-the-world trip," says Le Temps, "augurs well for the stages to follow. Already we must admire the facility and rapidity with which the Germany-Tokio flight was carried out, which has proved the security of the transportation offered by Dr. Eckener's dirigible.

Liberté calls the finish "a victorious arrival" and Le Soir declares, "the world seems extremely small this week. Let us rejoice because it is possible that the Graf Zeppelin, in its course around the world, in reality is tracing the signature of the Kellogg pact."

Starts New Solo Endurance Flight.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19 (AP).—Donald A. Templeman, former army flier, took off from Mills Field at 10:00 A. M. today in a second attempt to establish a solo endurance flight record. His first attempt, started Saturday, ended when a gas line plugged. He will attempt to stay in the air forty hours.

GERMANS TO BUILD NEW ZEPPELIN SOON

Bigger Ship Will Be Ready for Regular Service by Middle of Next Year.

NEW YORK BASE CONSIDERED

American Capital Is Interested, Friedrichshafen Reveals, and Suggested World Flight.

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—As naturally might be expected, all of Germany was rejoicing today at the record-breaking trip of the Graf Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen to Tokio, to such an extent that the difficulties of the allied statesmen at The Hague in dividing the reparation money that Germany is to pay were momentarily forgotten.

Dr. Eckener's feat in flying half around the world in less time than any flying machine ever made such a trip before, is heralded as a complete vindication of the Zeppelin idea for distance flights. Aviation authorities therefore already are seriously considering the new possibilities that the flight opens for the establishment of permanent aerial lines, particularly for mail, all over the world, with the main port changed from Friedrichshafen to Berlin.

The Zeppelin works announced today that the Graf Zeppelin's time was so good and its economy of fuel through using only four and sometimes three of its five motors, so great that 40 per cent of the fuel taken from Friedrichshafen was unused on the arrival at Tokio, almost enough for crossing the Pacific.

Captain Walther Bruns of the Aero-Arctic Society, who, with Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the Arctic explorer, will fly with the Graf Zeppelin to the North Pole, is enthusiastic over the present flight. He said:

"It proves that the plan for a transcontinental transsiberian mail service is no utopian idea. I am certain that the present record will not easily be surpassed. The two British dirigibles now under construction have a cruising radius of only 4,000 miles.

Ship Still Too Small.

"But for regular service even our Graf Zeppelin is too small. Future Zeppelins must have a volume of 135,000 cubic meters. The present speed is sufficient. I expect our plans to progress speedily from now on, inasmuch as through the initiative of the city of Berlin an international committee will now be formed with representatives from Germany, Russia, China and Japan.

Three airships are sufficient to start a service, one going each way each week, with the third in reserve.

"An airship would start from Berlin with mail brought from other cities by ordinary planes. The first stop would be at Leningrad to take mail aboard from Russia and the Baltic States. The next landing would be at Harbin, Manchuria, then at the terminal at Osaka, Japan.

"These ships also could carry medicines, films, tea, gold and silver. The letter rate would be three times the ordinary fee.

"When the service is sufficiently developed passengers, mails and freight could land and be taken aboard by planes which would fly underneath the airship, be hooked onto the ship's platform and thence taken inside the ship. This has been tried successfully in the United States with the Los Angeles.

Superiority Declared Proved.

"This flight proves the superiority of the dirigible over airplanes for long distances. It is now clear that with airplanes the time taken for landing and refueling makes their speed much less than that of a Zeppelin. Also, they afford much less comfort for the passengers.

"The Tokio flight also shows the possibility of mapping Siberian territory accurately, also the possibility of making tests for minerals with the aid of special instruments.

"The cold Siberian Winter offers no obstacles because the air is very dry and the snow does not settle on the ship's body, while, on the other hand, in Winter the carrying capacity increases.

"Concerning the North Pole flight preparations now under way at Fairbanks, a gas making plant and a mooring mast are being constructed. As soon as the Graf Zeppelin again arrives at Lakehurst Captain Lehman will give the final instructions to the committee, which will then go to Fairbanks and remain until the work is completed.

"Russia already has begun work on the weather stations at Novaya-semlya and two other points in Siberia, while another mooring mast also will be erected in Norway either at Vadsö or Tromsö.

Dr. Eckener Also Surprised.

The Zeppelin works has word from Dr. Eckener that he himself was surprised at the completeness of the success of the world flight thus far and that he has declared a regular transatlantic or even world service now has been proved possible. It is pointed out that the ten-day round trip from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst could be greatly reduced if stations were established on both shores of the Atlantic for Zeppelins as for steamships.

In the meantime it has been decided to begin construction of a new Zeppelin at Friedrichshafen as soon as the new hangar now under way is ready. The new ship will be the same length but wider than the Graf Zeppelin, and with an additional capacity of 45,000 cubic meters.

Dr. Eckener and his chief engineer, Dr. Duerr, are convinced that the new form will accelerate speed. The airship will be ready for service by the middle of next year, when, according to present hopes, it will be placed in regular European-American or European-Japanese service.

Dr. Stegerwald, Minister of Transportation, addressed the following radio message to Dr. Eckener tonight:

"With great pride in your grand achievement, I send you, in the name of President von Hindenburg and the entire Cabinet, the heartiest congratulations. You have conquered the first and most difficult stages of the world flight. Our best wishes for its continuation. The extraordinary accomplishment of the ship and crew fills the German people with joy."

Lufthansa Chief Optimistic.

Otto Merkle, the well-known chief of the Lufthansa, said tonight:

"In its splendid flights from Lakehurst to Friedrichshafen and Tokio, an airship for the first time went into the Far East. The importance of this trip, which deserves recognition in all circles concerned with air traffic, is that in non-stop flights a distance was covered which dwarfs all previous achievements of other airplanes and airships.

"The accomplishment of Dr. Eckener and his crew is a further stepping stone toward the creation of a regular air service to the Far East, for which Lufthansa, through flights in 1926 and 1928, contributed valuable meteorological material. Dr. Eckener's masterly navigation will find full recognition from all experts. The way of least resistance is most important in aeronautics. Air traffic is dependent on close cooperation with weather bureaus more than any other means of transportation. We gratefully recognize the value of Dr. Eckener's work to future exploitation of airways to the Far East. Both the airplane with its speed and the airship with its long range are destined to operate on the great world airlines conjointly."

American Capital Interested.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 19 (AP).—The present world flight of the Graf Zeppelin, it was learned tonight from reliable sources, definitely is a technical demonstration to prove the practicability of regular international dirigible service in which American capitalists, the Zeppelin works and the Hamburg-American steamship line would cooperate.

Dr. Schmidt, secretary of the Zeppelin works, will sail soon for America to pave the way for negotiations in New York with an American financial group for establishing international dirigible service between Europe, South America and North America, possibly beyond the East coasts.

It was intimated that the present flight was the result of preparatory discussions months ago that Dr. Eckener had with the Hamburg-American line and the American group of financiers. The latter were said to have demanded such a flight as proof that the modern airship is technically sufficiently perfected to maintain a regular service.

The declared success of these negotiations will have an important bearing on the future of the Zeppelin works, which will then be concerned exclusively with construction of airships, either at Friedrichshafen or some other South German point. Headquarters of the air service would be transferred either to North Germany or to the United States.

It was learned that Dr. Eckener, in previous discussions in America, had proposed for the creation of this service a G man-American company. The Zeppelin works would contribute their technical equipment and an experience unsurpassed in length elsewhere in the world, the Hamburg-American line its present world organization, and the American group the financial backing. It was hinted that a number of American transportation companies were included in the group which had been interested in the project.

DIE IN MOUNTAIN BLIZZARD.

Seattle Woman and Man Perish While Climbing Shuksan.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 19 (AP).—Miss Thelma Martin, Seattle librarian and an unidentified man perished today in a blizzard on Mount Shuksan, near Mount Baker, Wash., word received here tonight said.

SUN GOD REPORTED AT ABERDEEN, S. D.

PASSES THROUGH STORMS

Pilots Mamer and Walker Announce That Craft Is All Right in Cleveland Notes.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Aug. 19 (AP).—The endurance plane Spokane Sun God reached here at 6:25 o'clock this evening on its westward flight. The plane, accompanied by a refueling ship, circled over the city several times.

Taking on seventy-five additional gallons of gasoline in two contacts over Aberdeen, the plane headed for Missoula, Mont., and will probably circle over the airport there throughout the night, according to a note which Lieutenant Mamer dropped to his refueling pilot, Vernon Bookwalter.

Beats Schedule to St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 19 (AP).—Far ahead of schedule, the endurance plane Spokane Sun God cruised over the Twin Cities for more than an hour this afternoon before again nosing westward in her non-stop flight from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast.

Arriving here at 1:25 o'clock, the plane, piloted by Nick Mamer and Art Walker, circled over the city until the refueling ship, the Apple Blossom, went aloft. After taking aboard 250 gallons of gasoline, ten gallons of oil and two chicken dinners, the Spokane Sun Gor headed westward for Missoula, Mont., just before 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Struck Storms During Night.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19 (AP).—Overcoming storms which made hazardous flying from Roosevelt Field, New York, to the Cleveland airport, the endurance plane Spokane Sun God refueled here this morning and flew on toward St. Paul, the next point where provisions and fuel are to be taken aboard, on its return flight to the Pacific Coast.

The pilots, B. Mamer and Art Walker, reported all well aboard. They took on a hot breakfast in the morning's contacts, but said they needed no oil.

Last night's storms, they said, were a severe test of both plane and pilots. The refueling plane was flown by Dan Robertson and James Buchanan.

Drop Notes at Madison, Wis.

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 19 (AP).—The endurance plane Spokane Sun God, piloted by Lieutenant Nick Mamer and Art Walker, circled over Madison at 11:10 o'clock this morning, dropped a note and headed for St Paul.

The pilots dropped the following note:

"Hello, boys at the airport! This time I'm not stopping for gas. Still have about 200 gallons on board. This wagon takes more than the Ford I stopped here with about a month ago.

"Those are keen lakes, and we need a bath badly. How about a bath on the sly? Send up 400 gallons of lake water. Nick Mamer and Art Walker, Spokane endurance fliers."

A second message was enclosed to be sent to St. Paul asking the airport there to have 150 gallons of gas, 10 gallons of oil and hot food ready.

A third message, addressed to the Spokane Aeronautic Association, stated that the Sun God expected to return to the Western city tomorrow.

REDS TO TRY HOP AGAIN.

Another Plane for Moscow-New York—Trial for Pilots Who Failed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Aug. 19.—A new Soviet flight attempt to America will be begun this week-end. The commission of inquiry into the mishap attending the airplane, Land of the Soviets, on its attempt to fly from Moscow to the United States, has decided it would be impracticable to repair the machine, which was forced down in Siberia, for a continuation flight, and a new attempt over the same course will be made in a similar machine.

Sheetskof and Belotof, the pilots of the illfated machine, are to undergo trial in connection with the commission's inquiry.

tenant Williams would reveal, but it was learned that Commander Towers had opposed permitting the shipment of the plane to Europe for participation in the race.

It was understood that he stressed that more than $200,000 had been spent upon the plane and that it had not been given sufficient flight tests to guarantee its performance.

Lieutenant Williams informed Secretary Ingalls that while the plane had not been taken off the water for an extensive test flight, he had been convinced by its taxiing tests and its short flight test yesterday that it could be safely flown and had a chance to win the Schneider Cup.

Would Take "Sporting Chance."

He sent a telegram to Harry Davison of Locust Valley, L. I., his principal backer, saying:

"It's a sporting chance. Let's go."

If the racer is not permitted to try for the cup it will become obsolete by 1931 when the next Schneider race is held, and the cost of its construction will be lost, according to statements here.

Lieutenant Williams, who returned here tonight to await the verdict from the Capital, said he had every confidence in the plane, adding:

"It's my neck that is being risked," he said.

Lieutenant Williams received a tiny silk American flag and two pressed four-leaf clovers tonight with good luck greetings from Mrs. M. Schilling of Carnegy Point, N. J.

The lieutenant said that if the plane was permitted to enter the race the flag and clover leaves would be attached to the engine cowling as a symbol.

The racing team would include Dr. Poppen and Lieutenants Fox and Kean. Those in charge of the plane will include Chief Mechanic John Estlo, J. M. Murphy, D. J. Solari, C. R. Suddart, William Donovan and Harry Worth. Lieutenant Kean made arrangements today to install the second racing Packard "X" engine and new decks for the floats during the voyage to Southampton.

ENDURANCE FLIERS RECEIVED BY MAYOR

Jackson and O'Brine Honored at Luncheon Before Trip to City Hall.

Refueling of planes in flight as a means of making airplane passenger lines profitable was the topic of discussion at a luncheon in honor of the endurance flying record holders, Dale S. Jackson and Forrest O'Brine, and their refueling crew, C. Ray Wassall and P. V. Chaffee, given by officers of the Curtiss Flying Service yesterday at the Hotel Roosevelt. After the luncheon the fliers were taken to City Hall, where they were received by Mayor Walker.

C. S. (Casey) Jones, president of the Curtiss Flying Service, said that no passenger airline has actually paid, except one in Colombia, South America, run by a German company. He explained that he was not referring to lines carrying mail and express in addition to passengers.

He said that refueling in flight would make possible a greater pay load and pointed to the seventy-seven contacts in the recent endurance flight, of which only one was broken, as showing that the method was practical.

Mr. Jackson added that this method not only would save time but would pay for the expense of the extra planes and crews by saving the strain on plane and motor incident to rising with a full load.

At City Hall Jackson and O'Brine told Mayor Walker of their flight and explained how they had alternated between sleeping and piloting. He asked what effect the flight had had on them and they said none except that they were "shaky in the pins" when it was over.

"A man who went to bed for seventeen days would be shaky on the pins when he got out," the Mayor said. "But this certainly makes the six-day bicycle race look like an amateur undertaking."

excited with the glamor of their adventure, which they began in emulation of Colonel Lindbergh's feat after reading his book, "We." There was a small crowd of Portuguese gathered to watch the departure and wish them good luck, and as the plane, making a fine take-off, circled and started away, many of the watchers called out "Adios!"

Kassar estimated that the plane should reach Halifax in forty-two hours. It is the same model as that used by the French fliers, Bailley and Reginensi, in their flight from Paris to Saigon, Indo-China, and return.

German Ship Sights Them.

LISBON, Aug. 19 (AP).—The two Swiss aviators, Kassar and Luescher, with only three years of flying experience, were speeding westward tonight over the Atlantic after taking off from the village of Juncal near here.

A German steamer, bound for Brazil from Oporto, reported their passage in a wireless message at a point about 170 miles due west of Lisbon in Lat. 38.48 North and Long. 11.3 West. The steamer did not state the time of the sighting.

Kassar and Luescher estimated before the start that their flight from Lisbon to New York would take them over a distance of 3,000 miles by way of the Azores and Halifax. Kassar, who is 22, acted as pilot and Luescher, 21, was navigator and mechanic.

The fliers, with a third, Alfred Tschopp, arrived in Lisbon on Aug. 10 from La Bourget and Zurich and prepared immediately but in great secrecy for their transatlantic flight. They refused to talk about their plans, explaining it would be better to do first and then talk than to talk and not perform afterward. Their voyage from Le Bourget, with two stops, occupied two days, during which they were not heard from.

They let it be known to a few friends yesterday that they intended to begin their flight this morning. Driving out to the field, they stopped at a restaurant and filled a vacuum bottle with coffee, bought a quantity of milk, fifteen sandwiches, some eggs and chocolate as provisions. They carried an apparatus to distil sea water, a small pneumatic boat and rubber suits.

If their flight proves successful the two Swiss fliers should reach Roosevelt Field about 6 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, on Tuesday provided they do not stop at Halifax. But both thought it unlikely they could accomplish the distance from Lisbon to New York without refueling and were ready to stop at Halifax if necessary.

En route to the field for the take-off Kassar burned his hand on a light which a Portuguese had given him and which burst prematurely, the aviator clasping his hand over it to extinguish it. He refused to have it treated, but said he would treat it himself with oil as he flew.

The aviators received what they considered a favorable weather report from the meteorologists. It predicted clear weather and good winds to the Azores but fog beyond, especially around Newfoundland.

A long queue of motors followed the fliers to their taking off place, through fields in which wild bulls roared in protest at the unseemly interruption of their ruminations. Just before the start Tschopp, who was left behind, picked up a small piece of cork and presented it to the airmen, remarking jokingly they might need it to help keep afloat. The two donned safety rubber suits in which they were photographed before stepping into the plane.

Weather Rid at Halifax.

HALIFAX, Aug. 19 (AP).—Unfavorable flying conditions prevailed along the Nova Scotia coast in the vicinity of Halifax tonight. The city and coast were shrouded in dense fog, and a moderately heavy rain was falling.

Good Off Newfoundland.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Aug. 19.—Apart from a slight haze seaward tonight the weather is very favorable for the Swiss airmen if they approach the Newfoundland coast. The wind is west, but is insufficient even to temper the heat. The barometer is high.

tinue. She said she would repair her ship and proceed to Cleveland to compete in the races of the National Aeronautic Exposition.

Miss Rasche, although declining to comment on what she claimed was "dirty gasoline," showed newspaper men a telegram from a friend who warned her to "beware of sabotage."

Wind Halts Miss Kuns.

The fourth plane, Miss Crosson's ship, was the only craft out of the heavy division.

Two other pilots were making a brave effort to catch the main flight. Mary von Mack of Detroit left Montebello, Cal., where she landed the first day, this afternoon and was reported between San Bernardino and Yuma. May Haisiip of Kansas City got away from Santa Monica today where she has been held up by failure of her plane to arrive.

The unofficial elapsed times of other contestants in the heavy division follow:

Ruth Nichols, Rye, N. Y., 3:46:40; Ruth Elder, Los Angeles, 4:27:27; Blanche Noyes, Cleveland, 4:41:59; Neva Paris, Great Neck, N. Y., 4:51:15; Vera Dawn Walker, Los Angeles, 4:52:26; Margaret Perry, Los Angeles, 4:58:44, and Opal Kunz, New York City, 5:17:07. Elisabeth Lee, Meadville, was not dispatched.

Miss Kuns made a landing at Prescott, Ariz., when winds blew her off the course, but took off later, finishing more than two hours behind the leaders.

The fliers leave at 6 A. M. tomorrow for Douglas, Ariz. The contest, sponsored by the National Exchange Clubs, is planned to end at Cleveland on Aug. 26 in connection with the national air races there.

An incident that upset the tranquility of the flight for a moment occurred early today when the fliers staged a "strike" at San Bernardino, Cal. the first night stop, against a regulation which required them to land at Calexico, Cal. They protested that the field there was inadequate, and, after considerable deliberation, officials permitted them to eliminate the Calexico stop and changed it to Yuma.

Plane Tampered With, She Quits.

Special to The New York Times.

CALEXICO, Cal., Aug. 19.—Asserting that her plane had been tampered with and that she was afraid to continue flying it, Claire Fahy, Los Angeles entrant in the Women's Air Derby, announced her withdrawal from the race this afternoon.

Mrs. Fahy landed here this morning with motor trouble and mechanics discovered that both centre section wires in the plane had snapped. They attributed it to a rough landing, but Lieutenant Fahy, also a well-known pilot, arrived at noon and, following an examination, asserted that the wires had been weakened with acid. He advised his wife not to continue and she returned to the Coast with him.

Thea Rasche, German entrant, whose plane was damaged in a forced landing near Holtville, Cal., this morning, failed to complete repairs this afternoon and admitted that she was out of the race. She stated that she would continue her cross-country trip to Cleveland as soon as the landing gear of her plane is repaired and take part in the women's races during the national air races.

Fail to Find Miss Crosson.

WELTON, Ariz., Aug. 19 (AP).—A searching party returned here tonight without having found any trace of Miss Marvel Crosson, the San Diego woman derby flier reported to have made a forced landing in the mountains, twelve miles north of Welton today.

Four ranches reported having seen a plane of the type piloted by Miss Crosson drive into a thick growth of cottonwood trees a short distance from the Gila River.

The searching party was dispatched when it became apparent that Miss Crosson had met with a mishap.

Another party left Welton tonight to comb the mountainous section. It was feared that if Miss Crosson were uninjured she might wander and become lost, or might, in event of a serious crashup, be in need of medical attention.

Searcher Reported Missing.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19 (AP).—E. F. Lenison, an oil company pilot, who today was following the woman fliers of the Santa Monica to Cleveland air derby between San Bernardino and Phoenix, was reported missing by his Los Angeles office tonight. Company officials believed he may have seen the forced landing of Miss Marvel Crosson, missing aviatrix, and followed her to the ground to aid her.

TROOPS QUELL RIOT AT SOUTHERN MILL

Sent to Marion, N. C., When Strikers Stop Reopening of Clinchfield Plant.

GATES HELD SHUT BY 600

Women and Men Mob Superintendent, Who Attempts to Put Non-Unionists to Work.

AWAIT SECOND START TODAY

Officials Will Try to Put Machines in Motion Under Strong Military Guard.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, N. C., Aug. 19.—With two companies of National Guardsmen armed with machine guns, revolvers and rifles controlling the situation at Clinchfield Mill, where 600 striking employes this morning made good their threat to prevent non-union men from starting the mill machinery, officials, troops and strikers settled down to await a second effort to open the mill tomorrow afternoon.

Judge N. A. Townsend, personal representative of Governor O. Max Gardner, summoned the troops early this morning when the strikers repulsed efforts of mill officials to unlock the gates for non-union men who were waiting to begin work.

Judge Townsend announced that at 1 o'clock tomorrow the gates will be opened, with National Guardsmen protecting mill officials and non-union men. Striking employes of the plant simultaneously announced that they will not permit the mill machinery, shut down for three weeks, to start. The town was quiet late today, but a tense atmosphere pervaded the section surrounding the Clinchfield Mill.

Prevent Opening of Gates.

Dozens of women were massed in front of the mill gates at 5 o'clock this morning, and behind them were about 600 men, striking employes. Superintendent Henderson walked down to the gates unmolested and started to open them.

Immediately a score of hands seized him and he was roughly handled before being released. The superintendent made no further effort to open the gates and left the mill premises.

Judge Townsend made a personal appeal to the strikers to disperse, warning them that he would summon troops promptly if they did not accede to his plea. The strikers in unison yelled:

"Bring on your troops. We're ready."

Judge Townsend hurried to the centre of town, a mile from the mill, and summoned a company of engineers from Morganton and a troop of cavalry from Asheville. The Guardsmen were in control of the situation at 10 o'clock. They set up their tents near the mill and prepared to remain indefinitely.

Strike Leader Opposes Violence.

Alfred Hoffman, organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, who has directed the strikers since the walkout three weeks ago, issued a statement this afternoon expressing the hope that there will be no violence.

"I have advised the union workers against violence," he said, "and have instructed them to carry hymn-books and Bibles instead of blackjacks and clubs. We contemplate no immediate action of any kind."

A strike also is in progress at the Marion Manufacturing Company's mills, a mile from the Clinchfield Mill. Employes from the former plant were present this morning when the strikers at the latter prevented the gates from opening, but their attitude was passive.

Judge Townsend, who was sent here by Governor Gardner, spent the day in conference with local peace officers and National Guardsmen. He announced that Clinchfield Mill officials would be afforded all possible protection by the troops tomorrow when the second effort to open the gates and start the machinery will be made.

Yellow Bird Fliers in Turkey.

MacDonald and Dawes Talk Disarmament In Barrage of Smoke From Identical Pipes

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, Aug. 19.—In a little square-built stone house overlooking the Grampian Hills, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Ambassador Charles G. Dawes today resumed their "confidential" talks about navies, and, judging from the clouds of smoke issuing from respective and identically shaped pipes, there is a good prospect that over the grouse moors tomorrow they will be blowing up warships with the devastating accuracy of eighteen-inch guns.

Mr. MacDonald was seen to be smoking the under-slung pipe presented to him recently by General Dawes, and that is regarded as a good augury for peace and a bad one for navies. Actually he smoked more than usual, because he had the pipe going early this morning at the Elgin station while waiting for the train on which General Dawes was expected from London. The Ambassador arrived in the second section an hour later, and there were many fresh light-ups demanded by successive batteries of photographers encountered throughout the day.

Mr. MacDonald returned to his study at Lossiemouth during the wait and in the meantime his daughter Ishbel arrived and, finding his car gone, remarked, "There's a nice father for you!" The Premier, wearing a plus-fours tweed suit and a light cap, returned in time to welcome General Dawes with a smile and a hearty handshake, and the whole party, including Miss Ishbel, Dana Dawes, Mr. Mills and John Harris of New York, a personal friend of the General, lunched at a local hotel before proceeding to Lossiemouth.

The Prime Minister and the Ambassador spent the afternoon together at Mr. MacDonald's house, The Hillocks, and early in the evening General Dawes left for Blair Atholl, Perthshire, with Mr. Harris, who is the tenant of the shooting lodge of the Duke of Atholl there.

The Ambassador will remain in Blair Atholl, which is about ninety miles by road from Lossiemouth, until Friday, when he will proceed to Elgin to attend the ceremony of conferring the freedom of that town upon Mr. MacDonald. A place will be found for the Ambassador on the toast list at the luncheon which is to follow.

General Dawes's visit today created widespread interest and there was a steady stream of sightseers to The Hillocks, including many visitors who had arrived in automobiles from other Northern Scottish resorts.

Neither the Ambassador nor the Premier made any statement after the meeting, though it is believed to have centred around an important official communication General Dawes received from Washington during the week-end and transmitted to Mr. MacDonald by telephone.

ALL-METAL AIRSHIP, FIRST BUILT, FLIES

HELD ADVANCE OVER FABRIC

Craft Is 150 Feet Long and 50 in Diameter, Marking an Innovation in Dimensions—Uses Helium.

DETROIT, Aug. 19 (AP).—The first all-metal lighter-than-air flying machine, the ZMC-2, built for the navy, flew successfully here this afternoon in its first test.

With naval officials looking on and Captain William C. Kepner at the controls, the dirigible remained aloft for forty-nine minutes, carrying its pilot and four other passengers to an altitude of 1,000 feet. Further tests will be made here before the ship is sent to Lakehurst, N. J., for delivery to the navy.

An experimental ship and the first of its kind ever built, the ZMC-2 was built to test the designer's belief that an all-metal lighter-than-air craft is flightworthy, more durable and less subject to hazards than the ordinary fabric dirigible, such as the Graf Zeppelin and the navy's Los Angeles.

The ZMC-2 is 150 feet in length over all, and 50 feet in diameter. Such dimensions are an innovation in this type of aircraft, inasmuch as the length of dirigibles built heretofore have been seven times greater than the diameter. Using the non-inflammable helium, instead of hydrogen, as is used in the Graf Zeppelin, the new ship has a gas capacity of 200,000 cubic feet.

It is propelled by two Wright Whirlwind motors of 225 horsepower each. Builders of the craft expect it to develop a speed of 62 miles an hour, although a cruising radius of only 680 miles at 50 miles an hour is claimed for the dirigible.

Constructed by the Aircraft Development Corporation of Detroit, the ZMC-2 has cabin room for three passengers besides a crew of three. Although said to be too small to be of any great naval or military value, the ship, it is hoped by its builders and naval officials, will provide data for the construction of other ships of the same type with gas capacities from ten to twenty times greater.

The designers assert that the weight of the new metal ship compares favorably with the weights of dirigibles constructed from fabric.

GRAND DUCHESS MARIE COMES HERE TO LIVE

The Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, daughter of the Grand Duke Paul, arrived last night on the Cosulich liner Vulcania to make New York her home. She denied a report that she had signed a contract to be style adviser to a New York concern.

She said she believed the United States offered the greatest opportunities for women and that she had received several opportunities to go into business here, but had made no definite decision.

The Grand Duchess said she visited America for the first time last Fall and came back "with the greatest pleasure." She told of the embroidery factory which she operated for several years to help Russian exiles, and added that work in the factory had decreased measurably, partly because of changing styles and partly because embroidered dresses are too expensive.

The Count and Countess de Forceville and Mr. and Mrs. William M. Wright traveled with the Grand Duchess. Mrs. Wright sings on the concert stage as Miss Cobina Wright. Another passenger was Ganni Saduro, Italian composer, who came over to guide back to Italy a large delegation of "the sons of Italy," American citizens of Italian descent. They will sail Friday on the Vulcania.

HEADS ROYAL AIR FORCE.

Sir John Salmond Succeeds Sir Hugh Trenchard.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Famous as "Tails-Up" Salmond, for the inspiring Air Force dispatch he issued from the front during the darkest days of the great war, the Air Chief Marshal, Sir John M. Salmond, has been appointed chief of the air staff, the highest post in the British Royal Air Force.

He succeeds Air Marshal Sir Hugh Trenchard, who has been described as the "man who made the Royal Air Force."

LINDBERGH TO OPEN NEW AIR-MAIL ROUTE

Will Pilot First Plane From Miami to East Coast of South America September 20.

TRIP TO TAKE FOUR DAYS

Eighteen Ground Stations Over 2,680-Mile Course to Control Flight by Radio.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will open a new international air mail route extending down the east coast of South America from Miami, Fla., on Sept. 20, the Pan American Airways, to which he is technical adviser, announced yesterday.

Colonel Lindbergh said yesterday that he would make the flight because of his interest in air traffic between North and South America and that he would follow his usual practice of using the flight to obtain first hand information regarding the operating conditions, airport facilities and equipment along the route.

He is scheduled to leave Miami Sept. 20 on the first regular run of the West Indies Air Limited with a cargo of mail and passengers. He will arirve at San Juan, Porto Rico, the end of the present service, on Sept. 21. There he will transfer his mail load to a Sikorsky Wasp-powered amphibian and continue on through the Virgin Islands through Guadeloupe, Martinique, Port of Spain, and Georgetown to Paramaribo, arriving there on Sept. 24.

Route Is Surveyed.

The route has been carefully surveyed and an extensive system of radio control installed. Eighteen ground stations will be in touch with the plane as it flies, receiving and transmitting messages through a newly developed airplane set weighing twenty pounds. The set in the plane is said to have a range of 1,200 miles. Code will be used. Radio communication has been studied intensively by Colonel Lindbergh during the past year and he expressed the opinion yesterday that he thought the equipment on the new line was superior to any other he has thus far seen.

The line will establish regular four-day mail service over the 2,680-mile route. Steamer service requires nearly thirteen days. It will bring the total number of countries served by the Pan American Airways to twenty. The terrain to be covered included the Virgin Leeward and Windward islands, Trinidad, and British and Dutch Guiana. The company is operating under contracts with the United States Postoffice and further extensions of the line are projected along the east coast of South America.

The establishment of the service is an illustration of the strides made by the Postoffice Department and air transport in providing air mails between the United States and countries of the West Indies and Central and South America. Starting less than a year ago far behind the then operating lines of several European nations, the American lines now cover more distances than those of all others combined. By affiliations with other companies the Pan American Airways has established through services over nearly 9,700 miles and proposes to establish a complete network covering the entire southern half of the Western Hemisphere.

6,824 Passengers Carried.

During the first six months of operation this year the operating company carried 181,972 pounds of regular and special air mail between this country and the seventeen others to which service has been established. In addition 6,824 passengers were caried over parts of the airlines which have been equipped for such service. Passenger service will eventually be extended to include the entire system, it was said by Colonel Lindbergh. The lines now carrying passengers cover more than 3,500 miles through seven countries.

Pan American and its subsidiary, Pan American-Grace Airways, also operates a line from Miami through Colombia, Ecuador and Peru as far as Mollendo. This line is to be extended to Valparaiso, Chile, thence over the Andes to Buenos Aires and Montevideo, where it will connect with the new line along the east coast when that line is extended to Uruguay and the Argentine.

The terrain to be covered by these lines is a very difficult one in which to establish regular service, and constant surveys are being made to determine the best methods. When the network is complete it will be the largest air system thus far planned, and will bring nearly all South America within two weeks of New York.

Garvey for a Negro Religion.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 19.—Marcus Garvey's negro convention here discussed a proposal today for forming one religion for the negroes of the world. After the discussion, during which Garvey suggested it was right for the negro to believe in a black Saviour, a committee was appointed to devise means of establishing the proposed religion.

LOWELL WELCOMES SCIENTISTS GROUP

500 From Foreign Countries Gather at Harvard for Physiological Congress.

HEAR PROFESSOR KROGH

By JOSEPH SHAPLEN.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 19.—More than 1,000 scientists, 500 of them from thirty-five foreign countries, met tonight in Sanders Theatre, memorial hall of Harvard University, Cambridge, when the thirteenth international physiological congress was officially convoked with addresses of welcome by President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, Surgeon General Cummins of the United States Public Health Service and Lieut. Governor Youngman of Massachusetts.

A method of isolating a substance in liver that is a potent antidote against pernicious anemia was revealed among the papers submitted tonight. A group of Harvard scientists, Drs. Edwin J. Cohn, Thomas L. McKeepin and George R. Minot, seeking the specific substance in liver that helps anemic individuals, have extracted what they call an active fraction. It has been injected hypodermically with successful results.

It is believed to be a "nitrogenous base" and further research is under way to separate it into a more pure form.

Professor August Krogh of the University of Copenhagen, who won a Nobel prize for his work on the physiology of the capillaries, in an address on "The Progress of Physiology" detailed the advances made in this science and offered several suggestions for development.

"We are all more or less familiar with the enormous expansion of knowledge in the field of nutrition and in the study of hormones," he said. "Less spectacular, but I think equally important progress has been made in the physiology of muscle and nerve and in the problems of the circulation. We have become acquainted recently with the long-continued work of Pavlov and his school on the cerebral functions, and I think we can say that the investigation of the nervous system is making satisfactory progress in spite of its tremendous complication.

Physiology Growing Unwieldy.

"Physiology is growing unwieldy. It is impossible for any single human being to be familiar with modern physiology in all its branches in the sense in which the great teachers of twenty or more years ago were familiar with the physiology of their time. We have to face the splitting up of physiology into more or less separate and independent sciences, and we are confronted with the problem of finding the right lines of cleavage.

"The line of development which I think should be followed is to establish in one direction a branch of physiology which is much more intimately in contact with practical medicine and in the other direction a branch which is much more independent.

"It is the functional reaction of the organism to the attack of disease and to therapeutic measures which is, after all, the general problem," he said.

"A large and increasing proportion of physiological research is carried on in hospitals and laboratories by men and women who are at the same time practicing the art of healing. Much of this work is very valuable, but sometimes the outlook is rather narrow, and I believe that a great deal could be done by expert physiological direction and coordination."

To this end, Professor Krogh urged the establishment of special chairs and laboratories for the physiology of disease and morbid physiology, or experimental medicine. He also suggested the creation in science schools and in close cooperation with departments of zoology of chairs and laboratories for comparative physiology and zoophysiology.

"In my opinion a general physiology which can describe the essential characteristics of matter in the living state is an ideal to which we may hope that our successors may attain after many generations," Professor Krogh added. "and I want to emphasize that the route by which we can strive toward the ideal is by a study of the vital functions in all their aspects, throughout the myriads of organisms."

Following Professor Krogh's address, a reception was held for the delegates in Harvard College by the corporation of Harvard University.

To Hear Pavlov.

Tomorrow morning six sections of the congress will meet in the Harvard Medical School and in the auditoriums of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and the High School of Commerce. In the afternoon five sections will hear papers on various subjects and a sixth will see demonstrations in history and pathology.

Friday morning Ivan P. Pavlov, a world-famous physiologist, will present a paper on "Inhibition in the Normal Activity of the Cerebra! Hemispheres." In 1904 he received the Nobel Prize for his researches on the salivary glands. Previously he had made important discoveries concerning the nerves of the heart. He has successfully investigated the nature of sleep and has given a rational explanation of neurasthenia, hysteria, insanity and temperament.

Two former presidents of the congress, Leon Fredericq, professor emeritus of the Institute de Physiologie at the University of Liege, Belgium, and Johan E. Johansson, Professor of Physiology and director of the physiological laboratory at the Karolinska Institute at Stockholm, are on hand.

RESUMES PLANE SERVICE.

Ile de France Again Sends Mail Ahead by Aircraft.

When the French liner Ile de France arrives this morning from Havre via Plymouth she will resume her ship-to-shore service, sending a plane in advance with mail, including photographs and films. The plane, a Cams 37 amphibian, will be piloted by M. Domergue.

The Ile de France is due at Quarantine at 8 A. M. The plane will leave her an hour earlier and go direct to the French Line pier at the foot of West Fifteenth Street.

EMPRINGHAM ON WAY TO FACE CHARGES

Threatened by Criminal and Church Actions and Civil Suit Over Apartment.

When Dr. James Empringham returns to New York he will face the threat of criminal and civil procedure in the courts as well as the possibility of action against him by the Protestant Episcopal Diocese. The lay authorities are much more likely to be the first to interview him, it was indicated yesterday.

The law firm of Edison & Traub, 12 East Forty-first Street, which disclosed that it was acting for the apartment house at 375 West End Avenue in a claim for $2,083 against Dr. Empringham, made known that it would press suit upon his first appearance in the city. A representative of the firm said the suit involved a lease which he took upon an apartment.

In a letter sent from "general delivery, Los Angeles," on April 8, the clergyman, according to the lawyers, wrote that he had never moved into the apartment and that he had lost his position and everything he had in the world "very unexpectedly." He added that he did not expect to return to New York and observed, without explanation, that "the tragedy was beyond my control."

Deputy Attorney General Sol Ullman also expressed determination to act when Dr. Empringham returns. He has complaints turned over to him by the State Board of Medical Examiners charging that the clergyman practiced medicine without a license in his capacity as director of the defunct Health Education Society, a clinic founded by the Church Temperance Society of which Dr. Empringham was general superintendent.

Although they have never announced that they intended bringing any formal charges against Dr. Empringham the authorities in the Protestant Episcopal dioceses are known to have looked askance at his activities both at the health clinic and in behalf of modification of the Volstead act. There was no statement forthcoming yesterday at the office of Bishop William T. Manning, who is out of town. Since he and other colleagues will not return until some time in September there will be no precipitate move even if Dr. Empringham returns.

Mrs. Vasiloff Saffron, reported to have just married Dr. Empringham after his Reno divorce, was not known at the health clinic, Dr. J. J. Van Horn, its former medical director, said last night. He said that he had seen the clergyman in company with his former wife several times and once in 1928 had visited them and their five children at their home. She would drop in at the clinic occasionally, he added.

FONTANA, Cal., Aug. 19. (AP).—Simultaneously with the announcement here that Dr. James Empringham had departed for New York came the news that he had been married at Ensenada, Mexico, last June 15, two weeks after he had obtained a divorce in Reno from his first wife. His second wife formerly was Mrs. Vasiloff Saffron of New York, who is the mother of an 18-year-old daughter.

"Probably I will be accused by the doctor's first wife," Mrs. Empringham said, "of breaking up her home, but the fact is he had not lived with his first wife for fifteen years."

Mrs. Vasiloff Saffron Empringham, in announcing that her husband had left for the East, said that he departed by train Saturday night. He decided to "return and clear the matter up," she said, after he had consulted a lawyer in San Bernardino, Cal.

NEW WARRANT ISSUED IN JERSEY LOAN CASES

Hugh Achton Accused in Newark and Elizabeth Inquiry Into Alleged Swindles.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 19.—Local police and Assistant Attorney General Richard C. Plumer began investigations today of the alleged fraudulent activities of the Manhattan Jersey Mortgage Corporation here. At the same time a warrant was issued for the arrest of Hugh Achton of Avenal, N. J., said to be the company's president. Charles P. Lyman, another official, was arrested here last Friday when the company's offices were raided.

The local company and the Aetna Bond and Mortgage Company of Newark are said by the police, who raided the Aetna company's office on Saturday and arrested two officers, to have swindled prominent New Jersey residents out of thousands of dollars by accepting advance fees for loans and mortgages on which they failed to make good. William W. Wetmore and Henry L. Weinstein, president and treasurer of the Newark firm, were the men arrested.

Lyman was arraigned in Elizabeth Police Court first on a charge made by Jacob S. Hyman that he had been defrauded of $230 on June 22. After being released in $1,000 bail for a hearing next Saturday Lyman was taken to Newark, where he was accused by David Quint, Louis A. Feldman and Jacob Kushner of defrauding them of $2,200 on July 17. He was released in $5,000 bail on their charge. Wetmore and Weinstein are out on $5,000 bail each.

The books of the Elizabeth company contained, according to police, the names of several prominent local lawyers and business men. The police are trying to determine whether these names were used as "bait" to lure prospective victims or whether the men they represented actually did business with the company. Mr. Plumer will investigate the stock-selling activities of the company.

GIRL RUNAWAY IS FREED.

Miss Lawless Quits Atlantic City Jail When Mother Pays Hotels.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 19.—Tired and a little exasperated over her discovery that living in a jail cell was not the "glorious experiment" she had anticipated, Miss Elizabeth Barbara Lawless, 16 years old, of Byrn Mawr, Pa., was released from the Atlantic City jail tonight in the custody of her mother after seventy-two hours' imprisonment on charges of defrauding hotels in Atlantic City and Ocean City of about $200.

The release of the girl came after her mother, Mrs. Charles J. Lawless of Bryn Mawr, had the charges against her daughter dismissed by making good the hotel bills. Mrs. Lawless said the Ambassador Hotel here $120 for one week's board and room for her daughter and paid a second bill at Ocean City to the Scarboro Hotel, where her daughter had spent a part of a runaway vacation.

SNOWDEN ATTACKED BY FRENCH EDITOR

Writer Says He Is Same Type of Englishman That Caused Joan of Arc's Death.

CALLS HIM A DOCTRINAIRE

Thinks British Are Jealous of France's Employment—Press Urges Briand's Return.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—Of all the bitter attacks launched in France against Philip Snowden since the beginning of The Hague conversations, perhaps the bitterest of all was printed this morning in the Petit Parisien under the signature of no less a personage than Lucien Romier, distinguished political observer and for many years editor-in-chief of Le Figaro.

In a lengthy article devoted largely to dissection of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's personality, M. Romier proceeds to sum up the man in this manner:

"He is a type of Englishman that, happily, is rather rare, but who nevertheless appears now and again and who caused Joan of Arc to be burned at the stake, Marie Stuart to be beheaded, and Napoleon to be exiled."

Mr. Snowden, M. Romier believes, belongs to the category of Englishmen who are not numerous but who are stubborn and dangerous and giving the impression of being dogmatic in a country where the doctrinaire is not popular, who fail to understand the necessity of maintaining, in the interest of peace, a close alliance between France and Britain, the two great powers of Europe, and therefore most interested in securing the status quo in the world.

"One evening in the House of Commons," he writes, "I heard Mr. Snowden make one of his nervous attacks against the Baldwin Government, brilliantly thrashing the injustice of which he was convinced.

Like Historical Characters.

"I had the impression of the prosecutor of other days seeking the death penalty for the sake of his own personal success, regardless of circumstances, of humanity, of justice and less of the figure of the accused. The English friend who accompanied me smiled and said, 'He is a sick man who revenges himself with his talents. In private life he is a man full of spirit and courtesy.'

"A few moments later we met Mr. Snowden as he painfully walked up the stairway. I verified all that had been said about his private character but, seen at close range, his personality did not seem the less disturbing, with his slow, painful but inflexible movements, his emaciated face, his look of disdain and egotism.

"After all, what does all this hubbub signify? The English have not just discovered us nor we the English. The two peoples know each other; know each other's qualities as well as faults. They know very well the peril of friendship and what must be done."

Mr. Snowden, M. Romier thinks, would like to see the return of what he pleases to term the "spirit of boom, boom," in international conferences, and he came to The Hague with that idea in mind.

It is inaccurate to say that the Chancellor of the Exchequer is not a representative of Britain, M. Romier adds, for he does speak for a large class of British workmen whose jealousy has been keenly aroused by the spectacle of France with no unemployment.

Sees British as Jealous.

"It is that which has never ceased to provoke ill humor in England for the last ten years. They seem to think that he misfortunes they have suffered have come from other peoples. The English, long privileged people, more than any other nation, have indulged this manie. The Conservatives in recent years, seem to have realized that profound work is necessary to re-establish the economic life of the country. The Laborites, however, are falling back upon the hobby horse of David Lloyd George and are seeking the prestige of other places.

"It is a stagnate policy. It will obstruct the whole world. But above all else, it will prove unfortunate for England and especially for the Laborites themselves."

From many sides, Premier Briand is being urged to bring the Hague negotiations to an end, not to linger longer with no apparent signs of agreement. The new experts' committee is interpreted here as merely prolonging the agony to play into the hands of both the British and the Germans.

"Everything weighed, the time has certainly arrived to interrupt the conference," writes Pertinax in the Echo de Paris. "M. Briand was mistaken to have gone to The Hague without obtaining the approval of the British to the Young plan, but, regrettable as this is, it should not prevent us from going home at once."

Unconfirmed reports from The Hague that the four powers have agreed that the seat of the International Bank should be in London are printed here "with all reserve."

It is strongly doubted that a concession of such importance would have been made short of a general understanding with Mr. Snowden on the Young plan itself.

Cars Found at Last to Carry Giraffes Without Bumping Their Heads at Tunnels

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 19.—A new use has been found for the huge underslung freight cars used by the General Electric Company here to transport the largest type electric transformers. Officials of the Boston & Maine Railroad have discovered that they will make excellent "giraffe cars."

When the railroad company received an order to take two giraffes from Nashua, N. H., to Detroit, Mich., they were much troubled. If the ordinary type open car were used a giraffe, wishing to view the country as he rode along, might inadvertently stick his head in the way of a tunnel or overhead crossing and be found a head shorter. The anxiety of the railroad officials was not lessened when, after contracts had been completed, they were informed that they would be liable for injuries to the animals.

Then to the front stepped a youthful employe of the railroad who called attention to the underslung cars used by the General Electric Company. Measurements were taken and found satisfactory, and Detroit will receive its giraffes with every inch of neck intact, for the company graciously made the loan of the special cars.

The cars are so constructed that they barely clear the roadbed, being some two feet lower than the average car. The two feet in difference is all that was necessary to safeguard the giraffes for the edification of the Detroit populace.

BERLIN SEES SNOWDEN AS HOLDING ADVANTAGE

But Germans Are Not Clear on Whether or Not He Is Willing to Accept Compromise.

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—The official opinion here is that Philip Snowden has gained a decided advantage at The Hague since the financial experts of England, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan are at last gathered at the same table to consider the possibility of making still further concessions to Britain. But it is still not clear to Germans whether this really means that Mr. Snowden is ready to accept a compromise or whether he is only seeking another opportunity to drive it home that England is only getting 20 and not 80 per cent of her reparations demands.

Anyhow, it is considered that this compromise committee that is now to reconsider the Young plan is exactly what the Chancellor of the Exchequer demanded in these last twelve days and what the other creditor nations so obstinately refused him.

But from the beginning Mr. Snowden's position has been so strong he could afford to look upon the attitude of the other powers with equanimity.

The Germans hope that now serious work is to be started, that the tug of war game will be abandoned, even for a steady and gradual retreat of the four powers.

A portion of the press expresses the opinion that Mr. Snowden does not take the present committee seriously but is only seeking to prepare for the next English elections, which according to The Hague rumors, may take place soon.

Much importance is attached to this afternoon's conference of Premier Briand and Foreign Minister Stresemann in that it is believed they may decide on the evacuation of the Rhineland plans.

REPORT FRANCE SEEKS DO-X AS REPARATIONS

Air Ministry Officials Visitors at Friedrichshafen, Where Flying Boat Is Berthed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 19.—The presence here of representatives of the French Air Ministry has given rise to a rumor that the French Government is negotiating the purchase of the giant flying boat, the Do-X, on its reparations account. The Dornier people, its builders, decline to discuss the matter beyond explaining that the Do-X already belongs to the German Ministry of Transportation, for which it was built.

However, the giant seaplane has not yet been officially accepted by anyone and it will probably be taken over this week after a press trial flight by the Lufthansa, which organization, it is believed, will operate it for the German Government, first over Baltic Sea routes and later on flights to the Azores.

RHINE EVACUATION BY BRITAIN SOON

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

ments. Whether he is actuated by the big private banks of London, which have never been enthusiastic about the proposal, or whether he is putting forward a Socialist attack on the institution, which might be said to promise to represent international finance, he has not said. But, in any event, he is expected to make a drive against the bank.

And even before getting that far the conference must, even if it finds 45,000,000 marks annually for Mr. Snowden, deal with his demand for 80,000,000 marks annually of unconditional German payments and his demand for a revision of the Young plan scheme for payments in kind.

The committee of experts, named yesterday to accommodate the British and French estimates on the monetary value of the offer made by the English on Friday by the four other creditor powers, will meet all day and will make a report tomorrow. The French considered that the offer met 80 per cent of the British demands, while Mr. Snowden figured 20 per cent.

It is understood that the experts of all the creditor nations, including the English, will find the offer meets 40 per cent of the British demands. Mr. Snowden makes no secret of the fact that he will not accept 40 per cent, and so it is hard to see how the experts' efforts will help the situation greatly. It will then be again a question tomorrow of how the other creditor powers will cut their parts and further meet Mr. Snowden.

Delegates Split on Adjournment.

Professional diplomats, seeing the attack by the English on the whole Young plan, advocate adjourning the conference quickly, but other delegates, especially the financial leaders, favor buying Mr. Snowden off in order to try to get the Young plan in operation.

It is not easy to predict what will happen. Indeed, the situation seems to depend on M. Briand.

The long dispute about whose fault it is that M. Briand and Mr. Snowden have not met may come to an end tomorrow when the two may lunch together as guests of the Dutch Foreign Minister. Neither has felt like calling on the other and actually, since the conference began, the leaders of the two sides in the bitter dispute have not spoken personally.

M. Briand wishes to get away from The Hague next Saturday in order to have a few days' rest before going to Geneva, where Mr. MacDonald promises to start interesting debates. However, doubtless the French Premier would remain a few days longer if it seemed to serve any good purpose.

At any rate, he intends to meet Mr MacDonald at Geneva on Aug. 31. He probably hopes that in talks with Mr. MacDonald he can get the Young plan negotiations on a better basis than it is in this saddest of all international conferences held since the end of the World War. For the best that can come out of this meeting cannot be happy results.

Belgium Refuses to Yield.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 19 (AP).—Categorical denial was made in authoritative quarters today that Belgium would yield any part whatever of the share of reparations due her under the Young plan.

SKIPPERS BANKED IT HERE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—Now that France has ratified her war debt agreement with the United States, citizens of France are wondering what chances they have of collecting old debts owed to them by the United States.

Chief among these is the sum of $226,000 which the erudite librarian of the Marseilles Chamber of Commerce, Joseph Fournier, has discovered was deposited for safekeeping with the United States Treasury during the Revolutionary War by Marseillaise sea captains in American waters.

It was when naval warfare with England made navigation hazardous in waters near the North American coast. The French sea captains then in America transacted all their commerce in cash and were obliged to keep large sums of money aboard their ships. Fearing they would be stopped and looted on the return voyage, the captains from Marseilles decided they would pool their gold and leave it in care of the American government, and it was thus that boxes containing nearly 500,000 francs worth of gold at the exchange rate of that time were entrusted to the United States Treasury, according to the documents discovered by M. Fournier.

Several attempts were made to recover the sum to no avail after the United States Government was recognized by France. In 1793 official negotiations resulted in the United States paying interest, but all subsequent attempts to collect the money have been unsuccessful.

The Marseilles Chamber of Commerce is now considering renewing the attempt, especially in view of the fact that the interest upon the sum since 1793 could now be estimated at a tidy figure.

LANES CUT CROSSING PERIL.

Novel Safety Method Used on Highway at Woodbridge, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Aug. 9.—Elimination of danger of accident at the intersection here of two of New Jersey's main highways is thought to have been achieved by engineers of the State Highway Commission by the construction of a viaduct coupled with a novel system of eight traffic lanes. By means of these lanes cars may pass from either highway to the other without making a left turn or cutting across a stream of traffic.

The crossing will be open to the public within a few weeks. The intersecting routes are 4 and 25. The first is the shore road from Elizabeth to Atlantic City, while route 25 is the designation given to the new State road from the Holland Tunnel to Trenton and Philadelphia.

FACTIONS PREPARE FOR AUSTRIAN COUP

With Heimwehr Still Arming, Socialists Call Workers for General Defense.

GOVERNMENT EVADES ISSUE

Three Dead After Battle at St. Lorenzen, With 50 Heimwehr Among 57 Wounded.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 19.—Today's developments in the situation created by yesterday's conflict between the Fascist Heimwehr and Socialist forces in the little Styrian village of Saint Lorenzen leave the government playing an ever weaker rôle and the initiative resting more and more with the leaders of the respective parties.

After the issue of an evasive government statement whose most significant feature was the absence of any prohibition of future armed demonstrations, the Socialists tonight officially called on "the workers of Austria" to prepare themselves to participate in a general defense movement and allow nothing to intimidate them.

Warnings of the danger of a putsch having gone unheeded, continues the statement, the putsch has now come within measurable distance and the workers of Austria are therefore forced to proclaim the necessity of self-defense.

Heimwehr Still Defiant.

Although they issued no official statement today, Heimwehr quarters continued to breath defiance and were eagerly discussing and reiterating the bitter attack on Chancellor Von Streeruwitz made in a speech yesterday in Linz by Dr. Steidle, chief of the Heimwehr forces. Dr. Steidle characterized the Chancellor's recent criticism of the Heimwehr as a nuisance which must cease. Dr. Stumpf, the local Governor of Tyrol, who presided, went Dr. Steidle one better when he declared that he regarded the Heimwehr as an integral part of the State authority.

According to the government account of yesterday's fighting, however, the Heimwehr have little cause to congratulate themselves on its result, since of the fifty-seven wounded, fifty are Heimwehr men. This apparently is explained by the fact that the Socialists assembled for their meeting, as is their practice, armed with pistols, with which they did much damage before the Heimwehr were able to retaliate with rifles and a machine gun.

There was intense excitement among the working population of Vienna when it read accounts of the fighting this morning and a general strike was immediately suggested, but it was called off on the intervention of Socialist party leaders. Communist attempts to engineer a general strike also proved unsuccessful and five were arrested tonight for carrying on such propaganda.

St. Lorenzen Quiet Again.

The little village of St. Lorenzen, the scene of yesterday's fighting, was quiet today but the church square, where the heaviest encounter took place, was still a picture of desolation. Walls of houses are punctured with bullet holes; windows are broken, signs shot to pieces, fences knocked down and the ground still covered with broken bottles, paving stones, cartridge cases and bloodstains.

Tourists and vacationists left the district in great haste today. Early this morning a court of inquiry made its appearance and began an investigation, in the course of which 200 witnesses will be heard.

In the meantime order is being guaranteed by the presence of a heavily strengthened force of gendarmerie.

A resolution passed after hours of sitting of the national delegates of the party, characterized by heated debate, reads:

"The Socialist Party for years has been warning against the Putsch attempts of an irresponsible minority which would bring the country to the verge of civil war. Our voice has been unheeded when we have prophesied this overwhelming disaster and now the Putsch has come within a measurable distance.

"The workers of Austria, therefore, are forced to proclaim the necessity of self-defense to prevent the overthrow of the workers and the democratic republic by a minority of irresponsible adventurers.

"The working class of Austria wishes to settle its differences by peaceful means, but should a Putsch by attempted, they will defend themselves and their republic with every available means.

Says Strength Is in Union.

"The Socialist party of Austria considers that the strength of the Austrian proletariat lies not in isolated actions but in united and carefully prepared resistance of the whole body of workers and in the strength of the Republican Schutzbund.

"The workers are called to prepare themselves to participate in this general defense movement and allow nothing to intimidate them."

The official government statement issued tonight is a vague and evasive document. It states that after the Socialist meeting had been announced to take place Sunday in St. Lorenz, the Heimwehr also arranged a meeting there, but were induced to agree to hold it elsewhere.

Later, however, "because they declared they have been insulted by an article published by the Graz Socialist newspaper Arbeiterwille," the Himfnr occupied what was to have been the Socialist meting place. The Socialists then transferred their meeting to ther square in front of the church. A representative of the district gendarmerie informed them that no meeting had been sanctioned to take place in that particular spot.

"At this moment," says the statement "it came to a hand to hand fight between both parties, during which stones were thrown and pistols shots fired."

It is explained that owing to the fact that they had not been concentrated in the church square, the Gendarmerie were not present in sufficient strength to prevent a clash but as soon as reinforcements had been summoned they restored order.

Of the fifty-seven wounded, it is stated that four are in danger of death, two of whom belong to each party. There are thirty seriously wounded, among them twenty-eight Heimwehr members and two of the Schutzbund, and twenty-two slightly wounded, of whom twenty are of the Heimwehr and two of the Schutzbund.

It was announced that Chancellor Streeruwitz had conferred with the provincial authorities, Viennese police authorities and Vice Chancellor Vincent Tschumy concerning "taking effective measures to prevent the repetition of similar conflicts. In these conferences Dr. Buresch, Governor of Lower Austria participated. Burgomaster Seitz of Vienna has interrupted his holidays to return to Vienna."

SOVIET GROWS ANGRY ON CHINESE CLASHES

War Spirit Evident in Moscow as Young Pioneers Hold Celebration.

SERIOUS ATTACK REPORTED

By WALTER DURANTY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 18.—The most serious conflict yet announced on the Siberian frontier occurred at 8 o'clock last night, Vladivostok time, when a White Russian and Chinese guerilla force attacked the Soviet post, kilometers inside Soviet territory, protecting the route to the important junction of Nikolsk-Ussurinsk. Reinforcements repelled the attack after a struggle and drove back the invaders across the border.

The fact that this news was actually published in late editions of Isvestia Pravda—an unparalleled example of celerity for the Soviet press, even allowing six hours' difference in time—emphasizes its gravity at the present juncture, more particularly because in Moscow today was held the celebration of the Communist "Young Pioneers'" rally—there are 2,000,000 members in Russia between the ages of 10 and 14—which superficially at least, looks more like a military movement than anything save the regular army itself.

This superficial impression is borne out by slogans, banners and statements of Soviet leaders. Across the whole front of the Grand Opera House runs a banner reading, "The rally is a war test of the Communist education of children."

Vice-Commissar of War Unschlicht writes in Pravda, "In pioneer organizations which have military and physical culture sections must be forged the future soldiers of the Red army," and "Militarization of youth must be secured by competent leaders."

It is only fair to add, however, that Unschlicht and others stress defense aims of such militarization, "to protect the Socialist fatherland against capitalist attack."

The army newspaper Red Star festures a significant letter from one of the Isvestia typesetters reading, "As the paper goes to the press with news of the new aggression of Chinese militarists upon the Soviets, I beg the Red Star to facilitate my inclusion in the Red Army as a volunteer. (Signed) F. A. Smirnof."

This is obviously but the first drop of a new wave of popular indignation which the government is finding it increasingly difficult to restrain. In some quarters it has been suggested that a categorical protest be addressed to Nanking soon. Others believe that Japanese influence may yet induce the Chinese to accept the Soviet terms for negotiation.

DR. WU NOTIFIES US OF RUSSIAN INVASIONS

Minister Tells State Department China Is Concentrating 60,000 Troops Along Railway.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The first official information of the crossing of the Manchurian border by Soviet troops was transmitted to the State Department today by George C. Hanson, American Consul at Harbin.

Mr. Hanson cabled that small Soviet raiding parties had clashed with Chinese troops on Chinese territory, and added that Chinese casualties up to the time his message was filed were estimated at about 200. About the same time a cablegram was also received from M. S. Myers, American Consul at Mukden. This message was dated Aug. 17, and was transmitted through the United States Legation at Peking.

Mr. Myers's message was to the effect that an official telegram from Tsitsihar, received by the Chinese Government on Saturday afternoon, reported that 10,000 Soviet troops, with thirty field pieces and machine guns, crossed the border and attacked between Manchulia and Dalainor. The report states that fifty Chinese soldiers were killed. Consul Myers adds that a semi-official source states that Mukden is sending 40,000 troops north, half to the western and half to the eastern border.

Dr. C. C. Wu, Chinese Minister here, called at the State Department this afternoon and spent more than half an hour with Nelson T. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Far Eastern affairs.

Dr. Wu said he had informed the department that China was concentrating 60,000 Chinese troops along the Chinese Eastern Railway for the purpose of protecting the line against attack, and that Chinese territory had been violated by Soviet Russian troops.

Dr. Wu said he had not attempted to deduce from this fact any violation of the Kellogg pact on the part of Russia, first because his information was not sufficiently definite as to the extent of the violation, and second because he had not seen fit to determine what degree of invasion was necessary to constitute violation of the Kellogg pact.

Following his conference with Assistant Secretary Johnson, Dr. Wu said that China had made three moves of a conciliatory nature before the situation reached the existing critical stage.

Of the 12,000 Russians originally employed by the railroad, there are still 8,000 on the payrolls, said Dr. Wu.

Asked how many of them are "Bolsheviki," he replied that he did not know.

The Chinese Minister was careful to declare that he had not received any instructions from his government to report to this government alleged Russian violations of the Kellogg pact.

However, he added, he has received a note for transmission to this government which is now being transcribed. It is said to be a résumé of the events leading up to the present crisis. Identical notes, it is understood, will be handed to other governments by the Chinese Ministers to those governments.

Dr. Wu expects to leave Washington on Friday for Geneva, where he will head the Chinese delegations to the meetings of the Assembly of the League of Nations.

Television Transmits British Talking Film; Actor's Voice Is Clearer Than in Theatre

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—A talking film was transmitted by television in London today and received with a substantial measure of success by the ordinary appartus used for the reception of television images.

The experiments were made by the Baird Television Development Company with a short talk by George Robey, the British vaudeville star. The voice transmission was clearer than usual in the cinema and the synchronized pictures were equal to the standard thus far attained in the development of television.

At present the limitations are that the subjects must be suitable for the purpose, such as head and shoulder representations. Larger subjects would be lacking in detail.

In adopting the modern form talking film to television, visual effects are transmitted in the ordinary television manner by scanning the image at the transmitting end by means of a disc perforated with a spiral sereis of holes and at the receiving station by using a similar disc in conjunction with a neon lamp to reconstruct the images.

The sound effects are picked up from the marginal record on the film as is the practice with standard talking pictures and these sounds are broadcast simultaneously with the film.

WANTS PANAMA CANAL INTERNATIONALIZED

Senora Portal, Peruvian Agitator, Is in Colombia to Form New Unit of Revolutionary Group.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CARTAGENA, Colombia, Aug. 19.—Internationalization of the Panama Canal is one of the objects of the American Popular Revolutionary Alliance, according to an interview published in El Porvenir of Barranquilla with Señora Magdo Portal, Peruvian agitator, who was expelled from her own country and recently arrived in Colombia.

Señora Portal asserted, according to the El Porvenir interview, that she is in Colombia for the purpose of organizing a branch of her organization, generally known as "Group Hapra," which was founded in 1924 and now has branches in Paris, London, Buenos Aires, Chili, Peru, Cuba, Porto Rico and San Domingo.

She outlined a program for joint action against imperialism through a union of Indo-Latin countries with the Americas, nationalization of lands and industries, internationalization of the Panama Canal and "solidarity with all peoples and classes that are oppressed in the world." Señora Portal, who is known in Latin America as a poet and writer, stated that she preferred to be known as a revolutionary.

"Foreign capital," she says, "is what constitutes imperialism. It happens that our principal fight is against Yankee imperialism. Only the union of all Latin-American peoples will guarantee our emancipation from this imperialism."

She believes that internationalization of the Canal would prevent war between the United States and England, which, in her opinion, is otherwise likely soon.

Greek Ship Aground in Parana.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Greek freighter Antonis G. Lemos, bound for Europe from Rosario with a cargo of cereals, went aground yesterday in the Parana River because of steering difficulties. Her hull was seriously damaged.

China to Censor Mail in Russian.

All Russian mail referring to political and military subjects will be detained.

Arnaldo Lindi, Singer, Received Mexican Decree, Attorney Says.

PARIS, Aug. 19 (AP).—An attorney disclosed today that Arnaldo Lindi of the Chicago Civic Opera Company had obtained a Mexican divorce by mail.

The attorney, who has specialized in Mexican divorce practice, said the suit was filed with him two months ago by the husband and the entire proceedings conducted by mail. The divorce was granted on the grounds of incompatibility.

The two were married in 1916. Mme. Lindi was formerly Adella Johnson of Boston, Mass. There is one child, Arthur, aged 11. Mr. Lindi is now in Milan on a vacation and his former wife is in Boston.

The note concluded with:

"Already taking all measures to prevent Red troops from crossing the frontier, in even isolated cases, the Soviet Government believes Chinese authorities must disarm White detachments and check all raids on Soviet territory by Chinese units. Otherwise, further complications, caused by new attacks on Soviet territory, will fall entirely on the Nanking and Mukden governments."

The official Tass News Agency tonight reported that Soviet sources in Harbin quoted Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang as declaring that Chinese authorities had decided to resort to more energetic and drastic methods than imprisonment and deportation of Soviet citizens. A second concentration camp for the arrested was being rapidly filled and charges of neglect and abuse were reiterated.

Tass also said that the closing of the Manchurian branch of the Far Eastern Bank had caused excitement among Chinese business men. These had decided to ask for six months' moratorium, owing to the disastrous effect on trade of the seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Town Fiercely Defended.

MUKDEN, Aug. 19 (AP).—Chinese sources today told of a fierce struggle for possession of the village of Tungningsien, in which the settlement changed hands several times, but was finally retained by the Chinese.

Russian cavalry from Nikolsk, about fifty miles north of Vladivostok, was said to have dashed across the border and fallen upon the Chinese defenders. The latter were forced back, but during the succeeding violent fighting slowly won their way back.

Announcement was made tonight that tanks, airplanes and searchlights were being sent from here to "the front."

Red Army Still Distant.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The Shanghai correspondent of The London Times reports that should Russia's "intimadating attacks," as they are described by well informed quarters in Shanghai, fail to induce the Chinese into negotiating on Russian terms, as in the present mood Nanking is not likely to do, it is considered probable that Russia will resort to stronger measures.

However, he declares, immediate action is not likely as the bulk of the Soviet forces are believed to be no nearer than Irkutsk, which is about 700 miles west of Manchuria.

One crack division, known as the Pacific army, is disposed around Vladivostok, and it would be capable of action, the correspondent believes, on a large scale if necessary. Between the opposing forces is a "no man's land," about a mile wide in some places and much more in others.

The Chinese troop movements are much hampered by the refusal of the Japanese of their transport by the South Manchurian Railway. This, in the case of 60,000 troops reported to be ordered north from Peking to the Mukden Railway, means a long and circuitous journey over a poorly equipped line, and it is possible that it will be weeks before they are able to reach the Chinese Eastern Railway.

The London Times correspondent reports that the raid by 700 Russian cavalry at Dalainor on Friday is confirmed. The fighting lasted two hours, after which the Russians withdrew.

Military Council Summoned.

TOKIO, Aug. 19 (AP).—Rengo News Agency dispatches from Manchuli today said the first of the large Chinese reinforcements are being rushed to the Western Manchurian border equipped with machine guns and field guns.

A Mukden dispatch to the same agency said that Governor Chang Hsueh-Liang had appointed General Wang Shu-Chang commander of the Manchurian forces at present en route to the Siberian border and had summoned a military council to meet at Mukden.

The Manchuli report said that calm had been restored in that area after the Soviet raid on Dalainor, although the town itself was deserted and Manchuli was in panic after the clash. Chinese officials arrested twelve Soviet workmen and sent them to Harbin.

A Harbin dispatch said that the telegraph lines to Pogranichnaya had been cut and accused Russians of sabotage.

Chinese Fire on Red Monitor.

BLAGOVESHCHENSK, Siberia, Aug. 19 (AP).—Chinese troops, supported by White Guard detachments, yesterday fired on a Soviet monitor on the Amur River, about ninety-five miles northwest of this city. The Chinese also fired on civilians.

While the engagement was in progress, armed bands of Chinese fired on Soviet troops and civilians in the vicinity of Lake Hanka, near the villages of Grodenko and Poltavsk. The Red army resisted the attack energetically.

The Amur River forms the northern boundary between Manchuria and Siberia. Lake Hanka is on the east and its northern shore is also an international boundary between China and Russia, although the larger part of the lake is in Russian territory.

Nanking Ready to Resist.

NANKING, Aug. 19 (AP).—Foreign Minister C. T. Wang today declared in a speech that the government was ready to send further reinforcements to Manchuria if the 60,000 troops already dispatched were insufficient to meet the situation.

It was the aim of the Nationalist Government, he explained, to maintain peace and order and to prevent Soviet troops from pillaging Chinese border towns.

Russians Seize Chinese.

Dispatches from Harbin, relayed by the Kuomin News Agency yesterday, according to The Associated Press, said that more than 1,000 Chinese in the Russian Maritime Provinces of Siberia had been forcibly pressed into service to dig trenches and assist in other military operations.

WINTER TAKES OVER LAGUARDIA CAMPAIGN

COUNTS ON FULL SUPPORT

Convinced That Conservative Republicans Will Back Designee for Mayor.

WON'T HAMPER BENNETT

Says Candidate Will Be Welcome to Speak in Clubhouse in Fifteenth District.

Keyes Winter, Republican leader of the Fifteenth Manhattan Assembly District, took charge yesterday as campaign manager for Representative LaGuardia, Republican designee for Mayor, at the latter's headquarters in the Cadillac Hotel.

Mr. Winter, whose district is the so-called "silk stocking" district and the home of Mrs. Ruth B. Pratt, who was a candidate for the organization designation against Mr. LaGuardia, said he believed Mr. LaGuardia would have the solid support of conservative Republicans in both the primary and general election.

"The Republicans in my district are among the most conservative in the city," he said in reply to a question as to whether the conservatives would support Mr. LaGuardia. "He will get 100 per cent support there."

Questioned as to whether or not William M. Bennett, dry candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor, would be permitted to speak in the party clubhouse, Mr. Winter replied that he believed this was a matter for the decision of each district leader.

"Speaking as the leader of the fifteenth district, Mr. Bennett will be welcome in our clubhouse if he wishes to speak there," he said. "Certainly there will be no attempt from headquarters to prevent him from speaking in any clubhouse."

Plans Wide Organization.

Mr. Winter said he expected to be busy for the next few days getting together a campaign organization. He said that there would be a campaign manager for the city designees in each borough and probably campaign headquarters in each. Liberal use will be made of the radio. Irwin Kurtz, designee for City Court Justice, who has been chairman of the speakers' bureau and the radio bureau, will be released for the purpose of campaigning. Paul T. Zitelman, who has been Mr. Kurtz's assistant, will be in charge of these bureaus.

Mr. Winter declared that Mr. LaGuardia would receive the support of the Republican organizations throughout the city as he was the designee of the organization. "I know he will get 100 per cent organization support in my district," he said. "I believe he will get the same solid support in other districts."

Mr. LaGuardia declined to discuss Mr. Bennett's candidacy. "I do not propose to enter into any controversy with Mr. Bennett until after he has filed his petition for the nomination," Mr. LaGuardia said.

Informed that Mr. Bennett had pledged himself to abide by the result of the primary and had suggested that Mr. LaGuardia be asked to do the same, the latter said:

"If any one enters a primary it goes without saying that he should abide by the result."

Mrs. LaGuardia to Help.

Mr. LaGuardia disclosed that Mrs. LaGuardia and former Representative Isaac Siegel had undertaken to relieve him of the responsibility of looking after the interests of his Congressional district constituents during the Mayoralty campaign. It has been Mr. LaGuardia's custom, when in the city, to set apart each Monday evening for conferences with his constituents. Mrs. LaGuardia, who is assisting her husband during the campaign, will perform this function with Mr. Siegel during the next three months.

Tonight Mr. LaGuardia will attend a shore dinner of the Twenty-first Brooklyn Assembly District Republican Club at Tappen's Hotel, Sheepshead Bay, on invitation of the leader, Surveyor of the Port F. J. H. Kracke.

The LaGuardia petitions will be filed today and he probably will attend to the filing himself to give opportunity for photographs. The various county organizations received requests to send the petitions for the city designees to Mr. LaGuardia and they will do so today.

Mr. Bennett, whose campaign is based on the issue of "close the speakeasies," said he would have no further statement until after his petitions had been filed. These will be filed today by Simeon Beckerman, who has obtained more than 4,000 signatures to them, Mr. Bennett said.

NEGRO NAMED AMELI AIDE.

F. F. Giles Takes Oath as Assistant Federal Attorney in Brooklyn.

Francis F. Giles, 37 years old, negro attorney, with home and office at 864 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, was sworn in yesterday as an Assistant United States Attorney for the Eastern District of New York, under United States Attorney Howard W. Ameli. He is the first negro to be appointed to such a post in the district, Mr. Ameli said.

Deputy Federal Clerk Joseph G. Cochran administered the oath in the office of the Federal Clerk, Brooklyn. Giles was accompanied by Walter E. Corwin, Republican leader of the Seventeenth Assembly District, where Mr. Giles has been active in politics, and by O. Grant Easterbrook, former city magistrate.

Mr. Giles was born in Albany, but came to New York when only one year old and has lived here since.

GRAND JURY TO HEAR MANCUSO TOMORROW

To Question Him on Disciplinary Letter From State Banking Bureau to City Trust.

Judge Francis X. Mancuso of the Court of General Sessions, who was chairman of the Board of Directors of the City Trust Company when the bank failed last February for $5,000,000, is to appear tomorrow before the extraordinary grand jury which is investigating the failure. He is to be questioned regarding a disciplinary letter sent by the State Banking Department to the bank shortly before it failed.

Three of the former directors of the bank were questioned yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Harold Hastings regarding the matter. They were Salvatore Scarci, Leonard Rose and Francis Paterno. Molly Marino, who was secretary to Anthony Di Paola when he was cashier of the bank, also was questioned.

It was said yesterday the grand jury has almost completed its inquiry into the charges that records of the meetings of the bank's board of directors had been forged. It has also completed the inquiry into the charge that former State Superintendent of Banks Frank H. Warder held fourteen shares of City Trust Company stock while he was a State official.

Mr. Hastings, Special Prosecuter Hiram C. Todd and Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins will confer, probably on Wednesday, and designate the day for returning indictments. It is expected that the grand jury will vote indictments before the end of the week.

At the request of counsel the hearing into the bankruptcy of Lancia Motors of America, Inc., scheduled for yesterday before Federal Referee Henry K. Davis, 140 Nassau Street, was postponed indefinitely. Joseph K. Guerin, one of the attorneys for the creditors, explained that a special meeting of the creditors will be held in three weeks and sometime after the meeting the bankruptcy hearings will be resumed.

HOOVER BACK AT CAPITAL.

Mrs. Hoover and Allan Remain at Rapidan Fishing Lodge.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP).—President Hoover returned to the White House today from his fishing lodge on the Rapidan River in Virginia.

Mrs. Hoover and their son, Allan, remained at the camp, where the latter has been resting for the past two weeks, recuperating from a recent minor stomach ailment. It is likely they may remain there for the entire week.

Representative Fort of New Jersey, secretary of the Republican National Committee, and Henry P. Fletcher, retiring Ambassador to Italy, were luncheon guests of President Hoover today at the White House. Both had accompanied the President to his Virginia fishing camp over the week-end.

LAGUARDIA ACCUSES TAMMANY OF GRAFT

Charges There Is Cash Register at City Hall and Favors Must Be Paid For.

SEES BUSINESS PREYED ON

Declares Intimidation Is Used Throughout City to Get Support for Organization.

Responsibility for alleged Tammany graft was placed directly at the door of City Hall by Representative LaGuardia, Republican designee for Mayor, in a speech last night at the Bronx Regular Republican Club, 784 East 156th Street. Mr. LaGuardia declared that Tammany not only levied tribute on business men throughout the city but intimidated them and forced them to support the Tammany ticket.

"You've got to pay to get favors," Mr. LaGuardia said. "I say it because I know it. That sort of thing is going on all over the city. There is a cash register at City Hall and you can get anything you pay for.

"Before this campaign is over, I'll drag Tammany out in the open and make them abandon their policy of silence. I'll make them run to cover because I've got them with the goods."

Mr. LaGuardia declared that the truth of his graft charges was known to many of those present.

Quotes Bronx Banker.

"Ask the storekeeper, the pushcart peddler, the contractor, any business man, any banker what Tammany is doing," he said. "Why, only the other day I had one of the biggest bankers in the Bronx tell me that he was tired of conditions but that he didn't dare come out in the open. There never was more cruel oppression of business people than is now going on.

"I have a friend, a baker. In his window he had an artificial cake. It wasn't made to eat. It was made of plaster. Do you know what happened? Tammany served him with a summons because he didn't have a screen back of that cake.

"He told the policeman that the cake was of plaster and not made to eat. The policeman said, 'Well, go and see the Tammany leader.' So he went to the Tammany leader and the Tammany leader said, 'Sure, we can fix it up, but you ought to have pictures of the Tammany candidates in your window.' That's the kind of tactics Tammany is pursuing in this city.

Business Men Irked, He Says.

"The president of one of the biggest corporations in the city told me that Tammany went to every member of that company's board of directors because one of the officers of the company happens to be a friend of mine. What kind of an inquisition is this?

"Ten cents in any business man in the Bronx now much he pays in graft. Graft in New York City today is as much a part of the overhead in business as taxes. The business people are just about tired of these oppressive conditions. That's why we are so confident we are going to win."

Mr. LaGuardia spoke of the city budget and said the city was spending about $1,500,000 a day. "What do we get out of it?" he continued. "Dirty streets, and if some of us go into the parks we get a summons. But if some people go to the parks they can get drunk. You've heard of the Casino. Nobody pays $3 cover charge and 60 cents for a pot of coffee to behave himself. Do we support the parks to have a private whoopee joint in Central Park?"

There were about 600 men and women at the meeting and they received Mr. LaGuardia with enthusiasm. Mr. LaGuardia was accompanied by his wife and by Oscar De Preest, the negro Representative from Chicago. Mr. De Preest occupied a seat on the platform, and Mr. LaGuardia in introducing him said:

"I want you to give a big hand to my friend, Congressman De Preest of Chicago."

Mr. De Preest rose and bowed and was loudly applauded.

Gets Wreath in Harlem.

Mr. LaGuardia also spoke at a meeting of the Harding Republican Club at Harlem Terrace, 210 East 104th Street, in his own Congressional District, where he repeated his charges of graft. There were about 600 present, and the enthusiasm was even greater than at his earlier meeting.

A feature of the meeting was the presentation of a wreath to Mr. LaGuardia. It was a present from tenants of the tenement houses at 233-239 Eastt 103d Street, whom he had represented in litigation over a rent dispute with their landlords.

Deputy Attorney General Henry Chapman praised Mr. LaGuardia's withdrawal from connection with the City Trust Company during its early stages. Many politicians were implicated in the City Trust scandal, but only LaGuardia dropped Ferrari like a hot potato when he found out that everything did not look right, Mr. Chapman said.

The first appearance of several of the New York County Republican candidates was at this meeting. Among those who spoke were Clarence H. Fay, designee for Borough President; Dr. Israel Feinberg, designee for Sheriff; Charles W. Ferry, designee for County Clerk, and Irwin Kurtz, designee for City Court Justice.

'GREATER ATLANTA' CREATED

Governor Signs Annexation Bill Taking In Five Communities.

ATLANTA, Aug. 19 (AP).—This city was assured of a population of nearly 350,000 today with the signing of the bill creating "Greater Atlanta" by Governor L. G. Hardman.

The bill provides for the annexation of the municipalities of Decatur, Hapeville, East Point, College Park and the unincorporated community of Avondale Estates.

The municipalities included in the annexation will retain their present governments under the borough plan, but the Mayor of Atlanta will also be Mayor of Greater Atlanta, and the Mayors of the other cities will constitute a general council.

RYAN SAYS HE IS OUT OF QUEENS CONTEST

PATTEN PETITIONS FILED

Cox Campaign Committee Named—Sullivan Faction Presses Fight for Brunner.

George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, will not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Borough President of Queens. Mr. Ryan, who had been mentioned as a possible harmony candidate upon whom all factions might unite, issued a statement last night in which he said that the party had not offered to designate him and that he would not accept the designation if it were offered. His statement follows:

"For the past several days the press has been mentioning my name in connection with the Borough Presidency of Queens. Up to now I have refrained from making any statement because I regarded this as merely late Summer political gossip. My daily mail, however, indicates that a number of people are taking the thing seriously. It cannot be. I have had no conferences with the Mayor. No offer of designation has been made to me. I expect no offer, and would decline it if made.

"The designation was offered to me at the time Borough President Connolly resigned and again at the time the Board of Aldermen met to name his successor. On both occasions I declined the offer as I would decline it again if it were to be made."

Walker Denies Conference.

Mayor Walker also denied that he had been participating in conferences regarding the Queens situation or would participate in any.

The headquarters of the Citizens' Committee for the Re-election of Mayor Walker in the Lefcourt Building, Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, probably will be opened this week. Mayor Walker said he expected to visit them within a few days. August Heckscher is chairman, Guy Van Amringe secretary and Bernard F. Gimbel treasurer of the committee.

With the proposed Democratic Queens harmony move definitely checked, the supporters of John Theofel, chairman of the executive committee, went ahead with preparations to make a primary fight for its ticket headed by County Clerk Edward W. Cox for Borough President. The executive committee met at Democratic headquarters in Long Island City and named a campaign committee with Stanley C. Fowler of Jamaica, a lawyer, was named chairman.

Joseph A. McKee, chairman of former Borough President Bernard M. Patten's campaign committee, filed petitions designating Mr. Patten for the Democratic nomination for Borough President. The petitions were said to have been about 10,000 signatures. It was said that additional petitions with about 8,000 signatures would be filed before the expiration of the period for filing tonight.

Patten Supporters Meet.

Mr. Patten's supporters held an evening meeting at his Astoria headquarters, but the adjourned meeting of the county committee, which broke up in a row last week, failed to materialize in Fox's Theatre, Jamaica, where it had been scheduled.

With the faction headed by Transportation Commissioner Frank X. Sullivan also in the field, it appeared that there would be at least three candidates for the Democratic nomination for Borough President in the field when the time for filing expires at midnight tonight—Mr. Patten, Mr. Cox and Representative William F. Brunner, candidate of the Sullivan faction.

Under the election law a harmony arrangement will still be possible through the provision permitting declinations up to Aug. 23 and substitutions up to Aug. 27. An agreement between the factions, however, was regarded as unlikely, although efforts to bring about an end of the factional differences were said to be in progress yet.

SUBWAY TRAVEL DELAYED.

Signal Fails 3 Times in Morning Rush on Lexington Av. Line.

Thousands of passengers on their way downtown yesterday morning were delayed when a signal at Fifty-sixth Street in the Lexington Avenue subway went out of order three times in twenty minutes. Two express trains were routed to local tracks between 125th Street and Forty-second Street and following trains were delayed.

The first signal trouble, at 8:30 A. M., caused a seven-minute tie-up. Ten minutes later the signal again balked and required eight minutes for repairs. At 8:50 A. M. the same signal failed and the resulting blockade lasted thirteen minutes.

Signal trouble also was experienced on the overhead structure at Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, in the morning rush hour, holding up southbound Second Avenue elevated trains for six minutes.

Yale Professor to Help Ship Bureau.

Seward, Profesor of Mechanical and Marine Engineering in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale, as assistant to the president of the American Bureau of Shipping, was announced today. By an arrangement with Yale University, Professor Seward will devote part time to his duties at Sheffield. He will be assistant to Charles A. McAllister, president of the bureau, which is the Federal Government's unit for the classification of merchant ships.

HARVEY PETITIONS TO BE FILED TODAY

Republican Backers of Queens Borough President Decide to Enter Primary Fight.

'CONNOLLYISM' HELD ISSUE

Baum, Committee's Designee, Attacked as 'Tool' of De Bragga in Aiding Former Official.

Republican supporters of Borough President George U. Harvey of Queens decided last night at a meeting in the Queens Lyceum, Queens Village, to file petitions today designating him for the Republican nomination for Borough President to run against Deputy Register Henry Baum, designee of the Republican executive committee. The committee also adopted a resolution endorsing Mr. Harvey's administration and elected William D. Bosler, president of the Hollis Republican Club, chairman of the Harvey Republican primary campaign committee.

Direct word from Mr. Harvey as to whether he would accept the primary designation was lacking, but a subordinate gave assurance that he would make a primary contest instead of waiting to run independent for re-election. On this the meeting took action.

About 500 persons were present, some fifty of whom were said to be members of the Republican County Committee.

Mr. Bosler, who made the principal speech proposing Mr. Harvey for designation, attacked County Chairman Joseph H. De Bragga, charging that he was working with former Borough President Maurice E. Connolly to prevent Mr. Harvay's re-election.

"Will the members of the Republican County Committee who refused to consider the renomination of Mr. Harvey explain to the voters of the county why Joe De Bragga asked Mr. Harvey to turn over to his son the bonding business of the borough aggregating $200,000 a year in premiums?" Mr. Bosler asked. "Harvey declined to be a party to any such corrupt transaction and said the contractors were at liberty to obtain their bonds from whom they pleased. It is leadership like this which we are asked to submit to in the face of protests from all sections of the borough."

Mr. Bosler characterized Mr. Baum as "a tool of De Bragga," and said that a vote for him in the primary election would be a vote for "Connolyism."

Mr. Harvey appointed yesterday Frederick Sasse, Street Cleaning Superintendent and his campaign manager, borough secretary to succeed John L. Karle, who resigned, became Mr. Harvey would not pledge himself not to run as an independent candidate. Mr. Sasse formerly was Borough Secretary, but was transferred when Mr. Karle was appointed to that post and became Mr. Harvey's political adviser.

PLEA MADE FOR CALLAGHAN.

Paul Block Calls on McCooey to Endorse Justice.

In an open letter printed in The Brooklyn Standard-Union Paul Block, its publisher, called yesterday upon John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, to have the Brooklyn Democratic organization endorse Supreme Court Justice Stephen Callaghan, a Republican, for re-election. The letter caused considerable comment because Mr. Block is known to be one of the most intimate personal friends of Mayor Walker.

After complimenting Mr. McCooey upon the character of his leadership under which many able men have been elected to judicial and ther offices, the letter continued:

"It happens that Justice Stephen Callaghan's term will expire this year. He has been an able judge. He was first on the bench of the Municipal Court. He was promoted to the Supreme Court fourteen years ago. Former Governor Alfred E. Smith apointed him to preside at the trials of Florence Knapp, former Secretary of State. Governor Roosevelt chose him to hear the charges of irregularities made against the Republican officials of Monroe County. His fearless, able services in both instances are a matter of current knowledge. Former Governor Smith and Governor Roosevelt, who have been most careful in their choice of men for judicial duties, have put the stamp of approval on Justice Callaghan's ability and record. The public has taken it as a matter of course that Justice Callaghan, although a Republican, would receive your endorsement and that of your party.

"But recently many people in Brooklyn have been disturbed by rumors that Justice Callaghan will not be endorsed by the Democrats. Those who know you feel that these rumors are untrue. They feel that John McCooey will prove their untruth by urging his party to endorse Justice Callaghan and help keep politics out of the judiciary."

CHICAGOAN LEAVES $6,000,000 ESTATE

Bulk of Property of Chauncey Keep Goes to His Family—Art and Charity Also Benefit.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The will of Chauncey Keep, Chicago business executive, clubman and philanthropist, was filed for probate here today. It disposes of an estate estimated at more than $6,000,000, largely to his family with a number of bequests to charity and friends. It lists thirty-one legatees.

Under the will his widow, Mrs. Mary Blair Keep, receives $1,000,000 outright and the leasehold on an apartment at 1,200 Lake Shore Drive. Two sons-in-law, James Hutchins and Robert A. Gardner, are left $25,000 each, and Cyrus H. Adams, nephew of Mrs. Keep, and a Chicago attorney, who drew the will, $5,000.

The Field Museum of Natural History is the beneficiary of a $50,000 bequest. The Art Institute is left $25,000. The Chicago Home for Incurables is to receive $25,000, the Orchestral Association of Chicago $5,000, and the Old People's Home $5,000.

Other charitable bequests include $5,000 to the St. Thomas Protestant Episcopal Church of Camden, Me., and $5,000 to the Camden Public Library. Mr. Keep was one of the founders of this library and a benefactor of the town.

The will leaves bequests totalling $17,500 to friends and $11,000 to former employes.

The remainder of the estate is to be divided into three parts. One-third is to be held in trust for Mrs. Margaret Keep Hutchins, a daughter; another for a second daughter, Mrs. Katherine Keep Gardner, and the final portion to the widow of his son, Henry Blair Keep, and her son, Henry Blair Keep Jr. It is estimated that each of these portions will exceed $1,500,000.

Mr. Keep died Aug. 12 in his Summer home at Camden at the age of 75.

RYE ANNOYED BY PLANES.

Trustees May Ban Aircraft Unless Engines Are Muffled.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The legal advisers of the Rye board of trustees now have under consideration an ordinance which would ban flying activities from the village limits unless planes operating here have their engines muffled. Mayor John M. Morehead declared today that Rye residents object to the noise of flying.

Although the Department of Commerce regulations somewhat protect them from low flying, he declared that he had found it necessary to write to the department about some violations of the 1,000-foot altitude regulation governing flying over municipalities. He was informed that disciplinary measures would be taken if the numbers of the planes were furnished. "For some time people thought it was scientific and it would be poor sportsmanship to object to flying," he said. "But now there seems to be a wave of disapproval throughout the country. The people here object primarily to the noise. There is one plane at Playland now, and as long as they keep it muffled we will have no objections.

"Why, it used to be dreadful. On Sundays and holidays when men wanted to rest there would be that continual racket. Automobiles were made to muffle and I think the time has come for planes." Mayor Morehead did not say when the ordinance would be acted upon. He intimated that it would be held in readiness in case of recurrence of too much noisy flying.

FRANCE APPROVES EDGE AS NEW envoy

Hoover, Informed New Jersey Senator Is "Persona Grata," Will Name Him in Fall.

TARIFF VIEWS AWAITED

Paris Points Out His Experience as Committee Chairman Fits Him to Discuss Its Questions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—It was announced by the State Department today that Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey has been decided on as the next American Ambassador to France. The President, some time ago, inquired of the French Government whether Senator Edge would be acceptable and the French Government's reply was in the affirmative.

It is expected that the nomination will go to the Senate early in the Fall.

In the meantime, Norman Armour, the American Chargé d'Affaires, will continue to represent the United States in Paris.

Senator Edge, who is a former governor of New Jersey, is fifty-five years of age and is now serving his second term as United States Senator.

The formal announcement that he was to go to France as the successor of the late Myron T. Herrick of Ohio occasioned no surprise in Washington. That he was the President's choice for the French post has been known for several months.

France Prompt in Approval.

PARIS, Aug. 19 (AP).—The French Government, despite the absence of Premier Aristide Briand at The Hague, took prompt and favorable action in declaring Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey persona grata as United States Ambassador to France.

Although acceptance was decided upon at the Quai D'Orsay on Friday, the French thought it a matter of courtesy to the American Government that any publication of the official announcement be made from Washington rather than Paris.

Sketches of the life and the achievements of the Senator have appeared frequently in the French press, emphasizing the success of a newspaper man in rising from modest beginnings to high rank. The French use the English phrase "self-made man" to describe him.

Nothing was known here as to when the new Ambassador would take up his post, but he will find there the splendid commodious house purchased by the late Myron T. Herrick, which he had occupied only a few months.

Await Views on Tariff.

One of the principal tasks of the new Ambassador will be to continue work on plans for a Paris building where all American official missions will be gathered under one roof near the Place de la Concorde.

The general feeling is that Senator Edge comes to France at a most propitious time to develop international friendship now that the delicate debt question has been settled.

One particular problem of great interest to France is the new American tariff in so far as it affects exports from this country to the United States. It was pointed out today that Senator Edge, having headed the Senate committee which studied and elaborated the new tariff, as Ambassador to France will be in an especially favorable position with unusual knowledge of the problem to discuss tariff questions with the French.

ASKS HUNT FOR DAUGHTER.

Mother in Texas Fears She May Have Committed Suicide Here.

The New York police received a telegram yesterday from Mrs. Florence Enoe of Beaumont, Texas, asking them to search for her daughter, Lola, who, she feared, might have committed suicide here because of "a great sorrow."

Baggage containing papers supposed to belong to Lola Enoe, or Mrs. W. C. Edwards, was found Sunday in Pennsylvania Station. A woman who wanted to know how to get to "the river" handed a note to a child at Sands and Bridge Streets in Brooklyn Sunday afternoon and told her to give it to a policeman. The note contained a check for the baggage and said the writer was going on "a long journey."

The police dragged the East River near the spot where the girl said she received the note, but found nothing.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 19 (AP).—Mrs. W. C. Edwards, who disappeared in New York, obtained a divorce from T. A. French, an alderly real estate operator here, about a month ago. About a year ago she divorced W. C. Edwards and married French. The couple separated about a month later when French sued for divorce and asked that a settlement of property made on Edwards be annulled. The court restored the name of Edwards to her.

END AUTO DURABILITY TEST

Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Violet and Evelyn Cordery today ended their drive of 30,000 miles at more than sixty miles an hour around Brooklands in their Victa car.

They started on June 18 to make a record to prove the durability of the car, and with the exception of Sundays and certain days when not allowed to race they took three-hour turns at the wheel for twelve hours daily.

Senate Office Elevator Crashes.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP).—An elevator in the Senate office building dropped one floor and crashed into the basement today but none of the passengers were injured. No Senators were aboard. A truck loaded with documents was on the elevator at the time and the weight is believed to have caused the crash.

Dog Rescued From Rock at Brink of Niagara; Marooned Spaniel Sighted by Another Dog

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP).—A white spaniel was rescued from its perilous perch on a rock down a forty-foot embankment near the brink of the Horseshoe Falls by a reservation patrolman and the city dog catcher today. The dog was in an emaciated condition and had been marooned on the rock probably several days.

The spaniel's plight was discovered when another dog, owned by a tourist, started barking and peering down the embankment at the south side of Goat Island. Edward Gray, a reservation patrolman, investigated and discovered the white spaniel perched on the rock and hidden from view of the throngs that watch the cataracts daily.

Assisted by the city dog catcher, Frank Donalo, the officer rigged up a pole with a rope noose at one end. The noose was slipped over the spaniel's head. Once Donalo plunged into the fast-running water, only a short distance above the falls' brink, but Gray grabbed him and drew him to safety.

The dog was pulled up the bank and Donalo took it to the city pound, where it will be cared for until claimed by the owner.

Reservation officers are puzzled as to how the dog reached its perilous position. They think it must have been swept down the river and through the upper rapids, finally saving itself from a plunge over the cataract by hanging to the rock.

UNITED CIGAR SOLD TO GOLD DUST GROUP

will retain their places on both boards.

Messrs. George K. Morrow, Frederick K. Morrow, R. W. Jameson, Eugene W. Stetson and Wilbur L. Cummings were elected as the executive committee of both boards.

George J. Whelan, C. A. Whelan and W. T. Posey, stated that in turning over control of the companies to the new group they were still retaining a substantial stock interest, but believed it in the interest of the stockholders to get into the companies of the Morrow management, which had been so successful in a number of other manufacturing and merchandising enterprises. The new boards of directors, who are to be associated with the Morrows in the business have all been very successful in many lines of business and finance. It should be an assurance to the stockholders that their companies are to be well directed and successfully managed.

Unexpected in Wall Street.

The upheaval in the United Cigar organization, of which Wall Street had no advance notice, was believed to have been influenced to some extent by the recent price-cutting in the retail cigar field. Competition from out-rate stores made such inroads on the business of the cigarette chain stores some time ago that the latter reduced their prices on popular brands and eliminated the coupon or profit-sharing certificate.

The Tobacco Products board, prior to yesterday's election, consisted of the following: R. M. Ellis, George Wattley, O. H. Chalkley, C. A. Whelan, W. T. Posey and Thomas Woods. The officers were Mr. Posey, president; Mr. Ellis, vice president; William A. Ferguson, secretary; Mr. Wattley, treasurer.

The directors of United Cigar Stores were William Baeder, Samuel Simons, A. C. Allen, Robert J. Whelan, Charles F. Noyes, A. C. Johnson, George Wattley, C. A. Whelan, A. F. Dempsey, E. Francis Whelan, John F. Whelan, J. J. Switzer, W. T. Posey, Dr. Mozart Monae-Lesser, George J. Wise and A. Granat. The officers were C. A. Whelan, chairman and president; Mr. Allen, Mr. Baeder, Dr. Monae-Lesser, W. T. Posey, Mr. Simons, John F. Whelan, J. A. Burns, C. W. Rattray, Robert J. Whelan, George J. Wise, E. Francis Whelan, Mr. Granat, J. L. Posey, A. Staal, J. R. Taylor, Mr. Dempsey, A. C. Johnson and A. M. Rosenthal, vice presidents; William A Ferguson, secretary; Mr. Wattley, treasurer.

Expansion of United Cigar.

The entrance of Mr. Morrow and associates into United Cigar Stores is believed to foreshadow expansion of that company and its affiliates. United Cigar has lately been enlarging its food distributing facilities. Gold Dust is engaged in distributing trade-marked food products, soap, washing and scouring powers, shoe polishes and other articles. It is assumed that the United Cigar Stores will become outlets for such of Gold Dust's products as may be distributed through such a chain.

United Cigar has been for years one of the country's leading distributers of smokers' supplies. In recent years, besides expanding its retail distributing system, it has invested heavily in companies supplying products which it sells. There are now in operation about 3,200 stores, including nearly 200 drug stores and 100 combination cigar and luncheonette shops. The company also has large real estate holdings.

At the end of last year United Cigar had twenty-four wholly owned subsidiaries, including real estate holding companies. Among these are the Cigar Stores Realty Holdings, organized in 1928, and the United Stores Realty Corporation. United Cigar also has a controlling interest in the Charles F. Noyes Company, Inc., which manages all the real estate owned by United Cigar in New York City. There are two subsidiaries operating drug store chains. The Tobacco Products Corporation and United Cigar control Happiness Candy Stores, Inc. Control of the Schulte-United Five-Cents-to-a-Dollar Stores is held jointly by United Cigar and the Schulte Retail Stores Corporation. Early this year United Cigar obtained a large minority interest in the Reiss-Premier Pipe Company, which is largely interested in the smokers' pipe industry in the United States and Europe.

Many Investments Held.

Besides its subsidiary company holdings, United Cigar owns large blocks of stocks in various enterprises as investments. Among recent additions to its list of investments have been stocks in Bastian Blessing Company, manufacturer of soda fountains and related lines. Contracts are held by United Cigar covering the sale of products of companies such as the Beech-Nut Packing Company and the American Safety Razor Company.

Recently the United Stores Corporation was formed for the purpose of consolidating the United Cigar Stores Company, the Tobacco Products Corporation and the Union Tobacco Company through an exchange of stock. The time limit for the deposit of Tobacco Products stock was extended to Aug. 15. The time limit for Union Tobacco, which expired on July 15, was not extended, about 80 per cent of the stock having been deposited. The United Stores Corporation plan has not been declared operative, and it is assumed that the new interests in United Cigar and Tobacco Products will determine whether it is to be carried out. It was understood in Wall Street yesterday that the United Stores Corporation may be made the holding company through which the Morrow interests will effect the consolidation of the various units of the old Whelan system.

HELD IN LEATHER THEFTS.

Taxi Driver and Woman Arrested—Believed Members of Gang.

By the arrest of a man and a woman, both negroes, yesterday detectives of the East Twenty-second Street police station said last night that they had broken up a gang which in the last two years had stolen leather goods valued at $30,000 from the firm of Kaplan & Gordon at 141 Fifth Avenue.

Patrolman Arthur Cooper noticed a negro taxi driver putting bundles into his cab in front of the building at 141 Fifth Avenue early last evening and questioned him about their contents. Dissatisfied with the reply, he took the man, who said he was Valentine Anderson, 28 years old, of 151 West 146th Street, to the station house. There the man admitted, according to detectives, that with three others, he had been systematically robbing the Kaplan & Gordon firm.

The detectives later arrested Carrie Harrison, 27, of 295 West 150th Street, elevator operator in the Fifth Avenue building. She admitted, they said, that she frequently took a discharged employe of the firm up after hours so that he could gain entrance to the Kaplan & Gordon work rooms with a duplicate key he had retained. Anderson then removed the loot, she said, and disposed of it through the fourth member of the gang, a fence. The detectives said they expected to arrest the other two in the near future. Anderson and the Harrison woman were charged with grand larceny.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Aug. 19.—Commander Byrd has named the buildings and snow houses containing stores and scientific equipment in Little America in honor of his friends. Although our community is a small one, it has a number of houses.

The weather station and kite house is called the La Gorce Weather Station after John Oliver La Gorce of the National Geographic Society.

The radio station has been named the Ochs Radio Station after Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of The New York Times.

The Harry Guggenheim Hangars and Machine Shop have been named after the head of the Daniel Guggenheim Foundation for the Promotion of Aeronautics.

The Norwegian living house in back of the mess hall is called the Biltmore in honor of Jack Bowman, owner of the Biltmore Hotel in New York City, where Commander Byrd had his headquarters during the days of preparation.

The house built and occupied by Christopher Braathen and Arthur Walden is called the Block House after Paul and Billie Block, the sons of Paul Block, the newspaper publisher.

The magnetic house, where magnetic measurements are made, is called the Carnegie Institute House and the medical storehouses the Grier House after Dr. G. E. Layton Grier of Milford, Del.

The administration building is named after Edgar Barratt and the mess hall is named for his son, Roswell Barratt. The north landing field is called the Charlie Bob Landing Field and the south landing field the Raymond Fosdick Landing Field.

Road Congress Itinerary.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 19 (AP).—The United States delegates to the Pan-American Road Congress leave Santos Aug. 31. They will spend two days in Montevideo, a week in Buenos Aires and then cross the Andes to Santiago, Chile. The congress, which opened here Aug. 16, is considered of utmost importance in the development of communications in the republics of the Western Hemisphere.

TO AUCTION FRENCH PEAK.

Knock-Down Price of $2,000 Is Put on Puy de Dome Summit.

According to an advertisement in several Paris papers, the summit of the Puy de Dôme, at an altitude of 4,806 feet, lying in Auvergne, between the Allier, Cher and Creuse on one side, and the Lot and Dardogne on the other, is to be knocked down to the highest bidder. However, there is a reserve price of $2,000.

The announcement is said to have filled with consternation the "home touring class" of France, for it is feared that, if purchased, the summit will be used for the erection of a great hotel and that its new proprietors may charge admission to the mountain-top, which every year is ascended by thousands of French man and women to enjoy the magnificent panorama unfolded, to go over the observatory and to contemplate the ruins of a Roman temple of Mercury.

In the early days of the nineteenth century the summit, including a radius of nearly half a mile down, belonged to the Marquis de Valmy. But before the Franco-Prussian War he sold it to the inhabitants of Orcine, who used its slopes for the pasturage of their sheep. Then an Auvergne syndicate bought them out, leaving them pasturage free for the next twenty years. That time having now expired, the summit of Puy de Dôme is to be put up at auction.

TWO LAWYERS FACE INQUIRY BY TUTTLE

GRAND JURY TO GET CASES

Charges Include Misconduct in Handling of Assets of Firms Which Had Failed.

Federal Judge Thomas D. Thacher, presiding at the bankruptcy investigation being conducted by Colonel William Donovan, directed yesterday that the activities of two lawyers be brought to the attention of United States Attorney Tuttle after listening to testimony concerning them. If the testimony given before him proved correct, Judge Thacher said, criminal acts were involved, and the matter should be brought before the Federal grand jury.

The two lawyers involved were Stanley La Cov, 26 years old, who was admitted to the Federal bar in 1927, and William Lindenbaum, whose activities had already been investigated by Mr. Tuttle. Mr. Tuttle said that Assistant United States Attorney Hubert T. Delaney would go before the grand jury with both cases. If no indictments were returned, he said, the cases could be referred back to Judge Thacher for disciplinary action.

The severest disciplinary action that could be meted out by the court would be disbarment, while jail sentences might result if criminal charges were proved.

The La Cov testimony was in connection with the bankruptcy of the Ambassador Tire Corporation, in which La Cov was attorney for the bankrupt. It was testified that La Cov sold accounts of the bankrupt valued at $9,700 to Anthony Frieda for $3,200, for which Frieda made out a check to the bankrupt, while he made out a second for $4,000, payable to La Cov. Other testimony indicated that La Cov had sold tires and tubes belonging to the bankrupt to Harry Olin, New Jersey auctioneer, and similarly received a check for less than the value of the tires, payable to the bankrupt, and an additional sum which was not recorded. Still another charge brought out in the testimony was that La Cov had failed to turn over a dividend check in connection with the settlement of a bankruptcy until after he had been advised to do so by members of Colonel Donovan's staff.

The Lindenbaum testimony related to the bankruptcy of Abraham Rosenzwieg, for whom Lindenbaum was attorney. Rosenzwieg testified that he had signed consignment receipts, fraudulently antedated, and subsequently delivered furniture on the receipts, on Lindenbaum's advice. The receipts were from Colonel H. Strober of the Eastern Furniture Company and Benjamin Weiss of the Universal Furniture Factories and were signed, according to Strober, in the hallway of Referee in Bankruptcy John L. Lyttle's office.

Yacht Uvira Grounds at Halifax.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 19 (C.P.).—The large United States yacht Uvira, in which Professor Barnes of Montreal left here several weeks ago to study ice conditions in Greenland, grounded at the entrance to the northwest arm near Halifax today and keeled over when the tide subsided. The vessel, owned by Richard B. Van Horne of New York, probably will be refloated. The stranding occurred in a thick fog. It is thought the damage will not be serious, as the Uvira has a steel hull.

10 Hungarian Merchants Forbidden to Land For Trade Tour Because of Lack of $50 Cash

Ten members of a delegation of sixty-one Hungarian merchants who arrived here on the Vulcania last night to study American business methods were held up by immigration officials because they lacked $50 in cash required of every visitor to this country. They were kept on the Vulcania last night and this morning will be taken to Ellis Island to be detained until they provide bonds of $500 each to guarantee their return home at the end of their visit.

Edmund Horwath, president of the American-Hungarian Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who was at the pier to meet the delegation when the Vulcania docked, interceded unsuccessfully with the immigration officials. He explained that the ten delegates in question had letters of credit ample to provide for their expenses here and offered his personal guarantee of their return, but the authorities were adamant.

"These visitors are all men of substance in their home communities," Mr. Horwath said later. "Their passports are in order and have been properly visaed by the United States Consul General in Budapest, and yet the immigration officials insist that they must go to Ellis Island. It seems a very unreasonable way to treat visitors to this country."

The fifty-six delegates who landed without hindrance went to the Knickerbocker Hotel, where the delegation will make its headquarters while in this city. They will visit department stores, banks, wholesale houses and shipping centres here and in other American cities. Included in their itinerary are Detroit, Philadelphia, Washington and Chicago.

BUBONIC PLAGUE STUDY TO BE MADE IN ECUADOR

Two United States Public Health Service Physicians to Investigate Seasonal Outbreaks.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Aug. 19.—For the purpose of making special epidemiological studies of the bubonic plague in Ecuador, Dr. C. R. Eskey of the United States Public Health Service, accompanied by Dr. J. D. Long, also of the Health Service and representing the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, sailed tonight on the steamer Santa Cecilia for Guayaquil. Dr. Eskey, formerly chief quarantine officer in the Philippines, who studied the plague there and in India, probably will spend a year studying the epidemiology of the plague in Ecuador.

After a recent survey of health conditions in South America while representing the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, Dr. Long reported the presence of the plague in Brazil, Paraguay, the Argentine, Peru and Ecuador. Certain epidemiological features were found in Ecuador which had not been encountered before. The council of the Sanitary Bureau approved Dr. Long's recommendation that a special study be made, and after completing the work in Ecuador Dr. Eskey may visit other countries where the plague is present.

Outbreaks of the plague in Ecuador are seasonal, Dr. Long explained, and as this is the off season no cases have been reported there for several months. After spending a month in Ecuador Dr. Long will go to Peru, and then he hopes to begin a complete survey of Pan-American countries, visiting Venezuela, Central American countries and Mexico.

WINS BATTLE PENNANT FOR SUCCESSIVE YEAR

Flagship Rochester of Special Service Squadron Gets Efficiency Award Second Time.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLON, Panama, Aug. 19.—The battle-efficiency pennant of the United States fleet now flies from the foremast of the flagship Rochester of the special service squadron, which has returned to Balboa after coming here. The Rochester received the award of the gunnery trophy, and this is the second year in succession that it has won the battle-efficiency pennant.

"To win the battle-efficiency pennant in any one year is highly creditable and sufficient cause for sincere gratification," said Admiral E. H. Campbell, commander of the special service squadron, "but to win it two years in succession, as the Rochester has done, is a wonderful achievement. I know of only one other case where this has been done."

The cruiser Asheville is still anchored here, in apparent readiness for a possible voyage to Venezuela, where revolutionary activities are reported. It is known that orders to the Asheville to proceed to the east coast of Nicaragua have been canceled and that the ship has been ordered to stand by here to await further orders.

JAILS PAIR FOR HANGING CHILDREN BY WRISTS

Court Is Told Three "Troublesome" Youngsters Were Punished by Parents Seven Hours.

Charged with having been cruel to their three "troublesome" young children, Emil Ihle and his wife were arraigned in Recorder's Court in Union City, N. J., yesterday. Recorder Morderelli sentenced Ihle to a year in jail and the woman to six months.

The children, Louis, 5 years old; Emil, 7, and Adolph, 5, bruised and still bearing the marks of ropes on their wrists, were put in charge of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children at Jersey City. They will become State charges.

It was alleged that the children had been strung up by their wrists in the Ihle home at 6 P. M. last Wednesday and left hanging until 1 o'clock the next morning. Yesterday the case came to the attention of the authorities on the complaints of neighbors. Ihle and his wife were prosecuted by Edward A. Ransom Jr., secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

NAVY PLANES FLYING EAST.

Eighteen Pursuit Craft Leave San Diego for Air Races at Cleveland.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 19 (AP).—Held up seven hours by an overdue check from the East for expenses, eighteen of the navy's fastest pursuit planes left today for the National Air Races at Cleveland.

Under the command of Commander Homer Wicks, the squadron of VF-1 fighters left the naval base at 12:10 P. M. for Tuscon, Ariz., their first stop.

The planes were preceded by two great naval Sikorsky amphibian planes, with crews to service the fighters. Overnight stops will be made at Dallas and Kansas City, it was indicated by Commander Wicks.

The squadron includes some of the most noted aerial acrobats in the United States naval force, some of whom will put on a number of flying spectacles for the National Air Races.

TWO FASTEST SHIPS MAKE PORT TODAY

BREMEN DUE HERE AT NOON

The world's two fastest liners will end their high-speed voyages across the Atlantic today. The Cunarder Mauretania will make Plymouth in the afternoon and the Bremen is due at Ambrose Channel Lightship at 11 o'clock this morning.

The Mauretania steamed 634 miles from noon Sunday to noon yesterday at an average of 27.56 knots, bettering her record day's run eastward, made the day before, by four miles.

At noon yesterday she had covered 2,118 miles from Ambrose Lightship at an average speed of 27.14 knots.

Bremen Makes 704 Miles.

The Bremen's run from noon Sunday to noon yesterday was 704 miles, at an average speed of 28.16 knots.

Altogether the Bremen had steamed 2,470 miles from Cherbourg Breakwater at noon yesterday at an average speed of 27.76 knots. Navigators said it was not likely that she would better her record. Her four daily runs on the previous voyage westbound were 688, 657, 704 and 705 miles, respectively. The best day's run made by the Mauretania westward was 687 miles, made from noon, Aug. 5, to noon the following day.

"From noon Sunday to noon today the Mauretania steamed 634 miles at an average speed of 27.56 knots, being four miles better than her previous day's run of 630 miles from noon Saturday to noon Sunday. Total so far, 2,118 miles at average 27.14 knots. Subject to continued favorable weather the Mauretania will undoubtedly better her previous record of 4 days, 19 hours from New York to Plymouth."

Bremen Plane Ready to Hop.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD THE BREMEN, Aug. 19.—The Bremen's run from Sunday noon to Monday noon was 704 nautical miles. Conditions were excellent except for two hours of fog. Weather permitting, she is due at Quarantine at 12:30 P. M. tomorrow and to dock at 2 o'clock. A mail plane will take off from the ship at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mauretania's Run Described.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD THE MAURETANIA, Aug. 19.—The Mauretania has scored another triumphant run, steaming 634 miles in a twenty-three-hour day. The weather continues to be perfect and if, as is expected, she can maintain or improve this speed, she should be in Plymouth before midnight tomorrow, covering the journey at more than 27 knots.

POLISH FLIER IS BURIED.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Aug. 19.—The body of Major Louis Idzikowski, who was killed when the Polish airmen's transatlantic plane crashed in a landing in the Azores, was buried here today with great ceremony. The body was brought from the Azores aboard the warship Iskra to Gdynia, where the Polish navy transferred the coffin to the army. Escadrille airplanes left this city to meet the train bearing the body and escorted it here.

Government officials, high army officers and representatives of foreign military missions, including Major Yeager, United States Military Attaché, attended the funeral, which despite the pouring rain was extremely impressive. Many people walked behind the coffin and thousands marched seven kilometers to the cemetery to pay the tributes here.

Major Kasimir Kubala, who was with Major Idzikowski on the tragic transatlantic crossing attempt, interrupted his tour in France and hurried to Warsaw to pay his companion his final respects.

SASKATCHEWAN TOWN IS SWEPT BY FLAMES

LLOYDMINSTER, Sask., Aug. 19 (Canadian Press).—Blackened walls and charred timbers are all that remain tonight of the principal business section of Lloydminster. Fire early today destroyed more than a score of buildings, with a loss of at least $1,000,000. Several families, rendered homeless by the destruction of their apartments, were cared for tonight by more fortunate citizens.

Starting in a poolroom, the flames spread with the greatest rapidity under a high wind. Inadequate water supply hampered the firemen, who were assisted by hundreds of townspeople.

The postoffice, two hotels, the Canadian Bank of Commerce, two apartment and business blocks and numerous smaller stores and office structures were destroyed.

What started the fire in the poolroom is not known. Town officials, under Mayor H. Huxley, will hold an investigation immediately.

Lloydminster is on the Saskatchewan-Alberta boundary. It has a population of 2,500. The destroyed section was on the Saskatchewan side of the boundry.

Court Sanctions Pajamas in Street.

IRVINGTON, N. J., Aug. 19.—Pajamas may be worn in this town as street apparel without fear of arrest. Recorder Frederic Stoddard today freed Samuel Nelson, a barber, of 264 Littleton Avenue, Newark, charged with disorderly conduct and called his arrest "both asinine and stupid." Nelson was arrested Aug. 12. He said he had made a bet he could walk from Newark to Irvington in pajamas without being arrested. Recorder Stoddard turned to the policemen and said: "Neither you nor I are censors of modern fashion here."

Malartic Suspends Mine Work.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 19 (Canadian Press).—Further operations of the Malartic Gold Mines, Ltd., will be suspended, it was announced at the head office of the company today after engineers had submitted a report stating "the outlook does not justify the building of a mill."

INVOKES WAR GHOST IN MINERAL CONTROL

Dr. C. K. Leith Tells Williams Institute That Tendencies Are Toward Conflict.

LEADERS DENY HIS THESIS

Dr. Camzell Sees Canada and This Country Drawn Together by Mineral Interests.

FREE CUBA CALLED ERROR

Professor Priestley Declares the Island Would Have Been Better Off as American Territory.

By LOUIS STARK.

Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 19.—Dr. Charles Camzell of Ottawa, Deputy Minister of Mines for Canada, told the Institute of Politics today that the United States and Canada may be drawn together more closely by the development of Canada's mineral resources.

Mr. Camzell spoke of the growing interdependence of the United States and Canada, which was being brought about by the increasingly large investments of American capital in the Dominion. He declared also that the economic forces of Canada, the United States and England, exemplified by the interlocking interests of the business men of the three nations, would tend to remove the possibility of conflict further off.

The contribution by the Canadian official was in the nature of oil poured on the troubled seas of a discussion which began peacefully enough on Canadian-American mineral resources, but which ended on the possibility of future conflict as between the United States on one side and Canada and Great Britain on the other, over rivalry for minerals.

In the end, the speaker, who had interjected the war spectre, asserted that he had been misunderstood and joined with his critics in agreeing that joint international cooperation for the exploitation of mineral resources would minimize friction between nations.

Dr. Leith Draws Criticism.

The man who stirred up the economists attending the institute to attack some of the sensational aspects of his thesis was Dr. Charles K. Leith, one of the world's authorities on minerals, whose long career as specialist in his field has included attendance as expert attached to the American Peace Mission at Paris.

Dr. Leith spoke of two tendencies with respect to the control of the world's mineral resources. One was the tendency of nations to tighen control over their own mineral resources by political means, such as tariff barriers, and the other was observed in mergers of companies within nations which tended to preserve the interflow of minerals internationally. He saw in these tendencies the underlying causes of some wars in the past and declared they might lead to war in the future.

He referred to Canada as a "weak country," lacking proper coal and iron resources, but supplied with other minerals to an almost monopolistic degree, and said that in the event of war between England and the United States, Canada's key industries, such as smelting works, would be vulnerable to attack unless Canada remained neutral.

A proposal which Dr. Leith said had been discussed in Washington between British and American representatives after the war, was to pool the exportable surplus of minerals of the two nations, which controlled 80 per cent of the world's supply, and to discipline Germany by allocating to her as well as to the other nations only that quantity of minerals which it was deemed advisable to furnish to them.

Nothing came of the proposal, which, according to Dr. Leith, was discussed by leading military men of both nations as well as economists.

Thinks Collins' Proposal "Extreme."

Another proposal for international agreement on allocation of mineral resources, Dr. Leith said, was made at the recent sessions of the British Association for the Advancement of Science by Sir Thomas Collins, retiring president, who suggested that in the interests of world peace minerals be internationalized and that a clause to that effect be added to the Kellogg pact.

While he regarded the proposal as "rather extreme," Dr. Leith felt that in discussions thus initiated by scientists lay the hope of peace in the rivalry for the required minerals.

He doubted that the United States and Great Britain could get together to act upon the suggestion of Sir Thomas, as there were too many minerals, the currents of the industry were too shifting and he felt doubtful if "there were enough brains to direct such an undertaking from one source."

The necessity for a continual interflow of minerals between the United States and Great Britain had been recognized. He saw in this recognition a factor that would go a long way toward international political control of raw materials, not by a supernational organization, but by a complex of understandings that in the end would mean in effect an international control of minerals.

Four Disagree With Speaker.

Those who disagreed with the major points in Dr. Leith's argument were Dean P. E. Corbett of McGill University, Professor T. E. Gregory of the London School of Economics, Professor Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago and Dr. W. E. Rappard of Geneva.

Dean Corbett suggested that instead of leaving the mineral situation to blind chance an international joint commission, similar to the Joint Commission on Waterways, be formed for the purpose of studying the problems from every aspect. He had no fear that there was an insufficiency of "brains" to tackle the problem. As a Canadian he said that iron entered his soul as he heard Dr. Leith speak of the possibility of war resulting from the struggle for minerals.

In view of the cordial relations between the United States and Canada, Mr. Corbett questioned the necessity for Canada having a self-sufficient supply of coal and iron. While he did not exclude war from the field of possibilities, he regarded it as wholly improbable. He pointed out that Canada had nickel, zinc and asbestos to exchange for American metals and the necessity for continuing such an exchange would make any struggle undesirable. International cooperation could never be doomed to sterility for lack of brains to cope with such problems, he said.

Geographical Phase "Exaggerated."

Dr. Leith mentioned that during the war great difficulty had been experienced in integrating conflicting causes on the mineral question. He indicated that specialization of the various nations in their own minerals was one way out of the situation.

Professor Viner asserted that Dr. Leith's interpretation of the mineral situation in Canada and the United States as possibly leading to war was wholly uncalled for and indicated a psychology dangerous to the world. He agreed with Dr. Leith, he said, "as long as he remains below the level of the ground," but opposed him "when he comes to the surface and gives his subject an economic, political and military interpretation."

Dr. Leith, according to Professor Viner, exaggerated the importance of the geographical location of coal and iron and their control by particular groups. As proof that nations could build up great industries without owning coal and iron resources, Professor Viner cited the example of Belgium and Holland. He deplored Dr. Leith's mention of minerals in terms of war possibilities and saw nothing wrong in Canada being tributary to the United States for fabricated raw materials.

Much had been said, he continued, about Canada tending to be "a hewer of wood and a drawer of water" for the United States, but he saw nothing wrong about that so long as Canada was paid for such work. She had nickel, asbestos and copper to export and there was no shame in exporting it and buying other materials from the United States.

No nation had any difficulty in buying minerals in any market, Dr. Viner said. The real economic problem was not the one of buying materials, but the question of selling the exportable surplus.

Declares Facts Distorted.

Professor Gregory referred to the meeting in Washington mentioned by Dr. Leith and asserted that it merely showed "the utter stupidity of discussing economic developments in terms of war." The Washington meeting was "the kind of interference with economics one expects from military people," said Dr. Gregory. In the whole consideration of the problem of the monopoly of minerals as between the United States and Great Britain the attitude of the rest of the world on the subject had been overlooked.

It did not matter who owned the minerals, Dr. Gregory said, the problem of getting them in wartime was a question of sea power and sea power alone. To base the organization of the minerals of the world on the possibility of war was to him a complete distortion of the facts. When war broke out Germany controlled the Indian manganese supply, but Germany could not get access to the properties and they were exploited by the British.

The question to discuss was how to get access to the minerals in peacetime. In this connection the economist required two things: those who put up the capital should not be exploited by the mining companies and the government should therefore make public the facts concerning the developments, and the governments should maintain strict neutrality and the open door regarding the policy of exploiting minerals. He regretted that Dr. Leith had touched on the spectre of Anglo-American war.

Points to Example of Switzerland.

Dr. Rappard pointed out that Switzerland was an intensely industrial country and had no control of raw materials. The war discussion to him was an example of the curious outlook that war has put upon processes involving economic thought.

In reply Dr. Leith declared the economists had "put up a straw man," and disclaimed the intention of emphasizing the military aspects of the mineral problem.

Replying to Mr. Gregory's strictures on the Washington meeting, he said that a British economic expert was present at the gathering.

Prior to the general conference led by Dr. Leith, a round table on the mineral situation was held under the direction of Russell S. McBride, who presided in place of the chairman, Dr. Harrison E. Howe. The latter was kept from attendance by a broken arm which he sustained in an accident yesterday.

The speakers at the round table were Dr. T. T. Read, Professor of Mining of Columbia University; Dr. John W. Frey of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce; Dr. F. E. Berquist of the Carnegie Institute of Technology; Dr. Leith and Mr. Camzell.

Dr. Read maintained that the taxation of undeveloped mineral resources resulted in the premature development of those resources and in the end glutted the market and forced on the nation cyclical crises.

This argument was attacked by Dr. Berquist, who said that if Dr. Read's suggestion of freeing undeveloped mineral lands from taxation were followed the descendants of the present owners seventy-five or more years hence would receive all the increment resulting from the land having been held idle.

Upholds Taxation of Mineral Lands.

Mr. Camzell also disagreed with Dr. Read and said that if all taxes were removed from mineral lands Canada would be swamped with claims that would never be developed.

The Platt amendment was characterized as a mistake from both the Cuban and American point of view by Professor Herbert I. Priestley of the University of California today at his round table on Latin-American affairs.

In many ways the fate of Cuba would have been better had the United States annexed Cuba outright, as was the case with Porto Rico, he said.

"To have done so would have eliminated from our present political horizon many of the clouds which threaten continuance of satisfactory relations," he declared.

In a lecture tonight on "The Changing Structure of the League of Nations," Dr. William E. Rappard of Geneva said that the League "has undergone a process of Europeanization." He noted the increased tendency of Europe's leading statesmen to gather at Council meetings in Geneva and said that in his opinion the League has so far most effectively served the cause of world peace, especially in Europe, "not by its efforts in favor of disarmament, of arbitration and of mutually guaranteed security, but by the habits of international conversation and cooperation it has engendered among the statesmen of the world."

PLANS TO DIVORCE LIEUT. J. C. CLARK

HUSBAND IS ARMY FLIER

Wife's Attorney Says the Suit Is to Be Based on Charge of "Mental Cruelty."

RENO, Nev., Aug. 19 (AP).—Mrs. James Cameron Clark, member of the fourth Vanderbilt generation, with her two children and her mother, Mrs. Edith Shepard Fabbri, is making her residence at Calneva, on the Nevada side of Lake Tahoe.

Mrs. Clark, it was admitted today by her attorney, George Springmeyer, is here to obtain a divorce, the charges to be mental cruelty.

Mrs. James Cameron Clark, the former Teresa Fabbri, is the daughter of Ernesto G. Fabbri and Mrs. Shepard Fabbri and a great-great-granddaughter of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. The former Miss Fabbri, whose parents are divorced, was married in Bar Harbor, Me., in December, 1917, to Lieutenant James Cameron Clark, son of Mrs. J. William Clark of 48 East Sixty-eighth Street. Mr. Clark, who is an aviator with a notable record as a parachute jumper, is a member of a prominent family which had important commercial interests here and in England for many years.

The flier's wife makes her home in New York with her mother at 7 East Ninety-fifth Street and is a member of a family which long has been prominent in business and society in New York. Her mother was Miss Edith Shepard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard.

She made her début in 1916 and became an active member of the Junior League. A few years after her wedding to Lieutenant Clark her mother and father were divorced.

Mr. Fabbri is a son of the late Ernesto G. Fabbri, a member of the old New York firm of Fabbri & Chauncey, who married a daughter of John Randall of this city and Florence, Italy.

Lieutenant Clark was graduated from Harvard in 1915. When his engagement to the former Miss Fabbri was announced on Nov. 21, 1917, he was stationed at San Antonio, Texas, with the aviation section of the Signal Corps. Remaining in the Aviation Service after the war, Lieutenant Clark became one of the star parachute jumpers at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, D. C.

Three years ago he filmed the landscape as it looks to the parachute jumper by means of an automatic motion picture camera strapped to his chest. Early last year he performed valuable tests of a new life-saving suit for use by naval aviators. Jumping from a plane at an altitude of 1,600 feet, Lieutenant Clark freed himself of his parachute just before falling into the Anacostia River and by means of the new life-saving suit came to the surface of the river quickly and was rescued.

He is a member of the following clubs: Knickerbocker, Merchants, Racquet and Tennis and Essex Fox Hounds. Mrs. Clark is a member of the Colony Club.

SUE RAILWAY FOR $97,000.

Three New York Youths Injured in Crash at Southern Crossing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Five suits for damages totaling $97,000 were filed against the Southern Railway today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, all of them the result of an automobile-train collision near Manassas, Va., on Nov. 18 last year in which three New York youths were injured.

The plaintiffs are Robert Sisson, a minor, by John W. Sisson of Gloversville, his father, who seeks $50,000 for personal injuries; John W. Sisson, who seeks $10,000 for the wreck of his automobile and money expended for the treatment of his son; William R. Strong, a minor, through his father, William W. Strong of Gloversville, who seeks $10,000 for personal injuries; John Link, a miner, through his guardian, William B. Hinds of Syracuse, N. Y., who seeks $26,000 for personal injuries, and Mrs. Mary Baker Link of Syracuse, who seeks $2,000 for injuries to her son and for expenses incurred in treating him.

All the suits allege that young Sisson was driving an automobile at night and crashed into a freight car which was halted on the tracks, obstructing a crossing.

WHALEN PREPARING REPORT

Preparatory to rendering his first formal report to Mayor Walker on his administration of the Police Department, Police Commissioner Whalen conferred yesterday with his sixty "key men," the heads of various bureaus and divisions under his control.

The report, which will be made public Aug. 28, Mr. Whalen said, is "very satisfactory." It covers the period from Jan. 1, immediately after he took office as successor to the late Joseph A. Warren, to June 30.

The conference of Deputy Chief Inspectors, Inspectors and Deputy Inspectors at Police Headquarters was not to find fault with any one or anything, the commissioner said. He merely wanted to urge upon the higher officers, the necessity of keeping close watch on their subordinates down to the patrolmen under their command.

"No matter how good a Police Department may be," the commissioner said, "it always can be improved."

The semi-annual report upon which Commissioner Whalen is putting the finishing touches, is the first he has rendered since he became commissioner. It was the practice of Commissioner Warren to make quarterly reports. George V. McLaughlin, who preceded Mr. Warren as commissioner reported annually.

3 DIE, 9 HURT IN CAR CRASH.

Three Families in Auto and Truck Collision Near Milton, Fla.

MILTON, Fla., Aug. 19 (AP).—Three persons were killed and nine injured last night when an automobile and a truck collided head-on near here.

Meyer Bakantz, aged 36, a merchant of Opp, Ala.; Betty Bukantz, 1 year old, and Marie Diamond, 3, of Beulah, Fla., were killed.

The injured include: T. J. Diamond, whose skull was fractured and who is not expected to live; Mrs. T. J. Diamond, severe bruises on face and head; Cecil Nesmith of Grand Ridge, Fla., broken ribs and other injuries; Wice Nesmith, 7, broken leg and cuts on face; Edward Nesmith, 5, bruises on face; Mrs. Meyer Bukantz, broken collar bone; Mrs. Kinklestein, injuries to head; Leo Finklestein minor injuries, and an unidentified infant. The worst injured were taken to Pensacola hospitals.

Bukantz and his party, occupants of the automobile, were returning to their home in Alabama and the Diamond and Nesmith families were in the truck. Both vehicles were demolished.

LARSON OFF FOR PINE CAMP.

Governor and Staff to Inspect Jersey Guard Regiment.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP LARSON, SEAGIRT, N. J., Aug. 19.—Governor Morgan F. Larson, accompanied by a group of about thirty, including his staff, left the State camp this evening for Pine Camp, Great Bend, N. Y., where they are to visit the 112th Field Artillery, New Jersey National Guard, which is encamped there in command of Colonel Edward Rose. They will return Wednesday.

At noon Thursday Governor Larson will entertain officers of the Forty-fourth Division at luncheon, and Thursday night Major Gen. Quincy A. Gillmore, divisional commander, will entertain at dinner in honor of Governor Larson.

Officers of the 102d Cavalry, New Jersey National Guard, encamped here, will be formally presented to the Governor at the Little White House Aug. 28, following the presentation, the Governor will entertain Colonel Lewis S. Gallantyne of Newark, commander of the cavalry regiment and his staff at dinner.

Bayonne Evening News Sold.

BAYONNE, N. J., Aug. 19 (AP).—The Bayonne Evening News today announces its sale by William F. Higgins, president of the Industrial City Publishing Company, to the South Hudson Publishing Company of 672 Broadway, Bayonne. Charles B. Pomel, formerly connected with The Jersey Journal and for four years advertising manager of The News, becomes general manager today, supplanting William Wolfe.

Station Ceiling Falls on Policeman.

Patrolman John T. Dilg, 45 years old, of 43 Bradford Avenue, Prince Bay, S. I., is in the Richmond Memorial Hospital, Prince Bay, with a fracture of the skull suffered Saturday when the ceiling of the storeroom in the New Dorp police station, where he is attendant, collapsed on him. The building is more than 40 years old and has been leased for a police station for thirty-two years.

Communists Have Been Ousted From Fur and Needle Unions, He Tells Committee.

HAILS PROGRESS IN SOUTH

Reports Leaders There Are Rapidly Organizing Workers in the Textile Factories.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 19.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor will report to the annual convention of the federation at Toronto in October that the attempt of communism to capture unions allied with the Federation has been checked.

William Green, president of the federation, and chairman of the executive council, now in quarterly session here, completing its annual report, said today:

"The fight against the Communists in the fur workers' organization and the needle trades is over. These were the only places where they had a foothold in the federation and they have been completely eliminated after a fight that has gone on for two years.

"At the height of their influence, the Communists were about to elect officers of the fur workers' union when we revoked the charter of the union and reorganized it. We received a report today from the new furriers' international union, expressing appreciation of what the federation has done and notifying us that the Communists, in calling off their last strike in the fur trades, had accepted defeat. They were not striking against the employers but against the federation."

In the work of organizing the textile workers of the South, Mr. Green said, the United Textile Workers, the recognized federation body, is "making gratifying progress at Elizabethton and in certain sections of North and South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama, where the workers have demanded a 10 per cent increase in wages and a reduction of the working day from twelve to ten hours.

The executive council expects to complete its session here tomorrow.

SACCO MEMORIAL HERE.

Committee, Unable to Get Space in Boston, Hires Town Hall for Aug. 23

Unable to get a hall in Boston, the Sacco-Vanzetti Memorial Committee and the American Civil Liberties Union announced yesterday that the meeting to observe the second anniversary of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti would be held in the Town Hall, in New York, on the anniversary date, Aug. 23, at 8:30 P. M.

The decision to hold the meeting in New York was reached, according to members of the Memorial Committee, after they had applied for every hall, hotel or theatre with a seating capacity of 1,000 or more in Boston, the city of the execution, and had been turned away. An advertisement on the front page of morning newspapers in Boston on Aug. 7 asking for a hall owner "with respect for the principles of Boston's forefathers" to offer a hall for the meeting also failed to bring a response.

Henry R. Mussey will preside. Speakers will include Professor Morris R. Cohen of the philosophy department of the College of the City of New York, Professor Horace M. Kallen of the New School for Social Research, the Rev. Sidney Lovett of the Mount Vernon Congregational Church of Boston, Dr. Alice Hamilton of the Harvard Medical School and Mrs. Gertrude L. Winslow of the Community Church of Boston.

Positions Versus Possessions

It is an interesting fact, which has never before, to our knowledge, been put into words, that the upper and the lower register of the social scale depend equally and almost entirely upon possessions for their social standing in their group; while the middle register of that same social scale depends hardly at all upon its possessions and almost entirely upon its positions for the maintenance of its social standing in its community.

The moment this fact is explained it is immediately understood. And because of its very great significance in the true story of American business, it is rather odd that it has never been under discussion before.

We say of the top side of this scale, "He owns a big factory." Or, "They have a country estate." Or, "He's just bought a beautiful yacht." Or possibly, "They come from an old family," (for family is as much a possession as property). And we measure them by what they have. He may also be a director in a bank and president in several corporations. But that is almost secondary in our minds when we mention him. Almost entirely it is what they have that makes us talk.

When we go to the other end of the scale, we find exactly the same thing. "They own their own home." "They've just bought a new car." "They've just bought a piano, a radio, a washing-machine, a set of dishes, or a fur coat." It doesn't make a particle of difference what the man in the case does in the factory, or the warehouse, or on the new building that starts its way toward the sky. His standing in his own social group rests, not on his position, but on his possessions and on his capacity for possessions.

Then comes the middle scale. And by one of the strangest freaks in the study of social economy the whole picture changes in a flash.

"Who is he?" we say. And then comes the answer:

"Why, don't you know? He's the Western Manager for So-and-So." "He's the General Manager of Blankanco." "He's the Special Representative of American Something, Inc."

And the women? No different.

"Why, don't you know who she is? She's the wife of the Western Manager for So-and-So." "She's the wife of the General Manager of Blankanco." "Why, her husband is the Special Representative of American Something, Inc."

Nobody asks whether they have a radio, or a country estate, or even an automobile, except as the type of automobile may be the measure of the type of job. They may live in a hotel, or a one-room kitchenette apartment, or a substantial suburb, and the question of possessions never arises in your mind.

So far as the bricklayer and the millionaire are concerned, they may both lose their jobs, both be out of work, so to speak, but so long as they retain their possessions, or their capacity for possession, their social status is not changed by so much as a flicker of an eye.

But let the man of position lose his job and see what happens. Almost in the same flicker of an eye, the neighbors begin to pity, and the friends to go down the other side of the street. Too many fine men of position have lost their positions to have any question on that score.

Now, interestingly enough, when we go back to our mirror of American business for the true reflection of this situation, we find the true stories in True Story Magazine fairly shouting this fact if one will take the trouble to read between the lines.

Ten years ago there were plenty of "out of a job" stories, as you can well understand. But there was never the sign of social change in any of those stories. Never an intimation that the standing of the man or the woman in that particular group was affected in the slightest degree. Always the story revolved about the thing that was going to happen to the little possessions that had been so carefully and painstakingly acquired. Would the furniture and the washing-machine have to go back? Would the family have to move out?

As the great economic change swept over America, spreading wealth down through the masses in a greater and greater outpouring of prosperity, the picture of these true stories changed, of course, changed as gloriously as an evening rainbow changes a dismal day. But through all of these years, the character of these stories has never changed.

Possessions and not positions is still the theme.

Even today, when the real money of America has finally landed in the pockets of several million pairs of overalls, these stories in True Story Magazine still revolve about possessions, about what they have or about what they are going to get, and not about who they are or who they are going to be.

Possessions, possessions, and more possessions runs always between the lines. Love may be the theme, the trial or the triumph, but the outcome is possessions every time.

5 HAGUE AIDES FACE CONTEMPT CHARGE

Civil Service Commissioner Plans to Punish Them for Walking Out on Inquiry.

CASE UP IN TRENTON TODAY

Hearing Was on Loss of Jersey City Hospital Job by Electrician Who Refused Campaign Appeal.

Commissioner William B. Quinn, director of revenue and finance of Jersey City; Dr. George V. O'Hanlon, medical director of City Hospital in Jersey City, and three others face proceedings to punish them for contempt today as a result of their refusal to testify yesterday at a hearing before Civil Service Commissioner Carl A. Ruhlmann in Jersey City.

The hearing was on an appeal by Otto Uhl, former electrician at City Hospital, to determine whether his position had been justly abolished for stated reasons of economy by a resolution introduced by Mr. Quinn and approved by the city commission on May 26.

According to Mr. Ruhlmann the witness was prepared to show that "politics and not economy has caused the city commission to abolish his job." The applicant, Mr. Ruhlmann said, had refused to donate 3 per cent. of his annual salary to the Hague political campaign and had refused also to canvass voters for the Democratic organization.

"At the same time," said Mr. Ruhlmann, "Uhl was prepared to show that City Hospital operates under a system of extravagance which had no parallel in the conduct of hospitals in this country."

Mr. Quinn, Dr. O'Hanlon and the three other witnesses, Joseph White, chief engineer of the hospital; Andrew Mulligan, chief utility man, and Fire Captain John Feni, were present when the hearing opened at the City Hall. Charles A. Rooney Assistant Corporation Counsel, promptly objected to the proceeding, declaring that proper notice of five days had not been given to the city and also that the Civil Service Commission had no authority to hold such a hearing.

Mr. Ruhlmann read excerpts from the laws which he asserted gave the commission such a right and Mr. Rooney then announced that he withdrew from the case.

Dr. O'Hanlon was called to the stand and under examination by District Court Judge August Ziegener, who acted as counsel for Uhl, testified that the hospital employed 530 persons and that its annual cost was $1,000,000. Dr. O'Hanlon testified that the city provides a house in which he lives with his wife and two sons. Asked whether the sons were married he declined to answer.

"Do you refuse to answer on the ground that your reply might incriminate you?" asked Judge Ziegener.

Dr. O'Hanlon hesitated for a moment. Mr. Rooney prompted him to reply in the negative.

At a gesture from Mr. Rooney, Dr. O'Hanlon left the stand. Mr. Rooney and the five witnesses then left the room.

Mr. Ruhlman announced that the matter would be presented before the Civil Service Commission at a meeting in Trenton today. He said he proposed to recommend swift punishment for the recalcitrant witnesses. He said he had been advised that the president of the Civil Service Commission may ask for bench warrants for the arrest of the witnesses.

Dr. O'Hanlon, until he became medical director of the City Hospital in Jersey City several years ago, was in charge of the medical staff at Bellevue Hospital in New York.

1,000 Children on Outing Today.

A thousand children from the lower east side will be taken on an outing today by the Eleventh Ward Association, a non-partisan organization whose members include Samuel S. Koenig, New York County Republican Chairman, and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader. Twenty buses will start from 20 Avenue C at 9 A. M. for a trip into the country. Municipal Court Justice Lester Lazarus, president, and Samuel Sassler and Ralph P. Koenig, vice presidents of the organization, are in charge of the outing.

KEEPERS PUT OUT FIRE IN TOMBS KITCHEN

Blaze Caused by Overflowing Grease Pan Extinguished Before Firemen Enter Gate.

Just before the inmates in the Tombs were released from their cells at 8:30 yesterday morning for their morning exercise, a pan of grease in a kitchen on the seventh floor of the prison overflowed and ignited. Jerome Daly, one of the secretaries of the Board of Transportation across from the prison at Lafayette and Leonard Streets, saw the blaze and, running to the quarters of Engine 31, at Lafayette and White Streets, two blocks north, turned in a still alarm.

A hose wagon and crew of six men responded. A line of hose was run from a standpipe on the outside of the prison wall to the Lafayette Street vehicle entrance. Before the gate was opened, however, keepers under Deputy Warden Joseph Crowley had put out the blaze. The firemen insisted on running the hose into the yard and making certain that the fire was entirely out and then went back to their quarters. There was no excitement among the prisoners, who were kept locked in their cells.

PLATTSBURG COMMAND TAKEN BY COL. ADLER

Officers of 306th Infantry Find Much Work to Be Done at Military Camp.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 19. Sixty-five officers of the 306th Infantry, Seventy-seventh Division, under Colonel Julius Ochs Adler, took over command of the August Citizens' Military Training Camp this morning for the remaining two weeks of training.

The closing date of the camp has been advanced two days. The course will terminate Aug. 31. Much work is yet to be done. Preparations for the rifle ranges are under way, with candidates being taught the range routine. This will take up the better part of the present week.

Ex-Senator James W. Wadsworth, former chairman of the United States Senate Committee on Military Affairs, paid an informal visit to the training camp. He expressed pleasure at the sample of young manhood which is being turned out here.

Official notice was also received at Plattsburg Barracks this morning that Major Gen. Hanson S. Ely, commander of the Second Corps Area, will inspect the post and training camp on Aug. 27. He will be accompanied by Major Edward Bowditch Jr., civilian aide to the Secretary of War.

HOLLAND TUBE RECORD SET.

53,307 Vehicles Passed Through the Tunnel on Sunday.

Sunday's travel through the Holland Tunnel set a record for the number of vehicles going to and from New Jersey under the Hudson, with 53,307 recorded during the twenty-four hours, the Holland Tunnel Commission announced yesterday.

On the busiest previous day since the tunnel's opening—May 12 last—52,174 vehicles passed through. Last Saturday was the most active Saturday in the records of the tunnel with 39,948 vehicles, as against 37,561 on the best Saturday up to that time—July 27 last.

The commission reported that in spite of this increased use of the tunnel there was no congestion at any time.

QUIMBY AND CUTLER PLEAD NOT GUILTY

John W. Cutler and Milton G. Quimby, indicted for mail fraud by the Federal Grand Jury last week in connection with the failure of the Clarke Brothers' private bank, entered pleas of not guilty before Federal Judge Charles A. Boynton yesterday. United States Attorney Tuttle indicated that an early trial for both men would be sought. Meanwhile they were continued under $7,500 bail each, the amount set following their arrest last week.

Both men obtained considerable sums of money from the Clarke Bank, for which they gave unsecured demand notes, which notes were never called by the bank. The existence of these notes came to light through the failure of the bank, with liabilities of $5,000,000, and with a large number of depositors of small means who had put their savings in the institution.

Quimby, so far as was ever explained, obtained the funds advanced to him by the Clarke firm in connection with ventures in which he was interested as a promoter. Cutler, who is a former secretary of the Private Bankers' Association of the State of New York, obtained $82,000 on notes, and in addition received $100 a week for upward of three years for "an option on his services," which never was exercised. Cutler has admitted receiving such sums, but the only service he has testified to rendering the firm was in 1923, when he told examiners of the State Banking Department that under the law they had no jurisdiction over the Clarke firm and persuaded them to desist from their intention of examining the firm.

According to the indictment to which the two pleaded not guilty yesterday, the mailing of a certain letter was in furtherance of a scheme to defraud, to which the three Clarke brothers, all of whom have pleaded guilty to other charges, were parties. There are twelve counts to the indictment, on each of which a maximum sentence of five years is possible under the law.

PLUNGES FROM MOUNTAIN.

Denver Climber Falls 1,500 Feet on Long's Peak—Search On for Body.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 19 (AP).—Charles H. Thiemeyer of Denver plunged 1,500 feet to probable death from Broadway Ledge on the east base of Long's Peak yesterday while ascending the peak. Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Stacher of Boulder, Col., companions of Mr. Thiemeyer, who had been marooned all night on a narrow ledge, were rescued today.

Mr. Thiemeyer, an expert climber of Swiss mountains, fell from the wall of a precipice above Chasm Lake, where park rangers expect to find his body. Dr. and Mrs. Stacher also are experienced mountaineers. They tried to attract help after Mr. Thiemeyer fell, but rescue parties who heard their cries were unable to reach them before nightfall.

FOR THE GREATER CONVENIENCE OF UPTOWN NEW YORK

A NEW Baltimore & Ohio Motor Coach Station

15 Columbus Circle at Central Park West

will be opened on August 26th

Public approval of Baltimore & Ohio Train Connection Service has again made it necessary to provide additional station facilities, this time for the greater convenience of travelers to and from uptown New York.

This has resulted in the opening of a fourth Motor Coach Station at 15 Columbus Circle, at Central Park West.

This new station is equipped with Ticket and Pullman Office—Baggage-Checking Facilities—Waiting Room—and Porter Service.

The Baltimore & Ohio provides dependable service to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington; to Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis; to Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and Chicago; and to more than a thousand other cities and towns; connections to points throughout the South and West.

For Tickets and full information, apply to any Coach Station, Consolidated Ticket Office or the Travel Bureau, located in the 42nd St. Station, phone Ashland 4400. Columbus Circle Station, phone Columbus 1053. For Pullman reservations phone Ashland 1562.

In The American Magazine for September 1st out today

AMERICA'S FIRST LADY

Read what Mrs. Coolidge says about:

THE FRIEND who guided her through her introduction to formal Washington.

THE CURIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES under which she learned that Mr. Coolidge "did not choose to run."

THE SOUVENIR HUNTERS who invade even the White House.

THE FORMAL DINNER that she always remembers as "The Dinner of Horrors."

THE SEARCH of the White House attic for relics of former presidents.

THE MAIL BOX of a president's wife—what it contains.

... These and many other interesting and amusing high lights of White House life are described by Mrs. Coolidge in her series of articles, beginning with the September issue. On all newsstands today.

IN A REMARKABLE SERIES of articles written exclusively for The American Magazine, Mrs. Coolidge now tells for the first time her experiences in the White House during her five and a half years as First Lady of the Land.

HER'S is not a story of politics. Or of statecraft. Or of formal diplomatic Washington. It is the intimate, human story of Grace Coolidge's personal experiences. Her everyday interests. Her social duties. Her thoughts and her feelings.

With frankness and charm, with her own rich humor and a genuine gift for story telling shining through every line, Mrs. Coolidge lifts the curtain and shows us life in the White House . . . as it is actually lived by a president and his wife and family.

We chat with the Coolidges and their guests at the famous White House breakfasts. We lounge on the deck of the Mayflower as it slowly steams down the Potomac. We accompany Mrs. Coolidge on her incognito shopping tours. Her experiences are ours—so vividly, so modestly has she written.

The 2,200,000 families which The American Magazine reaches every month are accustomed to finding in its pages just such human documents. Chapters out of the lives of real people—the known great and the unknown great.

This is why readers of The American Magazine find inspiration and stimulation in its pages. Through the experiences of other people—people who have met and conquered life—they are shown the way to make their own lives happier, richer, and finer.

WILL ROGERS tells "How to be Funny"

"I have been interviewed in every town in the United States," writes America's funniest good-will ambassador, "by serious looking young college boys, with horn rimmed glasses and no hats, on the subject, 'How would you advise a beginner to be funny?' " Here Will obliges with some sound advice, and it's as uproariously funny as anything he ever wrote.

Bank Bandit became Vice-President of the bank he helped to rob

Convicted of robbery at twenty-four, sentenced to eight years in a penitentiary, disgraced and an outcast in the eyes of the world—this man faced the future with only one girl still believing in him. The story of his downfall and his courageous struggle back, is one of the most absorbing documents of actual human experience that we have ever published.

"If you have friends you can endure anything," says HELEN KELLER

"If a beautiful memory is the most precious wealth one can possess," says Helen Keller, "then I am indeed rich in happy memories of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell." The amazing woman who never could actually see the inventor of the telephone or hear his voice, gives us one of the most vivid pictures of a noted American ever penned. She tells how he brought happiness into her life, and to the lives of thousands of others who are unable to hear.

"I am Ashamed of Myself," says ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

A recent accident left this famous writer of dog stories dangerously close to death. While fighting his way back to health he discovered something about other people that convinced him he wasn't as fine an individual as he had thought.

Q. E. D.

Questions were recently asked of 41,000 American families by nine of the country's largest advertisers—among them, Frigidaire, Colgate, Studebaker, Campbell and Victor. The questions were (1) how do you buy? (2) what magazine do you enjoy most?

Each advertiser investigated independently—but each got the same major results. 1st: In the great majority of homes, family buying is done after two or more members of the family give their advice and opinions. 2nd: In most homes, one magazine, The American Magazine, proved to be the overwhelming favorite with ALL members of the family.

DIRIGIBLE TO TEST PLANE HOOK-UP

The Los Angeles Is Expected to Make Experimental Flight Today.

TO STUDY AIR CURRENTS

Commander Wiley Says Cross-Hangar Wind Has Been Holding Ship In Her Hangar.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEHURST, Aug. 19.—The Navy dirigible Los Angeles is expected to leave her hangar early tomorrow on an experimental flight with several airplanes that are now at the station. The flight will be to demonstrate the practicability of taking on or discharging small planes from the ship while in flight. Recently a successful hookup with a plane was worked out on the ship.

According to Lieut. Commander Herbert V. Wiley, skipper of the dirigible, the ship is scheduled to carry on test flights with various types of planes, the present problem being the working out of air currents at various sections of the ship. The work now under way, Commander Wiley said, is in the developing stages and he declined disclosing at the present time any of the features that enter into the methods employed in taking on and discharging planes while in flight. The Los Angeles is equipped with a trapeze constructed of the same material that makes up the framework of the ship. The plane that has been hooked to the ship has been equipped with a large hook atop the wing, which is fastened automatically to the cross-bar hanging below the dirigible while in flight.

The air current tests, according to Commander Wiley, will be conducted by several planes of various sizes. They will fly close to the ship at various altitudes and the effect of the air currents about the ship will be noted. These tests will be conducted in the daytime. At the present time a cross-hangar wind is holding the ship "hangar-bound," the commander said. On Aug. 28 the ship is scheduled to fly over the finish line of the Cleveland air races. No route has been decided. The intinerary will not be made definite until the ship has taken the air for the flight, the commander said.

EIGHT SALMON SHIPS BRING 491,000 CASES

Alaska Fleet Reaches San Francisco, Reporting Heavy Pack—Round-the-World Steamer Due.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—With eight ships from the Alaska fishing grounds arriving in port to date the total amount of salmon brought in up to this afternoon was 493,696 cases. Of the eight arrivals five were members of the Alaska Packers' Corporations, two belonged to the F. B. Peterson fleet and one to the Alaska Salmon Company.

The five ships of the A. P. C. fleet brought in a total of 386,196 cases, while the two Peterson ships had 72,500 and the Elwin C. Hale of the Alaska Salmon Company had 35,000 cases.

The ships of the Alaska Packers fleet with the number of cases of Salmon brought into port to date were:

The Kvichak from Bristol Bay with 17,984 cases; Bering from Naknek, 129,000 cases; Arctic from Nushagak, 103,000 cases; Star of Holland from Naknek, 40,212 cases; Chirikof from Bristol Bay, 96,000 cases.

The Mount Baker of the F. B. Peterson fleet brought in 71,500 cases from Ugashik, while the Hyades of the same fleet from Naknek came into port with 61,000 cases.

The salmon pack this season, according to reports, is heavier than for several years and several more members of the salmon fleet are now on their way from Alaska to this port. These large cargoes will be the basis of spirited trading and of competition among transportation lines, both rail and water, when the commodity starts toward Eastern markets shortly.

The Matson liner Matsonia from the Hawaiian Islands, which is due to arrive here this morning, will head the list of four scheduled arrivals in the local harbor tomorrow and Wednesday.

Following the Matsonia will be the round-the-world Dollar liner President Polk and early Wednesday morning the Dollar liner President Jefferson from the Orient and the Matson liner Malolo from Honolulu will make the harbor.

All four of the vessels are carrying capacity lists of passengers.

CEMETERY MEN ASK FUNDS.

Strikers Appeal to Other Unions, Saying Families Are Starving.

Declaring that all of its members were penniless and their families starving, the Cemetery Workers' Union, which has been on strike for three weeks, forwarded appeals for funds yesterday to more than 1,000 labor unions in the State of New York. At the same time it was announced that a delegation had been sent to the convention of the State division of the American Federation of Labor to ask endorsement of the strike by that organization.

Despite the assertion that the strikers were in a destitute condition, 350 members of the union at a meeting at McGarry's Hall, 69 Greenpoint Avenue, Brooklyn, last night voted to continue the strike until their demands for higher wages were submitted to arbitration. It was also decided to have the wives and children of the strikers picket the offices of the Calvary Cemetery Corporation at 24 West Forty-second Street this afternoon.

Burials at the cemetery are still greatly hindered as a result of the strike, cemetery officials said.

Hold Truck Driver in Death of Four

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP).—The driver of the parked truck which caused the death of four persons and injury to two others near Crittenden early yesterday will be charged with first degree manslaughter on orders of F. M. Kujawa, Medical Examiner. William Lynch of this city, said to have been the driver, is held at Erie County Jail. Mrs. Pauline Schultz of Warren, Pa.; Mrs. Anna Kucaikowski, 50; her daughter, Florence, 20, and John Cooper, all of Buffalo, were killed.

Sinclair's and Day's Pardon Pleas Go To Judge Who Sentenced Them to Jail

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The applications of Harry F. Sinclair and Henry Mason Day for their release from the District of Columbia jail were forwarded tonight to Justice Frederick L. Siddons at his Summer home in Haven, Me. Justice Siddons presided at the Sinclair and Day trials here and imposed sentences.

The applications were sent Justice Peyton Gordon of the District Supreme Court first by United States District Attorney Leo A. Rover, as Justice Gordon was United States Attorney at the time of the Sinclair-Albert B. Fall trial, and Mr. Rover thought his own recommendation should be accompanied by that of the prosecutor in the case.

Justice Gordon's recommendation and that of Mr. Rover were sent to Justice Siddons by mail tonight.

Justice Siddons is expected to return the papers in the case together with his recommendation to United States Attorney Rover, who, in turn, will submit them to the attorney general.

If the Department of Justice, the presiding justice and the prosecutors approve the applications, they will then go to President Hoover for final action.

Sinclair and Day, one of his associates, are serving six and four months' sentences, respectively, for contempt of court in connection with jury shadowing activities during the trial of Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with the Teapot Dome oil lease.

NEW CHARGES MADE IN 'POISONING PLOT'

Letter to New York Firm Said by Oklahoma Official in Hyde Case to Be Forgery.

PONCA CITY, Okla., Aug. 19 (AP).—Ralph Harder, Assistant County Attorney of Kay County, said tonight that three additional charges will be added tomorrow to those already filed against F. C. Hyde, who is accused of formulating and attempting to execute a poison plot against Samuel C. Collins, brother-in-law of E. W. Marland, wealthy oil man of this city. Hyde had been employed by Collins for years as confidential secretary and legal adviser.

Hyde was arraigned Saturday on a charge of attempting to kill Collins some weeks ago by placing poison in a soft drink sent to the oil man's office. His arrest followed an alleged second attempt last week to poison his employer. Harder said the two additional charges would allege two forgeries and a conspiracy to commit a felony.

The new charges will be based on a letter, alleged to be signed with Collins's forged name to Collins's New York banker, ordering him to send to Hyde 500 shares of Continental Oil Company stock which belonged to Collins; a draft for $3,500 on Collins, reported to have been forged and found in Hyde's possession, and Hyde's alleged attempt to enlist the aid of Chris Wiederkehr of Ponca City in a purported plot to kidnap and poison Hyde.

CHINESE URGE CENSURE FOR OUR JOURNALISTS

Nationalist Party Committee Scores Touring Group for Opinions They Expressed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 19.—"We strongly advocate that our government give a severe warning to American journalists and lodge a strong protest with American imperialists," says a resolution adopted by the diplomatic affairs committee of the Kuomintang (Nationalist party) after reading opinions expressed in Japanese and in American newspapers by some members of the group of newspaper men recently touring China as guests of the Carnegie Foundation.

Telegrams are being sent to the Chinese Ministers in Washington and Tokio urging them to ascertain the real objects of the trip and report confidentially.

The resolution bitterly denounces the United States, declaring "all Chinese must be fully convinced" that America is no longer upholding justice and sympathizing with weak nations.

IMPEACHED OFFICIAL QUITS.

Attorney General Knox Not to Be Tried by Mississippi Senate.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 19 (AP).—Rush H. Knox, Attorney General of Mississippi, recently impeached by the House of Representatives of the State Legislature, this afternoon tendered his resignation to Governor Bilbo. It is expected that the resignation will be effective Sept. 1. A successor will be named by Governor Bilbo probably tomorrow.

Mr. Knox was impeached by the lower house of the Mississippi Legislature for alleged high crimes, misdemeanors, corruption and malfeasance in office, on one count, with eleven other counts left pending.

The resignation was submitted with the understanding that the eleven remaining articles would be dropped and that article one, on which the vote was taken, would not be used to bring the official to trial before the Senate.

INDUS FLOOD SUBSIDING.

Bridge at Attock Withstands Water —Two Reported Dead.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAHORE, India, Aug. 19.—The flood waters which inundated the valley of the Indus following the bursting of an ice dam in Kashmir, are subsiding as suddenly as they arose.

The bridge at Attock, 600 miles away, withstood the rush of the water from the nine-mile long artificial lake which the breaking of the ice dam released, though it tore through the valleys at the rate of twenty miles an hour. The Indus in flood reached more than fifty feet at Attock, close to the record, but owing to airplanes' warning only two lives were reported lost.

The backwash up the Kabul River which caused a rise of forty-eight feet at Jehangira had practically dissipated itself when it reached Nowshera, twenty miles further up.

FOUR HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

Brasier Falls (N. Y.) Family Injured in Ontario Accident.

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 19.—Albert Hoag, 31 years old, of Brasier Falls, N. Y., his wife, Mrs. Mabel Hoag, 29, and their children, Donald and Patricia, were seriously injured tonight when their automobile crashed with a farmer's truck three miles east of Leamington, Ont. The condition of the mother and the son was reported to be critical. The father and daughter suffered less serious injuries. All are in hospital at Leamington.

The Hoags were going east when two trucks approached. The first truck is said to have halted suddenly and the second truck, swerving out to avoid a rear-end crash, smashed head on into the tourist car. John Tyrhurst of Leamington, driver of the truck, escaped injury.

BOMB CHICAGO HOME OF POLITICAL LEADER

Thompson's Aide's House Torn for Second Time—Political Motive Suspected.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The Chicago "bomb trust" which recently was said by police officials and the State's Attorney's office to have been wiped out with the wholesale arrest of alleged ringleaders, demonstrated early this morning that it was far from extinct when it supplied one of its most powerful infernal machines for political purposes, and exploded it in the doorway of the Summer home of Lawrence F. King, sanitary district trustee and Mayor Thompson's southwest side leader.

The bomb, the second aimed at Mr. King within a year, exploded at 2:30 A. M. It ripped out a wall, shattered windows throughout the structure and rocked the house from top to bottom. Mr. King's five children, asleep upstairs, escaped injury. Lieutenant George Barker of the Bomb Squad said he could detect a political note in the sound of the blast.

Last December a bomb was exploded in front of Mr. King's former home and the police belief was that it was a warning that caused Mr. King to move his family away from his own ward and out into a quieter section of the country.

ATTACKS NEW WISE ACT.

Simpson Calls Trenton Revision Inadequate and Deceptive.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 19.—Senator Alexander Simpson of Hudson County, Democratic minority leader, in a statement issued today, criticized the Wise act, regulating the use of bridges by utility companies and declared that the revision adopted by the Legislature last Monday remedies the faults of the measure only in part. He objected particularly to the provision that the Board of Public Utility Commissioner pass upon disputes between the Highway Commission and the utility companies.

Senator Simpson characterized the special session of the Legislature at which the act was revised as "play-acting" designed to deceive the public.

"You take away from one State board directly functioning with the subject its 'power' and give the power to another board unfitted to do the work," he said. "There is a bridge now being erected in Hudson County over the Hackensack costing millions. If the highway board orders certain 'terms,' 'charges' and 'regulations' which the public utility does not like, it can interrupt the whole progress of the highway board by giving to the Public Utility Commission the program which is going to cost the State $240,000,000."

SEES BRITISH CRIME DROP.

Dr. Ahern, Prison Physician, Here, Says Weak Beer Empties Jails.

Dr. J. M. Ahern, senior medical officer of Walton jail, Liverpool, the largest in England, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Baltic on his annual voyage as assistant surgeon. He will visit his wife's family in Boston.

Dr. Ahern has been in the prison service for thirty years, becoming assistant medical officer in the jail where he is now chief after experience in the principal penitentiaries in England.

Dr. Ahern said that Walton jail was full all the time when he first went there but that now it is half empty. When asked the reason for this falling off in prisoners he replied:

"The beer is so weak and so dear that the aggressive pre-war spirit has died down. The magistrates in Liverpool are trying to save money for the taxpayers and give men time to raise the money for their fines instead of sentencing them to jail to board at the public's expense."

BANK LOSES TAX CASE.

National Park's Suit for $968,348 Dismissed by Federal Court.

Suit for recovery of $968,348.44 by the National Park Bank, which contended it had been excessively assessed that amount on its excess profits tax in 1919, was dismissed by Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman yesterday. Judge Julian W. Mack previously had dismissed a similar suit, but granted the bank the right to file another complaint.

The bank, represented by Barry, Wainwright and Thacher, contended that Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair, in making the assessment, had used a different basis of computation than that used in the cases of other banks. Judge Coleman ruled that Mr. Blair had acted within his rights in arriving at the figures, which made a total excess profits tax of $1,967,428.48 for the year in question, and that the tax had been fair.

FIND TOYS 4,000 YEARS OLD

Hungarian Excavations Unearth Factory and Children's Graves.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 19.—Excavations at Nemetboly, near Pec, have resulted in the discovery of a 4,000-year-old toy factory. Among its products are clay pitchers only an inch high, a little wooden doll and other figures.

In near-by children's graves were discovered similar objects, lying just as they were buried 4,000 years ago with their little owners.

TO BOOST UNION PRODUCTS.

Trades Association to Hold Meetings in Principal Cities.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 29.—In an effort to create a greater demand for union made products, meetings will be held in the principal cities of the State, starting Labor Day, it was decided at the annual State meeting of the Union Label Trades Association here tonight.

Charles E. Sinnegen of Brooklyn, re-elected secretary-treasurer, said that labor's viewpoint on vital national and international matters would be broadcast and labor questions discussed.

William A. Denison of Rochester was elected president of the State association.

William Goff of Syracuse was elected a vice president to represent waiters and cooks and A. R. Hickey of Syracuse was elected a vice president to represent bakery and confectionery workers.

Twenty-six vice presidents were elected, James K. Dudgeon representing Brooklyn and Daniel J. Ahearn and Miss Minnie Teitelbaum New York City.

Delegates from practically every city in the State reported that agitation to discourage the use of convict-made goods has resulted in a sharp decrease in sales of such goods.

BUSINESS WOMEN IN VIENNA.

28 Americans Who Seek World Federation Arrive There.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 19.—Twenty-eight American business women, who have been seeking to interest business women in Middle Europe in a scheme to form a world-wide federation of business and professional women, arrived in Vienna today.

They are headed by Miss Lena Madison Phillips, New York practicing attorney, who is chairman of the International Relations Committee of the American National Federation of Business and Professional Women, and include the woman manager of a cotton plantation, the secretary-treasurer of a bank, the treasurer of a publicity company and a woman real estate dealer.

In Budapest they found one woman acting as chief chemist in a large factory and another running a woman's newspaper. In Czechoslovakia they talked with a woman member of the Czechoslovakian Senate.

Another group of thirty-three women is touring England, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and Italy. It is hoped to organize national federations in European countries similar to that in the United States and call a meeting at Geneva next year to establish an international body.

KILLED IN MANOEUVRES.

Artilleryman Victim in Stampede of Horses at Fort Russell, Wyo.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 19 (AP).—Walter C. Brunson, aged 21, of Indianapolis, Ind. was killed and ten other men were injured, three seriously, today when more than fifty horses attached to a field artillery battery stampeded att he Pole Mountain manoeuvres and target reservation of Fort D. A. Russell, thirty miles northwest of Cheyenne.

The dead trooper was a private in Battery A of the Seventy-sixth Field Artillery, as were all the injured. The stampede occurred in an artillery manoeuvre when the horse bolted and threw riders and cannoneers and trampled over other soldiers.

Frank G. Miner of Syracuse, N. Y., with minor lacerations, was among the injured.

GIRL FACES PROSECUTION.

Charges Filed Against Orphan Who Shot Jersey City Policeman.

A charge of atrocious assault and battery with intent to kill was filed against Alice Corbett, 16 years old, an orphan, by the Jersey City police yesterday after she told them that she had shot Policeman George McHale, 32 years old, the night before, while he was sleeping. She did so, she said, in retaliation for a criminal assault.

McHale, in City Hospital, is close to death. He denied the girl's charge. She lived with his family. Inspector John Underwood, investigating the case, said he had found the girl's story "convincing and consistent."

WINS MINING MEDAL.

G. S. Rice of Federal Bureau Is Honored by English Engineers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The medal of the Institution of Mining Engineers, it was announced tonight, has been awarded to George S. Rice, chief mining engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines at Washington.

The medal, the announcement said, is in recognition of Mr. Rice's "eminence in all matters relating to the safe working of coal mines and the well-being of mine workers, with special reference to the practical application of scientific knowledge."

PROTESTS RED OIL SEIZURE

TOKIO, Aug 19 (AP).—The Harbin representative of the Standard Oil Company of New York is reported in Rengo News Agency dispatches to have protested to the Soviet Government against the seizure of large quantities of gasoline aboard a Chinese steamer on the Amur River recently captured by Soviet gunboats. The protest was said to have been made through the Germa Consul in Harbin.

To Exchange State Visits.

LISBON, Aug. 19 (AP).—An exchange of visits between President Carmona of Portugal and King Alfonso of Spain was agreed upon at the recent meeting of the Spanish dictator, General Primo de Rivera, and the Portuguese Premier, Ivens Ferraz, it is stated here. The President of Portugal will visit the Seville and Barcelona exhibitions in October, later making a short stay in Madrid. King Alfonso will then make a visit to Lisbon. The date is not fixed.

Mrs. Geiger to Wed R. Barker.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 19 (AP).—Reginald Barker, motion picture director, and Mrs. Nona Claridge Geiger, New York opera singer and divorced wife of Frank Geiger, announced today that they will be married at Riverside, Cal., Sunday. It will be Mr. Barker's second marriage. His first wife died three years ago.

JUDGES 'PROTECTED' BY DAILY BOUQUET

"JAIL FEVER" WARDED OFF

Day in Old Bailey Fatal to Many Prominent Persons Recalled by Justice Riddell.

"Those who have ever been in the Old Bailey court room during a criminal trial would probably notice a bouquet of flowers set in front of his Majesty's justice, the trial judge," writes William Renwick Riddell, Justice of Appeal of Ontario, in the American Bar Association Journal. "This is now but an ornament, like the little tag on the barrister's gown; but at one time it was supposed to be of great value as a prophylactic. The judge had to be protected from infection from the prisoners tried before him.

"What was chiefly to be guarded against was what was generally called jail fever; it was supposed to be caused by the foul air of the prisons, &c., and was very contagious. It was sometimes called ship fever, spotted fever, and we now call it typhus fever. In olden days, and indeed until our own time, it was supposed to be generated out of filth and over-crowding, bad diet and close foul air, and to be transmitted by the air, just as until the other day, it was believed that malaria came from the foul and heavy air of swamps, whereas we now know that it was transmitted by a species of mosquito, as the plague was by the rat-flea."

Judge Riddell writes that many living medical practitioners were taught that "typhoid comes from bad water, typhus from bad air," and goes on to state that the fever, which the Old Bailey bouquet really guarded against originally, was transmitted by the "pediculus corporis, which was the curse of our trenches in the great war." The writer continues:

"To prevent the infection from dock to bench, a nosegay of wholesome and sweet-smelling flowers was placed before the judge—just as the old physicians carried a pouncet-box in the head of their cane, full of fragrant spices, which from time to time they smelled in order to ward off infection. The nosegay was in fact as ineffective as the pouncet-box to keep away the noxious intruder; but it was useful in its psychological effect—like bread-pills, a harmless and heartening placebo.

"That the danger from infection was real is made vividly manifest by what took place at the Old Bailey in April, 1750. The story has been told by more than one contemporary writer, by none better than Mr. Justice Foster in his 'The Report'—he was then on the bench.

"One Mr. Clarke was on trial, and the court room and all the passages were crowded, it being a case that created great interest among the people—the extreme and unusual heat did not suffice to keep them away.

"Many noticed a very noisome smell, and an inquiry subsequently ordered disclosed that the whole Newgate Prison and all the passages were and long had been in a very filthy condition—this was later on, according to the ideas of the time, supposed to have had its share in causing the tragedy which followed.

"In a week or ten days, many of those who were present at this trial were seized with a most malignant fever; and very few recovered. A somewhat curious circumstance was noticed, namely, that women were little affected, only one out of the many present being known to have taken the fever.

"What was also noticed at the time was that there was no more sickness in Newgate than usual—this was much remarked on, as previous outbreaks had occurred when gaol-fever was rampant in the prison. Mr Justice Foster says:

"'This circumstance . . . suggesteth a very proper caution, not to presume too far upon the health of the gaol, barely because the gaol-fever is not among the prisoners. For without doubt, if the points of cleanliness and free air have been greatly neglected, the putrid effluvia which the prisoners bring with them in their cloaths, &c., especially where too many are brought into court together, may have fatal effects on people who are accustomed to breathe better air; though the poor wretches who are in some measure habituated to the fumes of a prison may not always be sensible of any great inconvenience from them.'

"From the contagion of this memorable court day died Justice Sir Thomas Abney of the Court of Common Pleas, a very able and conscientious judge and a strong Hanoverian; Charles Clarke, a Puisné Baron of the Exchequer; Sir Samuel Pennant, Lord Mayor of London, who had been joined in the Commission of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery; Sir Daniel Lambert, one of the Aldermen of London, a barrister-at-law, two or three students of the Inns of Court; an under-sheriff, an officer of Lord Chief Justice Lee attending his master in court at that time (the Chief Justice himself escaping), several of the Middlesex jury and about forty others, 'whom business or curiosity had brought thither.'

"Gaol-fever was not unknown in Canada. Of the fifteen persons found guilty of high treason at the special assize at Ancaster, Upper Canada, in June, 1814 (they had taken part with the American invader), a number were sent to Kingston and incarcerated in the gaol there. Of these,

LIFE IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Rice Terraces of Mountain Province an Imposing Sight.

Mountain Province is the third largest in the entire Philippine Archipelago and lies in the extreme north of the Island of Luzon. In Amburayan, a sub-province of Mountain Province, the most striking view is of the rice terraces thousands of feet high. This is a region of precipices, and even today parts of the trails consist of ladders on the sides of the cliffs. There are approximately 400 square miles of irrigated rice terraces, all buttressed with stone walls which measure a total length of about 12,000 miles. These terraces were built without any knowledge of engineering over an estimated period of some 1,200 years. The natives have utilized every drop of available water supply and in most places no more ditches can be constructed because of lack of water.

The Mountain Province is economically rather poor. It has not been able to support Red Cross nursing and dental services without financial assistance from the Philippines Chapter, says H. S. House, assistant manager, Philippines Chapter, American Red Cross.

Do You Want

WHATEVER SUM YOU REQUIRE to expand a good business may best be obtained through announcements on the Business Opportunities page of The New York Times. Many advertisers offer services as well as money.

There are opportunities also for the man who wants to invest in a going business; loans may be negotiated; stores, shops and other enterprises may be bought outright.

On a recent Sunday there were 96 advertisements asking for capital in sums varying from $1,000 to $200,000. Twenty-three advertisements offered capital to invest in sound enterprises—from $2,000 to $50,000. One hundred announcements asked and offered business connections. In 119 advertisements businesses were offered for sale—plants and factories, stores and shops, hotels and furnished room houses, restaurants and tea rooms, garages and miscellaneous lines.

Bank and business references are required from all advertisers under Business Opportunities. A confidential questionnaire must be filled in and all announcements must pass The Times censorship regulations.

CLOSING TIME FOR SUNDAY

3 P. M. Friday

Business Opportunities advertisements for Sunday insertion should be in The Times office by 3 P. M. Friday preceding. If received later they are subject to omission. New advertisers must have orders in several days prior to closing time so as to give time to investigate references.

WAR VETERAN KILLS RED CROSS WOMAN

OBJECTED TO REQUISITIONS

He Wanted Money, He Tells Police, Asserting That the Organization Robbed Him.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—An insane war veteran, brooding over imaginary wrongs, today slashed to death Miss Egie M. Ashmun, aged 35, executive secretary of the San Francisco chapter of the American Red Cross.

The slaying occurred at 3 o'clock this afternoon just outside Larkin Hall of the Civic Auditorium at Grove and Larkin Streets. It was witnessed by scores of persons, who were unable to prevent it.

David W. Lizarraga, the slayer, attempted to escape after he had buried a long knife in the woman's neck, severing her jugular vein. He ran toward Market Street, pursued by dozens of men who had witnessed the stabbing, and was captured at Fulton and Market streets by a patrolman.

Lizarraga, a Mexican, is a veteran of the World War. He is classified as "permanently and totally disabled," is insane and was drawing $100 a month compensation from the government. The money was being paid to him through the Red Cross, and it was his insane idea that the organization was cheating him on his payments.

As is the government's custom with mentally deranged veterans, Lizarraga's compensation was being paid through a guardian, R. W. Moore of the First National Bank of El Paso, Texas. Lizarraga came here about July 1 from Albuquerque, N. M., and had been living at the Laurence Hotel.

Moore had arranged to have Lizarraga get $45 a month through the local chapter of the Red Cross, the remaining $55 being deposited to his credit in the bank against emergencies. For the purchase of clothing or extras Lizarraga was not given money, but received requisitions on stores, hotels or restaurants.

Slayer Demanded Money.

"I want money," he demanded. "I don't want those slips of paper. If you keep on treating me like this I'll hit the road.

Mrs. Wilson remonstrated with him and tried to induce him to accept requisitions for whatever he wished to buy. He refused and finally flung out of the office in a rage.

Just before 3 o'clock Miss Ashmun, with whom Lizarraga had had dealings on several occasions, left the Red Cross offices to exercise a pet dog. She was standing at the corner of Grove and Larkin Streets in conversation with Paul Palasky, another ward of the Red Cross, when Lizarraga approached.

"You people are not treating me right," stormed Lizarraga to Miss Ashmun. "I don't want those slips of paper. I want money, and you'd better give it to me."

"This is not the proper place to talk about things like that," returned Miss Ashmun. "Come up to the office with me and we'll talk it over."

Suddenly Palasky saw Lizarraga whip out a long knife and lunge at Miss Ashmun. He buried the knife to the hilt in the woman's neck and she fell to the pavement. With a wild cry Lizarraga ran off.

Another Veteran Sees Killing.

Although Palasky saw the whole affair he was too far from the couple to halt Lizarraga's hand. He immediately gave chase and his cries attracted Policeman Ernest Lindenau to the pursuit that resulted in the slayer's capture.

Miss Ashmun was picked up and placed in an automobile. She was taken to Central Emergency Hospital, only a block from the scene of the stabbing, but the wound proved fatal and she died a few minutes after arrival.

Lizarraga was taken to Bush Street police station by Lindenau for questioning, and following Miss Ashmun's death was charged with murder and locked up in the city prison. At the station he was rambling and incoherent in his statements to police, but insisted that the Red Cross had "robbed" him.

Miss Ashmun had been service with the Red Cross for more than ten years. In 1918 she was sent to France, returning after the war to San Francisco. Before taking up Red Cross work she had been secretary to the City Manager of Bakersfield, Cal., and later assistant to the manager of The Bakersfield Morning Echo.

Little is known here of Lizarraga, whose home was in Texas before he came here. His mental condition and other disabilities were blamed to his war service, and he was listed on Veterans' Bureau records as "harmlessly insane."

Says He Lost His Head.

He made the following statement to Captain of Police William T. Healy at the Bush Street station.

"I have been receiving $100 for disability and nervous condition for eight years off and on. I was in Ukiah Hospital for nervousness eleven months in 1921.

"Miss Ashmun was standing at the corner of the park by the Civic Theatre, where they have the radio-show, and was with a big man talking to him. I said to her:

"'Please give me my money.'

"She said, 'Go to the office of the Red Cross Chapter.'

"I just lost my head and I hit her with this knife (pointing to a knife in the hands of Policeman Ernest Lindenau) just one time.

"I put the knife in my left-hand coat pocket and ran. The officer caught me on Market Street.

"I stabbed the woman because I went out of my head.

"This statement is made freely and voluntarily and without any promise of reward, without promise of immunity and without force or being put in fear."

Ford Buys Old Court House, Scene of Lincoln's Lawsuits

LINCOLN, Ill., Aug. 19 (AP).—The old Postville court house, scene of many of Abraham Lincoln's lawsuits, has been bought by Henry Ford.

"Postville" was the name of Lincoln [illegible] the future President christened it after himself by breaking a watermelon, with the prediction that "nothing named Lincoln ever amounted to much."

Lincoln at the [illegible] was a young lawyer and the suggestion that his name be given to the new town was made by real estate men developing the project.

It was indicated that Mr. Ford intended moving the old court house to Detroit.

FOUR HURT IN BUS CRASH.

Staten Island Vehicle Crashes Into Store Front to Avoid Automobile.

Four passengers suffered injuries which necessitated their removal to a hospital and fourteen others suffered from shock last night when a bus of the Thompkins Brothers Corporation, avoiding collision with an automobile, ran up on the sidewalk and crashed into the Roulston Grocery Store, 1,884 Victory Boulevard, West New Brighton, Staten Island. The bus was bound from the St. George ferry to Port Richmond.

The front of the grocery store was wrecked. The impact threw passengers out of the windows and to the floor of the bus.

Police served a summons on Harold Tyrell, who was driving the automobile, for violating the rules of the road.

The four injured passengers were removed to the Staten Island Hospital by Dr. William Bennett. They are:

EMILY LASKWITZ, 31 years old, of 33 Prospect Street, Long Neck, lacerations of hands, face and legs.

JOSEPH ERRAS, 24, of 4,041 Victory Boulevard, West New Brighton, injuries to both arms, lacerations of face and body.

ALBERT KAWAY, 27, of 4,830 Victory Boulevard, West New Brighton, injuries to both legs and lacerations of head, face and body.

HELEN HOLDAHO, 38, of 81 Crafton Avenue, West New Brighton, injury to right arm.

OUDIN ESTATE $300,000.

Retired Lawyer Willed Bulk of His Fortune to Relatives.

Lucien Oudin, retired lawyer and former member of the Art Commission of the City of New York, left an estate exceeding $300,000, it was disclosed yesterday when his will was offered for probate. All but $5,000, which was bequeathed to the Century Association of 7 West Forty-third Street, goes to relatives and friends.

Two brothers, Charles F. Oudin, Spokane, Wash., and Maurice A. Oudin, Schenectady, N. Y., and a half-brother, James T. Kilbreth, Hewlett, L. I., share equally in the residue, estimated at about $120,000. Gladys K. Smith, Syracuse, N. Y., a niece by marriage, gets $75,000; Roy P. McClenahan, Parlin, N. Y., and Charlotte H. Charpentier, Paris, cousins by marriage, get $15,000 and $10,000, respectively. Fourteen relatives and friends receive $5,000 each.

The testator, who died on July 23, was a nephew of General Felix Agnus, former publisher of The Baltimore American.

CALL NURSE A SUICIDE.

Filipino Constabulary Report on the Death of Esther Klein.

MANILA, Aug. 19 (AP).—While admitting that peculiar circumstances surround the case, the constabulary officially announced today that the death of Esther Louise Klein, 30-year-old navy nurse, was a suicide, not a murder. Miss Klein's body was found in a roadhouse here on Aug. 5.

The statement last Friday by Captain Rafael Jalandoni of the constabulary that the death was not a suicide, was explained today as his own belief and it was said he had changed his mind after an autopsy had been performed. Further investigation, he said, had not brought to light any new clues.

So far as the constabulary is concerned, the case is virtually closed, except for an investigation of the suicide motive, which has not yet been discovered. Miss Klein's nearest relatives live in Cleveland.

Horse Hurt as It Wrecks Auto.

Special to The New York Times.

RAHNSBURG, N. J., Aug. 19.—A horse ridden by John Dugan of Newark became frightened today at an automobile driven by John Randolph of Beacon Beach. The animal reared and its front hoofs came down on the radiator of the car. The horse struggled desperately to free itself, and with disastrous results. It had to be shot. Mr. Dugan had to go to a hospital, the automobile had to go to a repair shop and Mr. Randolph had to go to court.

FALL KILLS MAN, 70, ABOUT TO BE FETED

THEY HAD BEEN ON OUTING

Guest Arriving for Party Finds Him Dead and Her Seriously Injured.

Abraham Eisner, a charter member of the William McKinley Lodge of Masons and superintendent of their building at 454 West 155th Street, was 70 years old yesterday. To celebrate his birthday, he and his wife, Josephine, went on an outing.

It was dusk when they got home. Their stepdaughter, Miss Frances Trell, had arrived home earlier than expected, and had ascended in the automatic elevator to the Eisner apartment on the fourth floor. But the vanguard of Masonic lodge members had not arrived. They were not expected for another hour.

The hallway was pitch black as Mr. and Mrs. Eisner entered from the street. The big electric light in the centre of the entrance hall had not been lighted. But Eisner had been superintendent of the building since its completion three and one-half years ago. He did not need a light. He took his wife's hand and they moved forward through the darkness.

They reached the elevator shaft, and Eisner opened the doors. He was sure the elevator was there. He was a methodical man who kept everything in its place and always expected to find things where he had left them. He stepped through the elevator doorway. Mrs. Eisner followed him.

Some time later, Alexander Cohen of 37-28 Ninety-third Street, Jackson Heights, a member of the lodge, arrived at the building. At the entrance he met the negro steward on his way to work. They entered the hallway together. They were surprised to find everything dark inside.

Suddenly, through the darkness, Cohen caught the sound of moans. He struck a match and moved toward the elevator shaft. The moans sounded nearer now. He could make out Mrs. Eisner's voice. "Abe's dead!" She repeated it over and over.

The steward found the light switch and turned on the lights. Peering down the elevator shaft, Cohen saw the forms of Eisner and his wife huddled on the concrete floor fifteen feet below. He ran to a telephone and called the West 152d Street police station.

It took only a few minutes for Emergency Squad 2 to reach the clubhouse. Mrs. Eisner weighs 200 pounds and her husband weighed more. The task of removing them from the shaft was not easy. An ambulance had arrived from Columbus Hospital meanwhile. But Eisner was beyond medical aid. His wife had fallen on him and he was killed instantly. Mrs. Eisner was removed to the hospital with internal injuries and a fractured hip. Her condition is critical.

WOULD CLASSIFY SLAYERS.

E. R. Calvert, British Criminologist, Here Opposes Death Penalty.

E. Ray Calvert, one of the leading opponents of capital punishment in England, arrived yesterday on the United States steamer American Banker, accompanied by his wife, Llewelyn Davies, one of the six women lawyers of the country. Mr. Calvert is en route to Toronto to attend the convention of the American Prison Association next week.

Mr. Calvert said that he believed virtually all murderers to be either degenerate or insane, and that they should be confined to hospitals and asylums. Killers, he maintained, cannot be considered as a class because each murderer is an individual problem.

The few normal persons who kill under stress should be sent to prisons, he declared, but said their cases should be reviewed every five years by a board which would include the warden and a member of the court of conviction.

Habitual criminal laws such as some American States have are conducive to extreme desperation and are responsible for many prison outbreaks, Mr. Calvert asserted. Another obvious weakness, he added, was the possibility that juries will free a guilty defendant rather than send him to prison for life.

FOUR HELD IN INN SHOOTING

Bail Denied Men Caught in Yonkers After Roadhouse Fray.

The four men arrested in Yonkers for the shooting of Frank De Rustgiero, proprietor of the Roma Gardens, a roadhouse in the town of Greenburgh, N. Y., early Sunday morning, were held without bail on charges of assault by City Judge Boote in Yonkers yesterday.

De Rustgiero is expected to recover. He was shot in an altercation between the four men and a fifth man who escaped arrest. They asserted that he had overstreamed them, and one of them, Joseph Heal, 24 years old, of 228 East Forty-second Street, drew a pistol and fired several shots. A bullet struck the proprietor beneath the left eye. He is in Tarrytown Hospital.

Also in the hospital are Michael O'Reilly, 29, and Heal. O'Reilly was injured in the first of the three crashes in which the fleeing men were involved. Heal was shot in the arm by Motorcycle Policeman Robert Philip.

The other two men under arrest are John Reilly, 26, of 72 West 102d Street and Dominic Graziano, 24, of 261 West 125th Street.

Anna Montana and [illegible] "Frenchy" Le Ville, entertainers at the Roma Gardens, who had been held as material witnesses, were released yesterday.

HOMER S. CUMMINGS WEDS FOR THIRD TIME

Announcement of Marriage April 2 Is First Indication of Divorce From Second Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 19.—Friends of Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, were surprised today to receive cards announcing his marriage on April 2 last to Miss May Cecelia Waterbury, the daughter of William Waterbury of Stamford. The cards came from the bride's father and announced that Mr. and Mrs. Cummings would be at home at the Villa Octavia, Greenwich, after Nov. 1.

The announcement gave the first knowledge that Mr. Cummings had been divorced from his second wife, who was Miss Marguerite Owings, of Darien, Conn. Mr. Cummings and his third wife departed on Saturday on a motor trip to northern Maine.

At Mr. Cummings's office it was believed that the divorce was granted in the West about a year ago.

The first Mrs. Cummings, who was Helen W. Smith, daughter of James D. Smith, a New York banker and former Commodore of the New York Yacht Club, recently purchased the old Catherine Aiken School here for the purpose of making it a shrine in honor of Georges Clemenceau, who once taught in it and who married one of the pupils. There is a son, Dickinson S. Cummings, by this marriage, who lives here with his family.

The second Mrs. Cummings spent much of her time in sanitariums and Stamford people believed she was in a sanitarium in New Mexico until today's announcement.

The third Mrs. Cummings is the daughter of a retired trunking contractor. When she left school she was secretary to C. Milton Peasenden, a Stamford lawyer. During the World War she filled a position in a government department at Washington. Later she studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and at the Alliance Française. She also took courses at Columbia University and the New School for Social Research in New York.

After the war she was secretary to Harry F. Sinclair.

Boy Scout's Death Accidental.

ILFRACOMBE, Devonshire, England, Aug. 19 (AP).—A verdict of accidental death with no blame attached to any one was returned today at a Coroner's inquest on the death of Eagle Scout James E. Berry, 16, Oklahoma youth, who was killed here yesterday in a fall from a cliff.

BIDDING FOR HOLBEIN SHARP

Americans and Nuremburg Director Seek Newly Found Painting.

Wireless to The New York Times.

GENEVA, Aug. 19.—Keen bidding has begun between a group of American art dealers and the director of the museum at Nuremburg, Germany, for a Holbein painting unknown until recently and discovered in a museum cloister at Basle.

The picture was painted by the younger Holbein in 1520 while living at Basle. It represents a portrait of a monk named Xylotectes holding a harp. The background shows some architecture of the Renaissance period. No information as to the price of the painting has been divulged.

Rubel Consolidating His Products.

The ice, ice cream, fuel oil and other interests of Samuel Rubel, who a few weeks ago disposed of his coal interests, representing, it was reported, an annual sale in excess of two million tons, will be consolidated under the name of the Rubel Ice Corporation, with headquarters in the firm's new building at Fulton Street and Waverly Avenue, Brooklyn, it was announced yesterday. Near beer and other malt products of the company will retain the Rubel name.

CONTINUOUS STEADY COLD

no stopping and starting with ELECTROLUX

THE COLD scarcely fluctuates at all in this newest, most modern kind of automatic refrigerator. The refrigeration is continuous. There is no motor to start and stop—there are no mechanical parts of any kind.

You enjoy not only the constant, steady cold at all times, but also absolute silence. Other refrigerators may be fairly quiet when they're new. But only Electrolux is absolutely silent forever. Only Electrolux can't become noisy with age.

There's no friction, no vibration, no wear, to this refrigerator. And that means long life, less trouble and repairs. Scientists can see no good reason why it should ever wear out.

The simplicity of Electrolux is marvelous. There's no more moving mechanism to this refrigerator than there is to a vacuum bottle. One tiny gas flame does all the work.—circulates the liquid refrigerant that produces the cold.

Hermetically sealed

This refrigerant never needs renewal. It is hermetically and permanently sealed, welded forever inside a solid one-piece steel unit. A leak is practically an impossibility.

QUICK FACTS!

1. Permanently noiseless.
2. Absolutely safe.
3. Only a few cents a day to operate.
4. Lasts indefinitely.
5. Perpetual, steady cold.
6. No machinery to wear, to vibrate, to need oil.
7. Free from trouble.
8. Plenty of pure ice cubes.
9. Tested and endorsed by national authorities.

When you buy an Electrolux you get the most dependable, most perfectly operating automatic refrigerator that money can buy

A tiny gas flame takes the place of all moving parts

—the finest, most recent development in the industry. You get ice for life, a generous supply of pure sparkling ice cubes at all times, a steady, evenly low temperature.

35 to 55 cents a week

If these advantages were all that Electrolux offered, if comfort and convenience were all it brought you—this refrigerator would still be a wonderful thing to have. But these things are not all. Electrolux gives you the cheapest refrigeration yet known to man. The operating cost is so low that owning this refrigerator becomes a necessity, is actually an economy instead of a luxury. The cost is much less than that of ice. Much less than the cost of power for mechanical refrigerators. A few pennies a day, 35 to 55 cents a week—that's all. Think of the money you'll save.

Don't even consider buying an automatic refrigerator until you have seen Electrolux. Come in any time and look over the wide variety of sizes and models, in white and colors, priced about the same as other automatic refrigerators size for size, ranging from $210 to $510. Liberal purchase terms to suit almost any family. Mail coupon today for complete illustrated information.

$400,000,000 UNION IN MOVIES REPORTED

J. L. Warner Is Quoted in Los Angeles on Merging of Paramount and Warner Bros.

LASKY IS "UNADVISED"

Officials of Both Corporations in New York Refuse to Confirm Talk of Negotiations.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Examiner said today that a merger of Warner Brothers Motion Picture Corporation with Paramount-Famous-Lasky would be completed within the week and gave Jack L. Warner, west coast head of the former organization, as its authority.

Mr. Warner was said to be starting for New York tonight to arrange the details.

"I cannot say at present that the papers have been signed," Mr. Warner was quoted as saying. "Until these conferences (in New York) are completed, I cannot divulge the details of our plans.

"The proposed union will bring together about 2,400 theatres throughout the country. This will include approximately 2,000 theatres controlled by Publix and Paramount and about 400 controlled by Warner Brothers."

Mr. Warner was further quoted as saying that the impending merger would involve the combination in one corporation of more than $400,000,000 in holdings and that a parent company would be formed to control the merged units, which probably would be known as Paramount-Warner Brothers Corporation.

This company, according to the statement credited to Mr. Warner, would be governed by a board of directors and probably be headed by Adolph Zukor or Harry M. Warner.

Jesse L. Lasky, first vice president of Paramount Famous Lasky Motion Picture Producers, said today in reference to a reported merger with Warner Brothers, Inc:

"Certainly no deal of this sort would be made without my being advised, and I have not been so advised."

Zukor Denies Negotiations.

Officials of both the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation and Warner Brothers in New York City refused yesterday to confirm rumors of a merger between those two firms.

While film trade papers for the past week have been publishing stories regarding purported financial details of such an amalgamation, Adolph Zukor, head of Paramount, has continued to deny any such negotiations.

Activity in the stocks of Warner Brothers and Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation yesterday, combined with the reports from Los Angeles quoting J. L. Warner to the effect that a merger of the two companies would soon be announced, caused keen speculation in Wall Street as to what is behind the whole matter.

Survey Believed Report Basis.

An authority close to Warner Brothers yesterday classed a report that the rumors were based upon a preliminary survey tending toward the creation of a holding company for the theatre holdings of the two companies as a more logical development than a merger of the producing interests.

He declared that he had heard nothing of the formation of such a company but admitted that such a thing might be under way without his knowledge. This development would not conflict with the denials which have been issued by the Paramount officials.

It was pointed out that consolidation of the producing activities had not been the policy of either of the companies. Warner Brothers have had control of First National Pictures for some months and, except for the addition of Vitaphone, the copyright name for talking pictures owned by Warner Brothers, no change has been made in the production activities of the two companies, or the names under which the pictures are released to theatres.

As a combination of the two companies would bring together under one control about 2,400 theatres, it was pointed out that such a number would provide the producing companies with an outlet for their product which would exceed anything that has yet been accomplished by a producing and distributing company.

It was also pointed out that neither of the companies produced enough pictures to provide for the needs of all of their theatres and that they had been forced to go into the outside market.

The formation of a separate holding company is regarded as logical to assure each of the three producing companies represented by the two companies an equitable allotment of the booking time which the combined theatres would provide.

Funeral of Ex-Judge Van Tassel.

Funeral services for ex-Judge Theodore Van Tassel of Yonkers, who was fatally wounded by a disgruntled client Friday, were held yesterday in the Havey Funeral Home at 107 North Broadway.

The Rev. Arthur A. Bessey, assistant rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, officiated. Members of the Yonkers Bar Association and the Westchester Bar Association attended. A private interment will be held tomorrow.

Mr. Van Tassel was a former city judge of Stillwater, Minn., and had practiced law for the last twenty years in Yonkers. Michael Herald, 55 years old, of 189 Hawthorne Avenue, Yonkers, is being held for the slaying.

Dies as Asthma Burner Ignites Robe

Mrs. Catherine McQuaid, 55 years old, of 526 East Seventy-ninth Street, a sufferer from asthma, was burned to death yesterday morning when her bathrobe and night dress caught fire from the flames of an asthma burner. Tenants heard her cries and ran to her aid, but her clothing was completely afire before they could reach her. Neighbors said the woman, who lived alone, had a son residing on Long Island who came to see her now and then, but none knew his name or address.

$17,000 Theatre Robbery in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 19 (AP).—An official of the United Artists Theatre reported to the police today that week-end receipts totaling $17,000 had been stolen by bandits who blew open a safe in the playhouse some time between midnight and dawn.

Mountain Named for Pope Pius Honoring His Alpinist Record

By The Associated Press.

TERAMO, Italy, Aug. 19.—In honor of the Pope's Alpine climbing feats during his youth a mountain peak 7,500 feet high today has been named Pius XI.

A hundred Alpine climbers, led by Colonel Ricca, ascended the peak, where Father Di Cariatonio celebrated mass and blessed a bronze tablet.

Simultaneously Bishop Penea of Penne celebrated mass at the foot of the mountain and christened the mountain. Cardinal Gasparri sent a telegram from the Vatican City giving the pontifical blessing.

PANAMA JUDGE FINED UNDER VOLSTEAD ACT

Canal Zone Court Regrets Need to Penalize Official of Friendly Republic.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, Aug. 19.—A Panaman judge and a ship's captain were fined here today by Judge James J. Lenihan in the district court at Cristobal.

The convicted judge was Pedro Nolasco Villa Laz of the First Circuit Court of Colon. He was fined $50 and costs. He was arrested in Gatun when he tried to pass a bottle of vermouth to a passenger on a Panama Railroad train en route to Panama.

In passing sentence Judge Lenihan admitted his embarrassment in having to fine a "judge of a neighboring friendly republic for violation of the laws of this country, which has prohibition, while his own has no such law."

The ship's captain and three seamen were tried in their absence. Two other seamen, who had been held since July 11 awaiting trial, were sentenced to four hours in jail each. The others were fined, the largest being $200, adjudged against Michael Howard, master of the steamship Willango. Jerry Calnan, a conscientious seaman who preferred going to jail to breaking two bottles of whisky at the suggestion of the policeman making the arrest, was fined $25.

Judge Lenihan said that, while he did not presume to render judgment in advance, it was quite possible that the Jones law might be found applicable to the case of Captain Romolo Chiesa, while a plea of guilty to misdemeanor might be acceptable from a bartender who sold two drinks of cognac to Canal Zone plainclothes policemen.

J. S. ARMSTRONG FUNERAL.

Service for Retired Publisher Held at St. Bartholomew's.

The funeral of J. Sinclair Armstrong, retired publisher, who died on Friday in his apartment at the Ambassador, was held yesterday in the Chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church, Park Avenue and Fifty-first Street.

In the absence of the Rev. Dr. Robert Norwood, the service was read by the Rev. James T. Carney, rector of St. John's Church, Washington, Conn.

Among those present were Mr. Armstrong's eldest son, Sinclair Howard Armstrong; his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Howard Armstrong, and his brother, Dr. Andrew Campbell Armstrong, Professor of Philosophy at Wesleyan University. Also Robert B. Knowles, his son's senior partner of the law firm of Knowles, Hi & Armstrong, with whom, sin his retirement, Mr. Armstrong maintained an office; Henry Bruere, vice president of the Bowery Savings Bank, of which Mr. Armstrong was a trustee; George W. Welsh, Mr. and Mrs. S. Charles Welsh Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Irving Raymond, Dr. Charles A. McKendree, Dr. Henry H. Forbes and William C. Lester.

It was impossible for Mr. Armstrong's two other sons, W. Campbell Armstrong, legal adviser to the Governor General of the Philippines, and George Alexander Armstrong, American Consul at Nice, to be present.

Burial was private in Mr. Armstrong's plot in Greenwood Cemetery, where Mrs. Armstrong, daughter of the late George W. Welsh, was buried in 1923.

STEWART FUNERAL TODAY.

Actors' Equity Association Praises Work of One of Its Founders.

Funeral services for Grant Stewart, actor, dramatist and one of the organizers of the Actors' Equity Association, will be held at noon today in the Church of the Transfiguration, the Little Church Around the Corner, 1 East Twenty-ninth Street. Mr. Stewart died suddenly on Sunday in Woodstock, N. Y., where he was visiting friends.

Yesterday at Equity headquarters Paul Dullzell, executive secretary of the organization, praised the life and work of Mr. Stewart, who, in addition to being one of the founders of Equity, was for many years its recording secretary.

"Mr. Stewart was a member of the original plan and scope committee which laid the foundations of Equity," said Mr. Dullzell, "and since the organization of the association he had served continuously either as a councillor or an officer.

"Every one in the theatre knew of his contributions to Equity when, during the strike against the Producing Managers' Association in the Summer of 1919, he handled all of Equity's publicity, and again when he served for more than eight years as editor of the Equity Magazine.

"But we in Equity knew that he had done much more. He was always ready to serve and did serve on many important committees of the council. He was ever more concerned with what he could give to Equity than what he could get from it."

Miller Funeral Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Israel Miller, shoe importer and dealer of this city, who died on Aug. 12 in Paris while on a European tour, will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, 257 West Eighty-eighth Street, with burial in Union Field Cemetery. The body will arrive here today on board the Bremen. Mr. Miller had a home at 262 Central Park West and at Long Beach, L. I.

PRISONER KILLS SELF BY FIRING HIS BEDDING

J. E. Harold Took His Life in Springfield (Mass.) Jail July 31, Records Show—Inquiry Asked.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 19 (AP).—Joseph E. Harold, 56, of Turners Falls, was burned to death July 31 at the county jail here after setting fire to excelsior in his cell while suffering from delirium tremens, it was learned today from records at City Hall, after county officials had kept the case under cover for nearly three weeks.

Harold, committed for vagrancy, somehow obtained a match and set fire to the wood shavings given to him for bedding. Dr. Carl A. Schillander, Associate Medical Examiner, in a report filed a few days after the tragedy, declared death due to "self-inflicted second-degree burns."

A request has been made for an investigation by the State.

CALLS INDIAN WIFE CRUEL.

White Man Sues for Divorce in Oklahoma, Asking Alimony.

MIAMI, Okla., Aug. 19 (AP).—Alleging extreme cruelty, E. L. Hallam today filed suit in district court for $250,000 alimony and a divorce from Mrs. Anna Beaver Bear Hallam, reputed wealthiest woman of the Quapaq Indian tribe. Hallam, a white man, married the Indian woman at Albuquerque, N. M., in 1924. It was her third marriage.

Hallam lists the property of his wife as including $80,000 in cash, which is held in trust by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and enough real estate in Miami and Ottawa County, Oklahoma, to make her total wealth more than $1,000,000.

Several instances of alleged cruelty, including beatings while he was asleep and a revolver attack, are listed by Hallam.

Mrs. Hallam previously had sued Hallam for divorce on grounds of cruelty and desertion. At her request the case later was dismissed before it went to trial.

J. K. Tener Ill With Pneumonia.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 19 (AP).—John K. Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania, former member of Congress and at one time president of the National League, is threatened with pneumonia at a hospital here, it was learned tonight. His condition, it was said, was not alarming. He became ill when he contracted a cold while playing golf a week ago Sunday and was admitted to the hospital Saturday night. Mr. Tener, who also is a former major league ball player, is 66 years old.

2 SLAIN IN NEWARK IN A LIQUOR FEUD

ATTACKED FROM BEHIND

One Hit Six Times, the Other Four —Firing Momentarily Halted to Let Woman Pass.

Two men were shot to death near Stone Street and Seventh Avenue, within a block of the Second Precinct police station in Newark last night. The shooting is believed to have grown out of a bootleggers' feud. The dead men, both of whom had criminal records, were: Agostino Dellapia, 44 years old, of 42 Eugene Place, Belleville, N. J., and Vincent Follo, 32, of 204 North Hudson Street, Newark.

According to witnesses of the shooting, Dellapia and Follo were walking together in Seventh Avenue near the point at which High Street and Stone Street converge, when two other men carrying pistols ran up behind them and opened fire. Dellapia fled through Seventh Avenue and Follo ran through Stone Street.

But their pursuers were only a few steps behind. They fired a fusillade at Dellapia, who fell with four bullets through the abdomen. Then they turned into Stone Street and opened fire on Follo. About this time a big grey sedan was seen coming in the opposite direction through Stone Street. The two men with pistols suspended firing when a woman pedestrian walked between them and Follo.

But as Follo drew abreast of the sedan, two men in it leaned out the windows and began firing pistols at him. He fell with six bullets through his body. The sedan turned into Seventh Avenue, thence into Clifton Avenue, and disappeared. The two men who had opened the attack also vanished. Witnesses could not say which direction they took, but were sure they did not get into the sedan.

Dellapia had a long police record dating back to 1907. He had served time in Elmira and in State's prison in Connecticut. He was suspected of having taken part in the Fairmount Building and Loan hold-up in Newark in 1926 and was last arrested on a hijacking charge a few months ago.

Follo was first arrested in 1918 when he served a term in the New Jersey Reformatory for assault and battery. He had been arrested several times since on similar charges and for grand larceny and burglary.

BOY, 5, DROWNS OFF FERRY.

Falls Into Hudson While Returning From Outing With Mother.

A happy outing of six New Jersey mothers and their children was turned to tragedy last night when 5-year-old Roger Christensen of 241 Larch Avenue, Bogota, N. J., fell between a ferryboat and its slip at the foot of West Forty-second Street, Manhattan, and was drowned.

The boy had spent the day at Rye Beach with his mother, Mrs. Louise Christensen and his brother Charles, 9, and their friends and neighbors. While running, he stumbled and fell under a railing and into twelve feet of water. A passenger seized the boy by one foot, but was unable to retain his grasp.

The ferryboat was delayed an hour in its sailing while hundreds of commuters watched the Police Marine Division and the Emergency Squad grapple for the body, which was recovered after two hours.

The party, it was reported, returned by train and ferry instead of by bus, as most of the women wished, at the urging of Mrs. Christensen, who argued that it was quicker and safer.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK

REDRAFT OF TARIFF MADE BY SENATORS

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

the Finance Committee's majority, and the part made public today comprised only the schedules covering rates of duty and the free list. But these schedules covered the most important as well as the major textual parts of the bill.

Tomorrow Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, chairman of the Finance Committee, will give to newspapers an explanation and defense of the revision. He agreed to furnish this authoritative diagnosis early this afternoon, but made known late this evening that it would not be ready until tomorrow.

Republican Defense Hinted.

Judging by what was said informally by Republican members of the committee, the bill will be defended on the several counts that in a general sense its rates are lower than those contained in the measure passed by the House, and that where duties were raised the increases are justified by the inability of the products affected to meet foreign competition.

But the opponents of the Senate committee's tariff tinkering will have none of it, and showed today that they were preparing to make a savage assault on the new rates all along the line as too high, too favorable to prosperous corporations and as certain to increase the cost of living.

An iron-clad agreement has been entered into between the Republican members of the Finance Committee that if any member votes against any rate proposed by him and included in the bill made public today his committee vote will be disclosed.

The agreement is designed to prevent any member of the committee from repudiating rates for which he was chiefly responsible. Apparently the fear existed that some committeemen might become frightened over hostile reactions to certain rates accepted by the committee at their suggestion and seek to escape responsibility by voting against acceptance when the bill came before the Senate.

The evidence is already at hand that the Senate's discussion of the measure will be so prolonged that action on it by that body is not likely before the beginning of the regular session in December.

When the Senate met at noon today to resume the extra session which was called by President Hoover in April and which was suspended on June 19, just two months ago, its meeting was purely perfunctory. The session lasted two minutes, just enough time to enable the chaplain to say a prayer and permit Majority Leader Watson to move an adjournment until Thursday.

31 Senators Attend Session.

When Vice President Curtis rapped the Senate to order, thirty-one were present, less than one-third of the full membership. Under a gentlemen's agreement, no business will be transacted until Sept. 4, two days after Labor Day, when the tariff bill, it is expected, will be formally reported by the Finance Committee.

The recess of two months ago was taken by both Houses to enable the Senate's Finance Committee to work out its revision of the House bill. The House took a recess until Sept. 23, but under an agreement between the party leaders its full membership will not be required to report until Oct. 14, when it was expected that the Senate would have passed the tariff measure and sent it to the House.

But differences which developed among the Republican members of the Senate Committee produced delay, and with the prospect of prolonged Senate debate there now appears to be no likelihood that the House will get the bill until late in November, with many doubtful that it will be passed before the assembling of Congress for its regular session on Dec. 2.

Some Regulars Join Opposition.

What will be the fate of the tariff measure in the Senate nobody is wise enough to predict with any certainty. Much confusion existed today as to the outcome of the test to which it will be subjected by hostile forces, composed of the Democrats, with a few exceptions, and the entire, or almost the entire, body of insurgent Republicans. In addition, some Republicans of more or less regular party tendencies will join the opposition with respect to certain sections of the measure.

The bill will have a hard row to travel before the Senate acts on it as a whole. That the debate will be prolonged is inevitable, although some Senators suspected of intending to filibuster in order to delay its passage and thus, for partisan purposes, prevent any extended trial of its provisions before the Congressional election campaign of 1930, disclaimed any intention of undertaking that course.

In the midst of the confusion as to the possible fate of the Finance Committee's revision, one definite idea exists among some of the regular Republican Senators. They are inclined to believe that the bill "will be rewritten on the floor," as the expression is. This means that the rates proposed by the committee will be changed by majority vote.

Opposition Forces Mixed.

They conceive the formation of a powerful combination of Democrats and insurgent Republicans, likely to have recruits from time to time from the ranks of the Republican regulars.

The expectation is that the opposition combination will change from day to day, sometimes being extremely strong and at other times losing strength, for it goes without saying that a considerable number of Democrats and insurgent Republicans have their own particular industries to look after and will vote for higher rates when it is to their political advantage to do so.

In this connection the regulars are encouraged to believe that they will have material help from five Democratic Senators—Ransdell and Broussard of Louisiana, who are interested in sugar protection; Fletcher and Trammell of Florida, whose chief interest is in having tariff protection increased on fruits and vegetables, and Kendrick of Wyoming, whose State has a great wool-growing industry. With this Democratic help, Republican leaders visualize the passage of the bill, and are not now inclined to take stock in predictions of some of their pessimistic brethren that the measure will be defeated.

Look to Conference Committee.

A phase of today's comment among Republican regulars was that the bill would be re-written in the joint conference committee of the House and the Senate, which will be directed to harmonize the differences between the two legislative bodies.

The best information obtainable today from its proponents as to the defense they will make of the Republican committeemen's proposed changes in rates is that they will contend that more than half the House rates were lowered, and that not more than six of the fifteen schedules in the bill show a majority of items increased over the House rates.

If this assertion that the revision was generally downward from the House rates is justified, it probably will be attributed to quiet but effective suggestions of President Hoover, who apparently was concerned over the hostile reaction of the country to the House bill and objected to it also because it took little account of his frequent call for a limited revision.

Most of the revisionary work of the Republican contingent of the Finance Committee has been disclosed from time to time, so that, with respect to its more important features, the schedules made public today contained no surprises.

Sugar Rate a Point of Attack.

The rates determined on by the Republican committeemen on sugar, hides, boots and shoes, and cement and other building materials are to be made the chief objects of assault by the Democratic and insurgent Republican combination.

An attempt is to be made also by Republican Senators, backed by the Democrats and the insurgent group, to have the revision limited to increases of duty on farm products and related products. Senator Thomas of Idaho is the chief sponsor for this movement. He is the colleague of Senator Borah, who attempted, prior to the recess, to have the Senate declare that there would be such a limitation. The Borah proposal was defeated by one vote.

Senator Thomas announced today that when the bill came up for consideration he would offer a resolution similar to Mr. Borah's. The statement was made by Mr. Borah that he would back Mr. Thomas's effort.

It is contended by those behind the limitation movement that President Hoover in calling the extra session desired that the revision should be confined to the agricultural schedule and to products suffering depression because of foreign competition.

Borah Expresses Dislike of Bill.

Reports that there would be a Democratic filibuster against the bill in the Senate, backed by insurgent and independent Republicans, were given credence by Republican regulars today.

One report was that Senator Borah would lead the filibustering movement. Mr. Borah denied that he would be a party to throwing obstacles in the way of action on the measure. He favored, he said, a full discussion and was inclined to think that the debate would be so prolonged that bill would hardly be passed at the present extra session, which must end prior to the reassembling of Congress in regular session on Dec. 2.

Senator Borah's expectation was that the first few weeks of debate after the Senate began its work in earnest in September would be devoted to set speeches, and that early in October the Senate would get down to serious detailed consideration of the schedules and other features.

Senator Borah did not have opportunity to study all the proposed rate changes today, but after reading part of the Senate Committee's measure, he said:

"The more I read the bill the less I like it."

Democrat Opposition Outlined.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic National Committee, gave out a statement tonight which indicates the line of opposition the Democrats of the Senate and the party organization generally will take. He stressed particularly, as an objectionable feature of the tariff bill, the removal of a duty on manganese, after the Republican committeemen had decided to make it dutiable.

The change-about, according to Mr. Shouse, was due to the United States Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Company, which, according to his contention, did not want this product made dutiable because it entered into the manufacture of steel.

The suggestion that the Democratic party wanted the bill to be as objectionable to the country as possible, because that would bring a favorable prospect of Democratic chances in the elections next year, was rejected by Mr. Shouse.

He indicated that if the Democrats were successful in compelling the Republican administration to give the country a tariff measure "devoid of extortion" they would be more than satisfied.

Assails Republican Methods.

"Some commentators on the controversy over the tariff bill," he said, "have been kind enough to express the thought that the criticism of the high rates issued through the Democratic National Executive Committee might result in the final presentation of a bill so moderate as to make it acceptable.

"They further suggest that such an outcome would defeat the purpose they ascribe to this committee of storing up ammunition for the coming congressional campaign.

"If the Democratic efforts are successful in compelling the administration to give the country a tariff bill devoid of extortion we shall be more than satisfied in the performance of a considerable public service.

"It is only on the ground of public service that the Democratic Party can ask that it shall be entrusted with the government in place of those who have indicated a callous purpose of extending outrageous privileges to favored industries at the head of which are the men who control the Republican Party.

"The deliberate purpose, first of the Ways and Means Committee of the House, held to shameful complaisance by the Administration leaders in that chamber, and then by the Republican majority of the Finance Committee of the Senate in their star-chamber proceedings has been perfectly apparent.

Sees Intent to "Cash In."

"The analysis of the schedules as they became known made it plain that the motivating principle behind the proposed enactment was not protection of American industry—still less, protection for American labor—but a simple determination to enable special groups of industrialists to cash in on their last year's campaign contributions.

"The Democratic Senators and Congressmen who expose this principle could make no political capital of it if it were not patently iniquitous.

"The spectacle of Senator Smoot being driven from one expedient to another on the sugar schedule, which had for its purpose taking hundreds of millions of dollars from the consumers for the benefit of a relatively few growers of sugar beets, is one example.

"The effort to make a trifling duty on raw hides, with the ostensible design of benefiting the farmer, an excuse for levying tribute of ten times as much on boots and shoes, is another.

"Perhaps the most flagrant example of all that demonstrates the dishonesty of the Republican tariff intention was the manganese incident. Here is an American industry that claims that a small duty would mark the difference between development and extinction.

Hit at Decision on Manganese.

Regardless of the general controversy over tariffs generally, the Republican majority of the Finance Committee struck off the duty on manganese, for no other reason than that the great steel interests had made advantageous arrangements for the importation of Russian Soviet manganese, and, therefore, wanted that product free of duty.

"The declared principal on the sugar subterfuge and the hide fraud was directly applicable to manganese, but the United States and Bethlehem steel companies did not want such a tariff, so the manganese miners were remorselessly sacrificed.

"The Democratic National Executive Committee does not flatter itself by assuming that its efforts will result in a defensible tariff bill.

"If reductions are made, it will be because the Democrats in the Senate, with the help of the progressive group of the Republicans, are able to defeat the most blatant extortions.

"In other words, this extra session, if it passes any bill at all, will make the tariff as high as it can be made in the face of the determined opposition of the group that is striving to save the country from the most unjustifiable tariff raid ever attempted.

"The reports from the Department of Commerce itself show that every industry which is demanding an opportunity to further raise prices is, and has been, operating at the very peak of prosperity. It is only the accident of a special session that gives them the opportunity to dip still deeper into the public purse.

Contends Bill Will Not Be Vetoed.

"Nor do the Democrats attach importance to the inspired suggestion that if the tariff bill as it finally comes out is higher than it ought to be President Hoover will veto the measure.

"On the contrary, so far as every indication points, the President has given the administration Senators a charter to go as far as they dare. So complete is the domination of the favored interests and so definite are the promises they extorted that the administration legislators will have to go through with them, and it is predicted the bill they produce will be signed by the President.

"Such concessions as are made will turn out to be those that are of the least consequence. The poor man or man of average means is to pay more for everything he wears and pretty nearly everything he eats. Against this, he may take comfort from the circumstance that he may pay a little less for diamonds."

Protests are being received by the Finance Committee over the rate of three and one-half cents per pound on casein contained in the bill made public today. This is a product of milk and is used in giving a shiny coating to paper. The House bill placed a duty of two and one-half cents on casein, the same as the present law.

In explanation of the increase, members of the Committee said that the intention was to encourage farmers and dairymen to produce more of the casein by-product, and was in line with the policy to afford the agricultural industry all the protection possible. About 20,000,000 pounds of casein are used annually in paper manufacture in the United States.

So meticulously did the Senate adhere today to the agreement to transact no business until Sept. 4, that when President Hoover sent to the Capitol a batch of nominations for office the Senate refused to receive them and informed the President that it would not undertake any business whatever for more than a fortnight.

When the body assembles on Thursday there will be another immediate adjournment until the following Monday, and this process of adjourning for three days at a time, as the Constitution permits one branch of Congress to do without the consent of the other branch, will be continued until the tariff revision measure is ready for formal consideration.

800 Changes in House Rates.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP).—The House tariff rates as revised by the Senate Finance Committee Republicans carry about 380 rate increases and reductions from those adopted by the House.

The greatest number of reductions approved were in the chemical schedule, most of the sixty-seven changes recommended in this section being decreases in House duties.

By schedule there were thirty-six alterations in the earths, earthenware, and glassware schedule; fifty-one in metals; eight in wood and manufactures of; nine in sugar; four in tobacco; seventy in agriculture; one in spirits; twenty in cotton manufacturers; seven in flax, hamp, and jute; thirty-three in wool; one in silk; five in rayon; ten in papers and books, and thirty-four in sundries.

Of the important articles which the House took from the free list and made dutiable the finance group retained hides, leather, and shoes, increasing some of the proposed leather rates. They also retained the House rates on cement, now free.

Eight articles in the chemicals, oils and paints schedule which the House left dutiable were recommended for the free list, as well as one, wood tar and pitch of wood, which the House took off the free list.

The committeemen proposed restoration of the present duties on leaf tobacco, which the House increased 40 cents a pound, but provided higher duties on leaf consisting of filler, mixed or packed with over 5 per cent but not more than 35 per cent wrapper.

Senator King of Utah, a Democratic member of the Finance Committee, declared the tentative committee bill was as "unsatisfactory as the House bill."

The Republican committeemen's rates carried a caption that they were subject to correction before the entire bill was reported.

DECREE TO MRS. CUSSACHS.

Ex-Annapolis Teacher Divorced by Commodore Porter's Daughter.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 19.—Judge Moss today signed a decree giving Mrs. Marguerite Porter Cussachs an absolute divorce from Professor Carlos V. Cussachs, formerly of the Naval Academy faculty. Desertion for three years was alleged and not denied by the husband, who has maintained a home in Washington for several years.

Mrs. Commodore Theodoric Porter and related to prominent Maryland families. She always has made her home in the old Ogle mansion, one of the Colonial homes on College Avenue, which was occupied by her ancestors.

An agreement to pay alimony of $200 a month, reached by the husband and wife through attorneys, was approved by the court.

Two daughters were mentioned in the testimony as now being employed in New York. They are the Misses Georgeanna and Marguerite Cussachs.

Rates Revised on Cotton Cloth

Paragraph 904, as embodied in the existing law and as carried by the House bill carrying rates on cotton cloth not bleached, printed, dyed, colored or woven-figured, graded according to the number of yarns, is changed somewhat, and as contained in the Senate committee bill stands in this way:

Products of this kind containing yarns the average number of which does not exceed 90: 10 per cent ad valorem, and, in addition, for each number, 35-100 of 1 per cent ad valorem; exceeding number 90, 41½ per cent ad valorem. This proviso is added:

"That none of the foregoing shall be subject to a less duty than 55-100 of 1 per cent average number per pound."

The Senate committee provided that all duties prescribed by paragraph 904 for cotton cloth should pay in addition the following rates, namely:

"On cotton cloth finished with a permanent crispness, resiliency and translucency, such as and including cloth commercially known as permanent finished organdie, 10 per cent ad valorem; on cotton cloth woven with printed or striped warp yarn of threads, 25 per cent ad valorem; on cotton cloth printed by the surface or relief method, as distinguished from the engraved or intaglio method, 10 per cent ad valorem. In no case shall the foregoing duty or duties imposed upon cotton cloth in this paragraph be less than 5 cents per pound."

Compromise on Cotton Tapestries.

The existing rate on cotton tapestries and jacquard figured upholstery cloths, not including pile fabrics or bed ticking, is 45 per cent ad valorem; the House rate 55 per cent and the proposed Senate rate 50 per cent.

The House bill gave cotton blankets a specific designation and taxed them generally at 35 per cent ad valorem, except that if they were jacquard figured a 45 per cent rate applied.

The Senate bill provides that blankets valued at not more than 30 cents a pound shall pay 25 per cent ad valorem, but not less than 16½ cents a pound; valued at more than 30 cents a pound, 35 per cent ad valorem.

The Senate committee restored the existing rates of 10 cents a pound and 12½ per cent ad valorem on candle wicking, which the House had fixed at 30 per cent ad valorem.

A new rate of 40 per cent ad valorem was levied on rope used for textile machinery. The committee reduced to 30 per cent the House rate of 40 per cent ad valorem on belts and belting for machinery wholly or in chief value of cotton or other vegetable fiber.

Revision on Gloves and Hose

The following two paragraphs were rewritten:

"Par. 915—Gloves and mittens, finished or unfinished, wholly or in chief value of cotton or other vegetable fiber, made of fabric knit on a warp knitting machine, 30 per cent ad valorem; made of fabric knit on other than a warp knitting machine, 25 per cent ad valorem; made of woven fabric, 25 per cent ad valorem.

"Par. 916 (A)—Hose and half hose, selvaged, fashioned seamless or mock-seamed, finished or unfinished, wholly or in chief value of cotton or other vegetable fiber, made wholly or in part on knitting machines or knit by hand, 30 per cent ad valorem. Any of the foregoing not exceeding No. 8 in size (United States measurement), valued at $1.50 or more per dozen pairs, shall be subject to an additional duty of 2 cents per pair."

The Senate bill also provides that hose and half hose, wholly or in part of rayon or other synthetic textile, shall pay 45 cents a pound and 65 per cent ad valorem.

Cotton clothing not specifically provided for, taxed by the present law and the House at 35 per cent ad valorem, carries a duty of 37½ per cent ad valorem in the Senate bill. The paragraph relating to rag rugs, rewritten by the Senate committee, reads:

"Par. 921—Rag rugs, wholly or in chief value of cotton, of the type commonly known as 'hit and miss,' 75 per cent ad valorem; Chenille rugs, 35 per cent ad valorem."

These rates were 55 and 45, respectively, in the House bill.

A new paragraph imposes a duty of 3 cents a pound on rags wholly or in chief value of cotton, except those chiefly used in paper making.

Schedule 10

FLAX, HEMP, JUTE AND MANUFACTURES OF.

The existing rate of 1 cent a pound on hemp and hemp tow, increased by the House to 1½ cents, is fixed at 2 cents by the Senate committee. Schedule 9

COTTON MANUFACTURES.

Rate on Cotton Shirts Increased.

The outstanding change made in this schedule in the Senate committee was in relation to cotton shirts. The existing law threw these products into a basket clause and taxed them at 35 per cent ad valorem. The House increased that rate to 37½ per cent. The Senate still further increased it to 50 per cent ad valorem, enumerating cotton shirts by name.

American manufacturers claimed that the higher rate was necessary to enable them to meet the competition of English broadcloth shirts.

Other changes in rates made in the cotton schedule are generally upward. Cotton sewing thread, taxed at 25 per cent ad valorem by the present law and the House bill, was increased to 30 per cent ad valorem by the Senate committee. Crochet, embroidery, darning and knitting cottons, put up for handwork, in lengths not exceeding 840 yards, taxed at one-half of 1 cent per 100 yards by the current law and fixed at 25 per cent by the House bill, were taxed 35 per cent ad valorem by the Senate committee.

Rewriting of House Items on Wool

Wools Not Especially Provided For, Not Finer Than 44s—House rate: In the grease or washed 24 cents a pound, scoured 24 cents, on the skin 23 cents, sorted or matchings 26 cents. This item was deleted by the Senate committee.

On woven fabrics of not more than four ounces per square yard the Senate committee rates are not more than the $1.25 per pound value are 46 cents per pound and 50 per cent ad valorem, $1.26 to $2 value 46 cents and 55 per cent, more than $2 46 cents and 60 per cent.

The House rates are: Up to 80 cents per pound 40 cents and 50 per cent, 80 cents to $1.25 50 cents and 50 per cent, $1.26 to $2 50 cents and 60 per cent. The present rates are to 60 cents per pound 37 cents and 50 per cent, more than 60 cents 45 cents and 50 per cent.

If the warp is cotton the Senate committee makes a rate of 37 cents and 50 per cent, when the value runs to $1 per pound, rates of 37 cents and 55 per cent on a $1-$1.50 value and 37 cents and 60 per cent on value above $1.50.

The House used the cotton warp basis to make rates of 40 cents and 60 per cent on value to $1 and of 40 cents and 55 per cent on value of more than $1. The present law taxes all-cotton-warp hoses 35 cents and 50 per cent.

Woven fabrics of more than four ounces per square yard would be subject to these Senate Committee taxes: Not more than $1.25 per pound, Senate committee 9 cents a pound; House bill, 5 cents; Senate committee, 2½ cents. Shelled—Present rate, 5 cents; House bill, 10 cents; Senate committee, 5 cents.

Many Variations Made From the Rates Fixed in House Bill

pound value, 46 cents and 50 per cent ad valorem; $1.25 to $2 value, 46 cents and 55 per cent.

The House figures are: Up to 60 cents per pound, 26 cents and 40 per cent; 60 to 80 cents a pound, 40 cents and 50 per cent; 80 cents to $1.50, 50 cents and 50 per cent. Present rates are: To 60 cents a pound, 26 cents and 40 per cent; 60 to 80 cents value, 37 cents and 50 per cent; 80 cents to $1.50 value, 37 cents and 50 per cent, more than $1.50, 45 cents and 50 per cent.

File fabrics are now taxed under present law at 40 cents and 50 per cent ad valorem per pound. The House and Finance Committee divided the schedule as follows: Wholly cut or uncut, Senate committee rate 41 cents and 50 per cent, House rate 44 cents and 50 per cent; partly cut, Senate committee rate 41 cents and 55 per cent, House rate 44 cents and 50 per cent.

New Blanket Value Basis.

Blankets received new tariff basis value from the Senate committee. They are now taxed: Up to 30 cents per pound value, 18 cents and 30 per cent ad valorem; 30 cents to $1, 27 cents and 32½ per cent; $1 to $1.50, 50 cents and 35 per cent; more than $1.50, 37 cents and 40 per cent.

The House substituted the respective figures of 20 cents and 30 per cent, 30 cents and 36 per cent, 33 cents and 37½ per cent, and 40 cents and 40 per cent.

The Senate committee fixed the first valuation up to $1, and set the rates at 28 cents per pound and 36 per cent. Its other rates were: $1 to $1.50, 31 cents and 37½ per cent; more than $1, 33 cents and 40 per cent.

Felts, Knit Fabrics, Hose and Gloves

Felts valued at up to 50 cents per pound are 18 cents and 30 per cent ad valorem under the present law, and 20 cents and 30 per cent in the House bill; from $1 to $1.50, present 27 cents and 35 per cent, House bill 30 cents and 35 per cent; above $1.50, present 37 cents and 40 per cent, House bill, 40 cents and 40 per cent.

The Senate committee made these imposts: Up to $1.50 value a pound, 28 cents and 35 per cent ad valorem and more than $1.50, 38 cents and 40 per cent.

Fabrics With Fast Edges—Present rate 45 cents and 50 per cent ad valorem, House rate 50 cents and 50 per cent, Senate committee, 46 cents and 50 per cent.

Knit Fabrics—Value to $1 a pound: present rate 30 cents and 40 per cent ad valorem, House rate 33 cents and 40 per cent, Senate committee rate 31 cents and 40 per cent; more than $1 value: present rate 45 cents and 50 per cent, House rate 50 cents and 50 per cent, Senate committee rate 46 cents and 50 per cent.

Bearing a value up to $1.75 per dozen, hose and gloves would be taxed by the Senate committee at 37 cents and 35 per cent ad valorem, by the House at 40 cents and 35 per cent, under the present law at 36 cents and 35 per cent; at more than that price, they would be, in order: 46 cents and 50 per cent, 50 cents and 50 per cent; 45 cents and 50 per cent. Knit underwear has the same cost division.

At the lower price per dozen the Senate committee rates are 37 cents and 30 per cent, the House rates 40 cents and 30 per cent, and present rates 36 cents and 30 per cent. Above $1.75 per dozen, the Senate committee rates are 46 cents and 50 per cent, the House rates 50 cents and 50 per cent, and the present rates 45 cents and 50 per cent.

Different Treatment of Outer Wear

Outer wear, a classification of knit fabrics, was treated variously by the Senate committee and the House. Present rates are: value to $1 per pound, 36 cents and 40 per cent ad valorem; $1 to $2, 40 cents and 45 per cent; more than $2, 45 cents and 50 per cent.

The House started at a value up to $2 per pound, and taxed this 44 cents and 45 per cent ad valorem, while the Senate committee lowered the rate to 41 cents and kept the same ad valorem tariff. On outer wear valued above $2, the House rate is 50 cents and 50 per cent, while the Senate committee's rate is 46 cents and 50 per cent.

Clothing was also handled in different ways. The existing law imposes 24 cents and 40 per cent ad valorem on clothing valued up to $2 per pound, and the House retained the ad valorem rate, but made the specific rate 2 cents higher. Present tariff rates on clothing worth $2 to $4 per pound are 30 cents and 45 per cent; the House made these 33 cents and 45 per cent.

A clothing worth more than $4 they are, in the present law, 45 cents and 50 per cent, but the House made the figures 40 cents and 50 per cent. The Finance Committee started at a value up to $4 and made this 31 cents and 45 per cent, and adjusted the rate on the value above $4 to 46 cents and 50 per cent.

Tariff Levied on Hat Shapes.

Hat shapes are not now taxed as such. The House made the rates on these 40 cents and 75 per cent ad valorem, but the Senate committee cut the tariff to 30 cents and 50 per cent. Under each bill every trimmed or blocked hat would be taxed 25 cents additional.

Changes were made by both the House and the Senate committee in the tariffs on carpets and rugs. Oriental, Axminster, Savonnerie, Aubusson and other carpets and rugs not made on a power-driven loom now pay 55 per cent ad valorem, but the House substituted 50 cents per square foot and not less than 60 per cent ad valorem. The Finance Committee made the rate 50 cents per square foot and not less than 45 per cent.

Under the Fordney law, axminster carpets and others not specially provided for are taxed 40 per cent ad valorem. The House altered this to read that those valued at not more than 40 cents per square foot should bear a tariff of 40 per cent and above 40 cents value at 60 per cent. The Senate committee put in a new paragraph to tax Oriental carpets and rugs made on a power loom at 60 per cent.

SILK MANUFACTURES.

Woven Fabrics in the Pieces Not Specially Provided For—Present rate, 55 per cent ad valorem; House rate, 55 per cent; Senate committee rate, 60 per cent.

Schedule 13

MANUFACTURES OF RAYON AND OTHER SYNTHETIC TEXTILES.

Rayon and Other Synthetic Yarns Having More Than Twenty Turns Twist per Inch—Senate committee rate, 50 cents a pound additional cumulative duty.

Clothing and Wearing Apparel of Every Description, Wholly or in Chief Value of Rayon or Other Synthetic Textile—Present rate, 45 cents a pound and 60 per cent ad valorem; House rate, 45 cents and 70 per cent; Senate committee rate, 45 cents and 65 per cent.

Manufactures of Yarns, Filaments, Fibers or Threads—Present rate, 45 cents a pound and 60 per cent ad valorem; House rate, 45 cents and 70 per cent; Senate committee rate, 45 cents and 65 per cent.

Schedule 14

PAPERS AND BOOKS.

In Paragraph 1403 a new proviso is inserted imposing a duty of 30 per cent ad valorem on manufactures of pulp not specially provided for.

Paragraph 1404, relating to papers commercially known as tissue paper, stereotype paper, copying paper, India and Bible paper, carbon paper, bibulous paper and all paper similar to the foregoing, is rewritten. The effect of the changes is to impose duties of 6 cents a pound and 20 per cent ad valorem on such papers, colored or uncolored, or white or printed, when weighing not over six pounds to the ream. The existing and House rates are the same.

In the case of India and Bible paper weighing 10 pounds or more and less than 21½ pounds, the current rate of 4 cents a pound and 15 per cent ad valorem, which the House adopted, is not changed. The only change is that making these rates apply to papers weighing over 21½ pounds instead of 18, as provided by the present law and the House bill.

Paper and pulp wadding and manufactures of such wadding are made dutiable at 6 cents a pound and 15 per cent ad valorem by Paragraph 1404 of the Senate bill.

Uncoated papers, decorated or covered with a design or produced by lithographic process, carry a rate of 4½ cents a pound under the existing law, and if embossed or printed otherwise than lithographically an additional duty of 17 per cent ad valorem.

New Rates on Metal-Coated Papers

The House increased the ad valorem rate in this instance to 18 per cent. The Senate retained the specific rate of 4½ cents a pound and reduced the ad valorem to 10 per cent. On paper wholly or partly covered with metal or solutions and weighing less than fifteen pounds per ream the existing rates are 5 cents a pound and 17 per cent ad valorem; the House rates 5 cents a pound and 20 per cent ad valorem, and the Senate rates 5 cents a pound and 18 per cent ad valorem.

Rates of 5 cents a pound and 10 per cent ad valorem are imposed by the Senate bill on simplex decalcomanis paper not printed, instead of the rate of 5 cents a pound prescribed by existing law and the bill as it passed the House.

The language of the paragraph dealing with plain basic paper is changed. A series of graded rates in the present law and the House bill are rearranged in such manner as to provide a rate of 3 cents a pound and 15 per cent ad valorem on plain basic paper for albumenizing, sensitizing or for photographic processes. Albumenized or sensitized paper or paper otherwise surface-coated for photographic purpose is taxed at 3 cents a pound and 20 per cent ad valorem.

Rate Rises on Decalcomanias.

Decalcomanias in ceramic colors, weighing not over 100 pounds per 1,000 sheets on the basis of 20 by 30 inches, carry a rate of 70 cents a pound and 15 per cent ad valorem in the existing law; the specific rate was increased to $1.40 a pound by the House and fixed at $1.25 a pound by the Senate committee.

Decalcomanias weighing over 100 pounds per 1,000 sheets on the basis of 20 by 30 inches in dimensions are taxed by the existing law at 22 cents a pound and 15 per cent ad valorem; the specific rate was 35 cents by the House and was fixed at 30 cents by the Senate.

Hanging paper, not printed, lithographed, dyed or colored, is specifically enumerated in the Senate bill and given a rate of 10 per cent ad valorem; if printed, lithographed, dyed or colored it will carry rates of 1¼ cents per pound and 20 per cent ad valorem. Filtering paper is given the existing rates of 5 cents a pound and 15 per cent ad valorem by the Senate bill instead of 30 per cent ad valorem as provided by the House bill.

Cover Paper at 20 Per cent.

Cover paper, plain, uncoated and undecorated, taxed by the House at 30 per cent, is made dutiable at 20 per cent ad valorem by the Senate bill.

Schedule 14 of the Senate bill levies a duty of 10 cents a pack and 20 per cent ad valorem on playing cards, the rates of the existing law which were embodied in the tariff bill as it passed the House. The schedule contains a new item in the form of a duty of $3 a thousand on ribbon fly-catchers.

Schedule 14 provides in relation to many articles of paper and pulp that if any country shall forbid or restrict in any way the exportation of such products the President may enter into negotiations to secure the removal of such prohibitions or restrictions, and if they are not removed he is authorized to impose a countervailing duty of 10 per cent and in addition an amount equal to the highest export duty or other export charged by any foreign country.

All other wool waste not especially provided for was taxed by the Senate committee at 23 cents a pound when carbonized and 16 cents uncarbonized. The House rates on both were 18 cents each, there being no present tariff.

Shoddy was made by Senate committee, House and existing law, respectively, 21, 18 and 16 cents.

Wool extract was made a new class by the Senate committee and set at 21 cents.

Wool Rag Rate Tripled.

Wool rags were rated at 24 cents a pound by the Senate committee as against the House rate of 8 cents and the present rate of 7¼ cents. The object of the increase was to shut out rag imports used in cheap clothing.

Wool and hair, carbonized and advanced in manufacture, received a Senate committee rate of 34 cents a pound and 20 per cent ad valorem, compared with the House figure of 37 cents and 20 per cent and the present rate of 33 cents and 20 per cent.

New cost figures upon which to base the tariffs have made the yarn, fabric and other schedules extremely intricate. Senate committee rates on yarns are: Not more than $1 a pound, 37 cents a pound and 35 per cent ad valorem; $1 to $1.50 a pound, 37 cents and 45 per cent; more than $1.50, 37 cents and 55 per cent.

The House rates were: Not more than 50 cents, 27 cents and 30 per cent; not more than $1, 40 cents and 35 per cent; $1 to $1.50, 40 cents and 45 per cent; more than $1.50, 40 cents and 45 per cent.

The present rates are: Up to 30 cents a pound, 24 cents and 30 per cent; to $1, 36 cents and 35 per cent; more than $1, 36 cents and 40 per cent.

Gobelin tapestries used as wall hangings.
Fish brought into the United States for six months for breeding or prize competition were taken off the free list.
Arrowroot in its natural state and not manufactured, now admitted free, was changed to read crude or manufactured, including starch or flour.
Cocoa or cocoa shells were placed on the free list. Coffee imported into Porto Rico was excluded from the free list, as were nitro-prussides, ferrocyanides, ferricyanides and cyanates. Grindstones were placed on the free list.
Bread, now on the free list if yeast is used as the leavening substance, must now be light-raised and commonly known as bread.
Metallic mineral substances in a crude state, not especially provided for and admitted free, or described as such as drosses, skimmings, residues, brass foundry ash and flue dust.

Game Killed Abroad Put on Free List

At present the free list includes live game animals and birds imported by Federal or State officials for stocking game preserves. This was changed to admit also those killed in foreign countries by residents of the United States and imported by them for non-commercial purposes.

Gunpowder and sporting powder and other explosives must not be composed wholly or chiefly of cellulose ester if they are to continue duty free.

Altars, pulpits, communion tables, baptismal fonts imported for religious purposes are taken off the free list if made of plaster of paris or papier-mâché.

Fish frozen and with fins removed are placed on the free list if the product of an American fishery landed in a foreign country and not there further advanced than beheaded and eviscerated.

Articles of manufacture of the United States returned from abroad after having been exported and not improved or advanced abroad may be brought in duty free regardless of the ownership of the article. Under the House bill it was necessary for the importer to own the article. A similar provision was made by the Senate in regard to bags or coverings.

Crude artificial abrasive not especially provided for was placed on the free list.

Impure tea, tea waste and tea siftings and sweepings for manufacturing purposes in bond are admitted free, subject to laws regulating impure and unwholesome tea.

The maximum value of goods bought abroad by residents of the United States "for personal or household use as souvenirs or curios," but not bought on commission or intended for sale, was increased from $100 to $200.

"Drawings and sketches" were added to the free list. The exemption on stained glass intended for public institutions or churches was raised from $15 to $35 per square foot.

Rugs and carpets made after the year 1700 were excepted from the paragraph admitting free works of art. Collections of art works of an ornamental or educational character made prior to the year 1800 will be admitted free instead of those "produced more than 100 years prior to the date of importation" as provided in the House bill and existing law.

Violins, violoncellos, violas and double basses made in 1800 or previously were added to the free list.

HOST OF LOST CHILDREN CARED FOR BY POLICE

More children are lost and reported missing during the Summer months than in any other season of the year. This is not surprising since at this time of year the streets and parks are thronged with little ones of all ages.

The banner precinct for lost children is Coney Island. On a holiday a perfect stream of them flows continually into the station house. While their elders are listening to the ballyhoo men or gawking at lurid transparencies their little ones stray away and become lost. But all of them eventually wind up at the station house where their anxious elders find them. On busy days the Coney Island station has harbored between fifty and 100 lost children a day.

A good many children are lost on the beaches. It not watched closely, it is easy for them to disappear in the great throngs that swarm the sands from the Boardwalk to the sea. The police have established enclosures at convenient points on the beaches and when a child is lost it is taken to the nearest enclosure and kept there for several hours. If its parents fail to find it, the child is taken to the station house. But as a rule most children are restored to their parents within an hour of their disappearance.

Each afternoon station houses situated in lowly tenement house neighborhoods have their quotas of lost little ones. Discovered wandering helplessly about the streets, they are brought to the stations either by policemen or citizens. They range from mere babies to boys and girls of 5 or 6. Although most of them are able to tell their names, they do not remember the names of the streets in which they live.

"Most of these kids," said a station house attendant, "are intrusted to the care of older children. The latter, becoming engrossed in play, forget to keep a watch on them and they wander away and become lost. However, their parents know where to find them and come to the station house. Some of these parents doubtless think that the police should act as nurses for their children."

Occasionally children are found miles away from their homes. Small ones from the lower east side, Staten Island, the Bronx and Long Island have been picked up in Harlem. They go on picnics with older children to various parks and amusement resorts and become lost.

It is common for the stations to receive little ones that do not speak English. There are plenty of them who speak only Italian, Greek, Yiddish, Spanish or other languages. Usually the police are able to find some one who can act as interpreter. But often, having scoured the neighborhood for a linguist, they find that the child remembers pretty much everything except his home address.

The lost children are placed in the squad room of the station house. Most of them are tired and hungry and frightened by their strange surroundings. Here they refuse to be pacified and make the station ring with their lamentations until their mothers call to claim them. If they are not claimed within a few hours, they are transferred to the Children's Society. Although small armies of them are lost daily, few come to harm and are eventually identified and restored to their parents.

Since many policemen are fathers, they treat the little ones with kindness and sympathy, providing them with milk, cookies and doing their best to quiet their fears and amuse them.

POLICE RANK AND FILE LIKE EMERGENCY PLAN

Agree With Whalen That Wagons Are Improvement on Present Reserve System.

The plan of Commissioner Whalen to substitute police emergency wagons for the time-honored custom of keeping a certain number of policemen in the various station houses to cope with unusual situations which may arise, is generally commended by the rank and file. Policemen who have been interviewed on the subject are heartily in accord with the views of the commissioner. Provided there are a sufficient number of emergency wagons, policemen agreed that the wagons with their crews will be in a better position to render quick service than police reserves.

Since time immemorial several policemen have been held in the various stations day and night. They are on reserve duty for eight hours, and then are relieved by another batch. The idea is to have men ready at all times to dispatch to big fires, accidents, riots or anything else requiring the presence of a large number of patrolmen.

Every uniformed policeman must take his turn doing reserve duty. The men on reserve are much like firemen. They must sit around the house, passing the time as best they can, until something unexpected breaks, when they are rushed to the scene to assist brother officers on patrol in pressing crowds back and establishing police lines.

When the system is abolished, which will be in the near future, it will release hundreds of policemen for more active duty. Few like to be on reserve duty. They would rather be out on the streets doing something and seeing something. They will tell you that when they are active the time passes quickly. Besides, they would rather be at home with their families when they are not on active duty.

The police emergency wagons are a comparatively new innovation. Painted red, they resemble a big fire truck. Each wagon is in charge of an experienced policeman and has a crew of six or ten men. When word is flashed to headquarters of a wreck or riot, one of these auto trucks is dispatched to the scene. And they race to the seat of trouble in the same manner as a fire engine. The wagons have machine guns, tear bombs, riot guns, ropes and tools of all kinds. The crews are composed of picked policemen who have been trained to cope with any kind of an unusual situation.

When a sufficient number of these wagons are put in service and distributed at convenient points throughout the five boroughs, so that they will not have to cover too much ground, their sponsors assert they will be far more effective than is the present reserve method.

Hindenburg in Robust Health.

DIETRAMZELL, Germany, Aug. 19 (AP).—President Paul von Hindenburg, who for the seventh Summer in succession is spending his vacation here with his friend Herr von Schliessler, was impressed all his old acquaintances with his general air of good health. The recent grip attack of the octogenarian President has apparently left no traces on him except to take away some of his weight.

To Change Export Tax on Bananas.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Aug. 19.—President Gonzalez Viquez today signed a law passed by Congress last Tuesday providing for a sliding scale export tax on bananas from 2 to 6 cents a bunch.

The law will become effective in October, 1930, when the present law providing for a tax of one cent a bunch expires.

Misses Nuthall, Wills and Jacobs Win as Women's National Tennis Play Opens

MISS NUTHALL TRIUMPHANT

Mrs. Bundy, Mrs. Mallery, Miss Goss Victors—All British Wightman Stars Survive.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

With one of the largest opening-day crowds in years in the stands and the foremost players of America and England in the lists, the forty-second annual tournament for the women's national tennis championship got under way yesterday at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills.

Miss Helen Wills, the defending champion, unbeaten in three years of competition; Miss Betty Nuthall of England, who, during the Wightman Cup matches, furnished her with the stiffest opposition she has faced during this period, and Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., runner-up to Miss Wills in the national last year and again at Wimbledon in July, led the procession of the talented array across the stadium greensward, and nightfall found all of the favorites included among the thirty-two survivors of the starting field of sixty-four.

Mrs. Molla Mallory, former national champion, and Miss Eleanor Goss, both of New York; Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., and Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin of Springfield, Mass., all of whom have been powers in American tennis for some years, were included among the thirty-two.

British Players Survive.

So also were the five members of the British Wightman Cup team, while the rising generation of players was generously represented by Miss Sarah Palfrey and Miss Marjorie Morrill of Boston, Miss Marjorie Gladman, Miss Edith Cross, Mrs. L. A. Harper and Miss Helen Marlowe of California; Miss Mary Greef of Kansas City, Miss Clara Zinke of Cincinnati, Miss Clara Greenspan of New York, Miss Alice Francis of Orange, N. J., and Miss Virginia Hilleary of Philadelphia.

Numbered among the casualties were Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va.; Miss Evelyn Parsons, Miss Ethel Burkardt, Miss Josephine Cruikshank and Miss Carolyn Babcock of California, Miss Virginia Rice and Miss Margaret Blake of Boston, Miss Ruth Bailey of St. Louis, Miss Gladys Hutchings of Bermuda and all three of the Canadian representatives.

The elimination of these players, all of them of more than local reputation, was in accordance with expectations, save for the defeat of Miss Parsons by Mrs. Agnes Sherwood Lamme, which serves to indicate the quality of the field competing for the title.

Miss Wills Wins Speedily.

As a rule it is not the matches that are honored with centre court setting that furnish the best entertainment on the opening day of a championship, for there the headliners invariably do hardly more than to parade their strokes. This was true yesterday of the match in which Miss Wills, hitting with demoralising severity—a severity that was lacking in her forehand in the Wightman Cup matches—took two love sets in eighteen minutes from the youthful Miss Katherine Lamarche of Shrewsbury, N. J.

It was true also of the engagement in which the hard-hitting Mrs. Phoebe Watson of England turned back the vigorous drives of Miss Josephine Cruikshank to win by the impressive score of 6—1, 6—1.

But in the three other enclosure matches the gallery was furnished with more than sufficient drama to prevent its attention from being distracted by the developments on the outside courts, and one of them found Miss Jacobs so sorely beset that there appeared to be a strong prospect of her being the victim of the biggest upset of the season. This was when Miss Penelope Anderson led her at 5—4, with her service to follow, in the opening set.

Close Call for Miss Jacobs.

In winning this match from the smooth-stroking, sharp-hitting Richmond girl by the score of 8—6, 6—4, Miss Jacobs was extended more severely than she has been in any other engagement since her return from England, and had Miss Anderson been able to take advantage of her opportunities the play would not have ended in the second set.

Miss Jacobs's ground strokes lacked their customary depth and pace, her volleying was unstable, her return of service often found the net and she did not move into position with the keenness for the fray that she ordinarily shows. Miss Anderson, on the other hand, was playing the best tennis she has shown since 1927, when she was ranked seventh. A quiet worker who uses less energy than almost any other player in the women's ranks, the Richmond girl nicked the lines in beautiful fashion with her stylish cross-court forehand drives and her stunning straight backhand. Her control was unshakable against both chops and drives, and she deployed her strokes with changes of pace and length that had her opponent running to cover up the gaps in her court.

Miss Jacobs started well, until Miss Anderson got her eye in, winning the first two games, but from this point on until she finally broke through in the fourteenth game she was doing no more than holding her own at best. Four times her service was broken through, and in the fifth and sixth games she lost eight points in a row as Miss Anderson took both games at love.

The Richmond girl pulled out the seventh game from 0—40, largely on Miss Jacobs's errors, and after dropping her own service in the eighth, in which she led at 30—0, she rallied in the ninth, pulling up from 0—30. The score now stood at 5—4 in her favor, and she held the service.

Miss Jacobs had no alternative now but to lift her game, and she rose to the occasion, speeding up her footwork and adding pace to her strokes to break through and draw level at 5—all. Miss Anderson never had such an opportunity again, although she continued to make Miss Jacobs pay strict attention to her work to the last point.

Three Times at Point Set.

It was not until Miss Jacobs had been at set point three times that she won the opening chapter, and in the second set, largely owing to her inability to return her opponent's service as well as to the brilliant shot-making of Miss Anderson, she was unable to effect a break until the eighth game, although she was winning her own service games at love. Miss Anderson made one last big effort to break through in the ninth, clearly outplaying Miss Jacobs, but the loss of this game aroused the California girl and her powerful drives brooked no opposition as she broke through at love in the tenth to end the match.

Miss Nuthall, while she defeated Miss Cecelia Riegel of Philadelphia, 6—3, 6—3, had much harder assignment than might be gathered from the figures. Miss Riegel's forehand came over the net with bullet-like velocity and she was so industrious in covering court that it was not easy to penetrate her defense.

Miss Nuthall was not as steady as she can be, although she hits with such abandon and disregard for the consequences that a certain amount of error-making is the inevitable price she must pay even when she is at her best. In both sets she was least effective at the start and invincible thereafter.

Wins Six Games in Row.

In the second set she fell behind at 0—2, finding at this stage that Miss Riegel's backhand was not as vulnerable as it had seemed, but from that point on the English girl had her opponent at her mercy as she hit out magnificently off the backhand and served with irresistible speed and precision. Miss Riegel was hardly doing more than signalling hits and misses from Miss Nuthall's racquet as the British girl captured six games in a row.

The opening match in the stadium was one of the best slugfests of the day. It found Miss Morrill, the sixth ranking player of the country, fighting an uphill battle for the first set to hold the uncompromising forehand and fast service of the diminutive Miss Ethel Burkardt of California in check, and it ended with the Boston girl clearly holding the upper hand.

Miss Burkardt led at 4—2 in the opener and was at point of 5—3 when Miss Morrill got the range of the baseline, and from then on the New England girl's marvelous low backhand drives and jolting forehanders had her younger opponent on the defensive. Had Miss Burkardt's backhand been a little steadier she might have taken a set, but as it was she did more than was expected of her against so forceful a driver as Miss Morrill, and roundly deserved the demonstration she received when she left the court.

Miss Goss Pressed to Win.

Miss Goss was extended to the limit of her resources to prevail over Miss Virginia Rice in two evenly played sets at 7—5, 6—4, and Mrs. Mallory met with stubborn opposition from Mrs. G. H. Dorr for one set. Mrs. Bundy allowed Miss Catherine Jones only one game, while Mrs. Chapin wore down Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Boston in the first set at 8—6 and raced through the second at 6—1.

Mrs. Chapin will be Miss Wills's opponent today, and remembering the difficulty Miss Wills experienced in vanquishing her last year, when Mrs. Chapin took four games in a set from her, the most that the champion conceded to any one on both sides of the Atlantic, their meeting this afternoon should be one of the best of the early rounds, although Mrs. Chapin has not played as well this year as she did in 1928.

TILDEN WINS TWICE IN NEWPORT PLAY

KING DEFEATS SELIGSON

Hunter Beats Baggs as American Seeded Players Except R. N. Williams Advance at Casino.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—Although hampered throughout the day by intermittent showers following an early downpour, the thirteenth annual invitation tennis tournament at the Newport Casino for the Cushman cup got under way today and before dark the entire first and second rounds had been completed with the exception of one match, and William T. Tilden, who has two of the necessary three legs on the trophy, had gone into the fourth round.

There were no real upsets, all the American seeded players coming through successfully except the former national champion, R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia, who lost to Wilbur F. Coen Jr. of Kansas City, a protégé of Tilden's, after winning his first-round match.

Of the invaders from foreign shores, H. W. (Bunny) Austin came through successfully, but his companion, J. Olliff, lost in the second round to Harold McGuffin of Philadelphia. Gilbert Nunns, the Canadian, also lost out. This left of the foreign contingent in the running besides Austin, the French player, Paul de Ricou, Norman Farquharson of South Africa, Tamio Abe of Japan and Avory and Cooper of England.

Seligson Loses in Three Sets.

Chief among the surprises was the victory of Dr. George King, veteran of the Eastern courts, over Julius Seligson, former intercollegiate champion and ninth in national ranking, by the score of 6—4, 5—7, 6—3.

Davis N. Jones of Brooklyn in the final match of the day wrested the honors from Lewis N. White, former intercollegiate doubles champion from Texas, 8—6, 6—3.

The favorites came through without much difficulty and the close matches were those among the younger players who were fighting for recognition in the welter of ninety-two contestants who were drawn for this tournament, the largest number ever listed in a Casino invitation meet.

Tilden had little trouble in getting into the fourth round. He defeated G. H. Perkins Jr. of Harvard in the morning, 6—4, 6—2, and then from S. B. Gilpin in the afternoon, beating the Philadelphian at 6—3, 6—2. Francis T. Hunter, seeded No. 2, went into the second round by defeating the old war horse, Fred C. (Pop) Baggs, 6—3, 6—3.

Dick Williams Comes Back.

The gallery, which was large despite the threatening weather, had its favorites and one of them was Dick Williams. Flashing his brilliant game of a decade and more ago, he defeated another former Harvard captain, E. B. Ward, in the morning, 6—2, 6—1. In the afternoon he lost to Junior Coen, 6—4, 6—4, in a hard-fought contest in which only the steadiness of the Kansas City lad kept Williams from winning.

Another veteran who appeared on the courts was Craig Biddle of Philadelphia. He lost to Farquharson, whom Williams, by the way, had defeated at Seabright, 7—5, 7—5.

THE SUMMARIES.

First Round.

Edgar P. Dawson, New York, defeated Robert Bacon, Newport, 7—5, 6—0; Paul De Ricou, Paris, defeated Donald Strachan, Philadelphia, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4; Dr. George King, New York, defeated H. Miss Wills Out of National Tennis Doubles, Adhering to Policy of Restricting Play

The start of the women's national doubles championship at the West Side Tennis Club this afternoon will find Miss Helen Wills out of the running for the first time since 1926, when she was forced to give up all play following an operation for appendicitis.

When the draw was announced yesterday at Forest Hills, where the Berkeley girl is defending her title in the singles, it was found that Miss Wills, who won the doubles crown with Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston last year, was not entered. Mrs. Wightman selected Miss Marjorie Morrill of Boston as her partner, as was announced last week, and it was expected that Miss Wills would pair with Miss Edith Cross, with whom she toured Europe this Summer and with whom she played the No. 1 doubles match in the Wightman Cup competition. Instead, Miss Cross joined forces with Mrs. L. A. Harper of California, with whom she was runner-up to Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman in 1928.

Miss Wills has been restricting her play more and more each season and her failure to enter the doubles is in line with this policy. Since her return from Wimbledon she has played in only the East Hampton doubles and the Wightman Cup matches in preparation for the defense of her title. She announced on her return from abroad that she would not play in the national mixed doubles at Boston next week.

Six teams were seeded in the draw, four in the American list and two in the foreign. Miss Cross and Mrs. Harper, Miss Helen Jacobs and Miss Betty Nuthall, Mrs. Wightman and Miss Morrill and Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin and Miss Marjorie Gladman are in the American list. In the foreign are the two English combinations, Mrs. Phoebe Watson and Mrs. L. R. C. Michell, winners at Wimbledon for the last two years, and Mrs. Dorothy Shepherd-Barron and Mrs. B. C. Covell. Thirty-two teams are entered.

HEBARD WINS TWICE AT BRIARCLIFF NET

Beats Wohlman, 6-0, 6-3, and Sniffen, 6-0, 6-1, in Met. Junior Tourney—Talbot Is Victor.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The play today in the metropolitan junior, girls' and boys' championship tennis tourney at Briarcliff Lodge was featured by two victories in the junior class by Richard K. Hebard, former national boys' champion, with the loss of only four games.

The White Plains youth advanced to the third round by turning back Henry Sniffen, 6—0, 6—1, in a well-played match despite the wet court. In his earlier match, Hebard defeated Eugene Wohlman, 6—0, 6—3. After a decisive first-set victory, the lanky lad coasted along to the match triumph in lackadaisical style.

John Talbot of Staten Island experienced great difficulty in passing his first round rival, James Delafield, but managed to swing after three stubbornly fought sets, 8—6, 6—1, 6—3.

THE SUMMARIES.

Junior Singles.

First Round—John Talbot defeated James Delafield, 8—6, 6—1; Robert Jackson defeated Joseph Lyon, 6—1, 6—3; William Sigwart defeated George Downing, 6—4, 6—2; Richard Hebard defeated Robert Wohlman, 6—0, 6—0; Harry Moore defeated John Okstavia, 6—0, 6—2.

Second Round—Hebard defeated Henry Sniffen, 6—0, 6—1.

Girls' Singles.

First Round—Miss Elizabeth Meyer defeated Miss Lenora Holtzberg, 6—0, 6—1; Miss Caroline Roberts defeated Miss Edith Eckerson, 6—0, 6—2.

Second Round—Miss Roberts defeated Miss Sally Childress, 6—0, 6—0.

Boys' Singles.

First Round—James Goodwin defeated James A. Millet, Steele 6—0; Chauncey D. Steele Jr. defeated Joseph Lyder, 6—2, 6—0; Seymour Durst defeated P. K. Steele 2d, 6—1, 6—2; Robert Lincoln defeated William V. Winsley Jr., 6—0, 6—0.

Second Round—C. D. Steele Jr. defeated Seymour Durst, 6—1, 6—2.

JENNINGS IS WINNER IN MUNICIPAL TENNIS

Opens Defense of National Crown at Buffalo by Defeating Ross, 6-3, 6-0, 6-4.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 19.—George J. Jennings Jr. of Chicago, defending champion in the National Municipal Tennis Tournament which opened today at Delaware Park, gained an Arlington-set victory over Richard Ross of Scranton.

Flashing a powerful attack, the southpaw Chicagoan won by 6—3, 6—0, 6—4. His forehand was a weapon which proved extremely useful.

Jack Delaney, captain of the University of California's freshmen, crushed Ralph Burkheiser of Detroit in impressive fashion, 6—0, 6—0, 6—1.

Maurice O'Neil of Washington, D. C., defeated Robert Norton, St. Louis, 8—7, 8—6, 13—11, 6—1.

TROEH BREAKS 197 TO WIN TRAP TITLE

Takes Class AA Championship of Annual Amateur Association Tourney at Dayton.

TIED AT HALFWAY MARK

Triumphs After Scoring Straight Run of 100 With Prendergast of Phoenix, N. Y.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 19.—Frank Troeh of Portland, Ore., tonight won the class A. A. championship of North America, opening event of the fifteenth annual tournament of the thirtieth annual tournament of the Amateur Trapshooting Association, breaking 197 out of 200 targets.

Troeh and H. J. Prendergast of Phoenix, N. Y., were tied for first honors at the halfway mark, with 100 each in straight runs.

The total entry for the opening contest of the week's shooting was 580 registered shots from the United States and Canada. This exceeded the entries for the same event last year. Association officials estimated that more than 1,000 marksmen will be on the firing line for the Grand American Handicap on Friday for a new record.

Dr. O. J. Hins, Oshkosh, Wis., romped home with 197 in Class B and Charles H. Mason, Kennett Square, Pa., took first in Class C with 192. J. H. Borckman, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, broke 194 and led the list of the Class D shooters. Oscar Wuerz, New York City, shot 188, winning Class E honors.

Prendergast is a three-time winner of the New York State championship and was runner-up for that honor this year. In 1917 he was tied for first in the Grand American but lost in the shoot-off.

BOORMAN GAINS AT NET.

Defeats Bousal in Montclair A. C. Title Singles.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Aug. 19.—Forty-four players were entered in the annual tournament to decide the Class B singles tennis championship of the Montclair Athletic Club, which started today. New champions will be crowned in both singles and doubles, as last year's winners, Donald Wallace in the singles and Wallace and Edmund Bartlett in the doubles, are not competing.

The opening of play today was featured by the unexpected defeat of A. F. Bousal, last year's runner-up for the singles title, by K. M. Boorman. Boorman won in the semi-final round by the score of 6—3, 6—4. Another semi-final match W. W. Hopkins eliminated P. E. Taylor, 2—6, 6—2, 6—2.

The teams of Wimpenny and Davison and Calanan and Lyman scored first-round victories in the only doubles matches played.

Massachusetts Golf Body Holds Firm on Expenses

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—The Massachusetts Golf Association today indicated its determination not to bow to the United States Golf Association in the impending war over professionalism. The State group made public a statement by E. S. Litchfield, former president of the M. G. A., in which he upheld its stand.

The storm broke when the M. G. A. announced its intention to pay expenses of its representatives in the forthcoming Lesley cup matches and interstate competition. Herbert Jacques, New England representative of the U. S. G. A., issued a warning that in this event the players would lose their amateur standing.

Mr. Litchfield said today, "It's perfectly ridiculous to pay the Walker cup team expenses and not those of the Lesley cup team. There should be one law for both."

CAPABLANCA LOSES TO BERLIN MASTER

Saemisch Is First to Defeat Cuban in Chess Tourney at Carlsbad.

SETBACK BREAKS A TIE

Spielmann Draws With Becker and Holds Lead—Vidmar Wins Brilliant Game.

CARLSBAD, Aug. 19.—A most surprising upset—the defeat of Jose R. Capablanca of Cuba—was the outstanding feature of the play in the sixteenth round of the international chess masters' tournament at the Kurhaus today. His conqueror was F. Saemisch of Berlin, who, playing against the ex-champion's irregular defense to a queen's pawn opening, won in sixty-two moves.

A surprising move on the part of the Cuban, Dr. Kmoch said, gave Saemisch an overwhelming advantage, which eventually brought him victory. Making his ninth move hastily, Capablanca laid himself open to the loss of a piece, a situation the German was quick to see. Thereafter Capablanca put up a stubborn fight, but it was a hopeless one.

Saemisch was the first of sixteen opponents to lower the colors of the Cuban, who dropped below Spielmann of Austria, with whom he had been tied, to a tie for second place with Nimzowitsch of Denmark.

Spielmann today drew with Professor Becker of Austria in a queen's pawn opening lasting fifty-seven moves, while Nimzowitsch defeated Gilg of Czechoslovakia in forty-one moves after winning a pawn. Dr. Vidmar of Jugoslavia scored a brilliant victory over Dr. Euwe of Holland in thirty-eight moves, and kept his position as No. 4 in the race.

Maroczy of Hungary was again a winner today, his opponent being Miss Menchik of Russia. Rubinstein of Poland and Bogoljubow of Russia engaged in a prolonged struggle, which was finally adjourned in an even position. Other winners today were Colle of Belgium and Canal of Peru, who defeated Dr. Treybal of Czechoslovakia and Sir George Thomas of England, respectively.

Marshall, the United States champion, played a short drawn game with Mattison of Latvia which lasted twenty-four moves. Dr. Tartakower of France drew with Yates of England and Johner of Switzerland drew with Gruenfeld of Austria.

PETEE-WRACK WINS MILE RACE BY NECK

GREGORY TRIUMPHS AT 12-1

By BRYAN FIELD.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 19.—John R. Macomber's Petee-Wrack, which was good enough over a route to whip Reigh Count in the Travers of 1928, demonstrated in the Olambala Handicap today that he can run a mile with first-flight sprinters and beat them.

Thus far this season Petee-Wrack has the Philadelphia and Metropolitan handicaps to his credit, and was just nosed out of the victory in the Suburban and the Carter.

The margin of victory today was only a neck but it might have been a hundred yards so far as Finite's chances of winning went. This gelding of George D. Widener's has a great turn of speed up to a mile and was so well liked today that he was backed to 9 to 5 as against 7 to 5 favoritism for the son of Wrack.

O'Donnell Up on Victor.

From the break until the last sixteenth Finite ran on top and since he had a twenty-pound pull in weights over Petee-Wrack, many were led to believe he would come home a winner. Steve O'Donnell on Petee-Wrack may have cut things rather finely in whipping Finite only a neck but he could have gone to the Widener color-bearer at any time during the mile.

O'Donnell kept his horse under a strong pull until the top of the stretch, where he let him out a notch. Petee easily overhauled Finite and won under wraps while Finite was being whipped in the hope that he might make an extra jump at the very end to snatch the victory.

The mile was run in the smart time of 1:37 2-5 and the winner was best in a field of five. Chief Executive, Eastward and Healy were the others to go to the post and they finished in the order named.

Chief Executive was five lengths back of Finite and the others were distant trailers. Some disappointment was caused over the poor showing of Healy. He ran sluggishly for the whole way, even though the track was fast and the weather pleasant. He was in under 108 pounds, at that, while Petee-Wrack had 126.

To Carry 125 Saturday.

Handicapper Walter Vosburgh announced the weights for the Merchants and Citizens Handicap this afternoon, and they show Petee-Wrack in the second notch with 125 pounds. Diavelo is top weight with 127. Between these two lie the handicap honors of the older division for 1929 and they will probably meet in the Saratoga Cup as well as the Merchants and Citizens. This event is scheduled for Saturday and the cup on gateway day.

The Olambala victory was worth less than $1,000 and was second in value to the Consolation Claiming Stakes, which was for 2-year-olds nominated for bit declared out of several of Saratoga's big stakes.

The Jadell Stable's Gregory, a 12-to-1 shot, was the winner of the purse of $2,230. He was a surprise to many who had followed his form around the metropolitan tracks. It was a head on the post that gave him the victory today over Benjamin Block's Moreyes, held at 4 to 5.

Gregory was coupled with May Agnes K., a stablemate, and Moreyes was coupled with J. H. Louchheim's Prince Toy.

The break saw Moreyes go to the front with a burst of speed that made everything look rosy for the favorite players. Pomfret, one of the eight others in the race, ran second for a furlong and a half while Gregory was moving slowly up from the rear.

About the middle of the bend Gregory was second but the Block horse still had a couple of lengths to the good. It was a long, hard drive down the stretch for Gregory but he caught the flagging Moreyes just a stride from the finish. The time was 1:07 1-5 for the five and a half furlongs with both horses carrying 114 pounds. Jean Lafitte was third, two lengths back.

Seven races in all were run and among the most interesting was the Tippecanoe Purse at a mile. This brought out Mrs. K. E. Hitt's Hot Toddy, which won by a neck in a rousing finish from the converted jumper Dollan, which runs in the colors of Miss Dorothy Neyhart.

52 YEARLINGS BRING $126,050 AT SARATOGA

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The yearling sales began their last week tonight, when fifty-two heads were disposed of for $126,050.

The yearlings were largely from the Claiborne and Ellerslie studs of Arthur B. Hancock.

A brown colt by Wrack brought $11,500 for the top price of the night. The youngster is out of Gay Plumage and was purchased by the Eastland Farms stable. The yearling is a half-brother to the stake winner Golden Plume.

Only eight horses brought $5,000 or more. The second highest price of the night was $10,100 for a chestnut colt by High Time out of Ramise II. The colt was purchased by Robert L. Gerry. It was from the Meadowview Farms lot.

A Bubbling Over colt out of the mare Thunderbird went to the Brookmeade Stable for $10,000. W. S. Dudley was the seller. A John P. Grier colt out of Pinnacle brought $9,000. This youngster also was from the Meadowview Farms lot and was taken by R. A. Smith.

The sum of $8,500 was brought by a chestnut filly, also by John P. Grier and also from the Meadowview Farms. The dam in this case was Hilker. The youngster was taken by Mr. Gerry.

Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, owner of Aquestelle, which won the Alabama at this meeting, was the successful bidder on still another John P. Grier yearling. This was a bay or brown filly out of Manicure Maid and brought $8,100.

Handicap for Women Owners To Be Run at Saratoga Aug. 27

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The increasing prominence of women owners has caused Richard T. Wilson Jr., president of the Saratoga Association, to inaugurate a Lady-Owners' Handicap, according to an announcement today. The race is scheduled for Aug. 27 and will be at five and a half furlongs for 2-year-olds. The horses entered must be owned by the entrant. One of the most formidable juveniles owned by a woman is the filly Goose Egg, which won the Spinaway last Saturday. The Spare, owned by the Sagamore Stables of Mrs. Charles Minot Amory, is another filly of ability.

NASSAU WILL RACE AGAIN FOR SANDE

$35,000 Colt, Once More Sound, to Make His Come-back at Bowie Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Earl Sande, long the premier jockey of America, is going into preliminary training for a season of riding, he declared today, and will start road work this week, but not with the idea of fitting himself to accept mounts during the remaining days of the Saratoga meeting. The story was circulated here that Sande would sell all of his thoroughbreds, apply for a license here and accept mounts before the meeting ends.

This came about through the fact that Sande has placed seven horses which he has in training here on the market. Among these are three which have recently raced, Spectre, Safety Pin and Nearby.

If Sande sold all of his thoroughbreds he would be eligible to apply for a riding license, but under the rules of the Jockey Club no jockey can own race horses. There is no doubt that if Sande complied with this rule of the Jockey Club he would have his license tomorrow. In Maryland Sande is eligible to ride. But he still has one horse at least which he intends to keep.

That one is Nassak, for which Sande paid $35,000 last year when Nassak was one of the top-flight three-year-olds of the year and one of the most highly esteemed in the Rancocas Stable. When Sande quit riding and turned to training and racing his own horses he bought Nassak and several others and started on his big venture.

Unfortunately, Nassak broke down last Fall, and this left Sande with only an undeveloped stock. Though he has had some success, the loss of Nassak was keenly felt. Turned out on a farm in Georgia all Winter, Nassak now is sound again, Sande said today, and Earl intends to bring the colt back to the races at Bowie this Autumn.

When the meeting here ends Sande is going South to begin training Nassak. He says he will have the colt in shape for the meeting at Bowie and will campaign him there. Nassak in sound condition would be a top-notch handicap horse.

FORT BENNING FOUR WINS IN TOURNEY

Downs Oak Brook Team, 11-9, as 12-Goal Polo Opens—Detroit Beaten, 9-6.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Two army teams scored impressive victories today in the opening play of the United States Polo Association twelve-goal tournament, Fort Benning, Ga., defeating the Oak Brook Four Horsemen, 11 to 9, at Oak Brook; and Fort Leavenworth, Kan., eliminating Detroit, 9 to 6, at Onwentsia.

Incidentally, two Majors provided the scoring pyrotechnics in each instance, for it was Major C. B. Lyman's stellar play that brought the Georgians through, he tallying eight times. For the Kansas team, Major C. C. Smith was successful in seven attempts to score.

At Oak Brook, Major Lyman was aided and abetted considerably by First Lieutenant Ben Jacobs, whose riding and nursing of the ball into scoring position was one of the features.

Oak Brook, four goals stronger on a team handicap rating, managed to keep in the running until the fourth period, but absence of team-work began to tell and three periods later Oak Brook trailed by three goals.

Only a spectacular save under the goal posts by Major Lyman and a miss of an apparently easy goal saved the Georgians in the final period. Harold Strotz and Paul Butler figured in most of the Oak Brook scoring, aggregating eight goals between them.

Tomorrow the Oak Brook-DuPage four tackles Fort Hoyle, Md., in the second of the elimination games at Oak Brook, while at Onwentsia the Midwicks, intercircuit champions, take on Onwentsia. Play, as usual, will be from scratch.

The line-ups:

Fort Benning (11).	Oak Brook F. H. (9).
1—Major C. B. Lyman	1—Harold Strotz
2—Captain H. A. McGlure	2—Paul Butler

BACHANTE, SWEDEN, SAILS HOME FIRST

Lundberg's Yacht Takes Opening Race for Marblehead Cup and Corinthian Trophy.

U. S. ENTRY FINISHES NEXT

Tipler III Trails by 21 Minutes 40 Seconds in Event for 30-Square Meter Craft.

GERMAN KICKERLE IS LAST

Is 23 Minutes 34 Seconds Behind Victor in International Three-Yacht Brush at Marblehead.

Special to The New York Times.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 19.—The Swedish 30-square-meter yacht Bachante gave the American Tipler III and the German Kickerle a decisive beating in the first race today for the Marblehead and Corinthian Yacht Club Cups in the International race in Massachusetts Bay. Her margin at the finish over the Tipler was 21 minutes and 40 seconds and over the Kickerle 23 minutes and 34 seconds.

The greater part of the long lead was secured in a five-mile beat to windward in the second leg of a twelve-mile triangle in which the Bachante, with E. Lundberg as skipper, crept along the edge of a breeze with her big genoa jib drawing beautifully, while the Tipler and the Kickerle were nursing stray zephyrs in shore.

Half an hour before the start a fine ten-knot breeze was kicking up quite a bit in Massachusetts Bay, on the wings of which breeze the three yachts were sent away, with the Bachante getting the line five seconds after the gun, the Tipler III following fast, but the Kickerle loafing across rather sluggishly.

Spinnaker Is Astonishing.

In the three-mile run to the first mark the Bachante broke out one of the most astonishing spinnakers ever set in American waters. The sail completely enveloped the fore triangle, being led round the forestay and sheeted on the leeward side aft of the mast. It acted as a spinnaker and balloon jib combined. With its aid the Bachante drew away to a lead of more than half a minute at the turn over the Tipler and 1 minute and 16 seconds over the Kickerle.

On the wind the efficacy of the Bachante's high-cut mainsail, with the boom more than five feet above the draw, seemed to enable her to point higher and foot faster. In addition to keeping out in the bay while her rivals went in shore she kept the breeze which they almost lost. At one time the Tipler III appeared threatening, but not for long, and gradually the Bachante worked further and further out ahead until at the second mark her lead had been drawn out to nearly twenty minutes over the American and more than twenty-five over the German.

Half way to the finish the wind began to fade, and the last mile was a race against time, to the limit of four hours, was approaching. The Bachante drifted across with half an hour to spare, more than a mile ahead of the Tipler III and a mile and a quarter in front of the Kickerle. The last two picked up a few minutes toward the finish with the aid of a new breeze.

Race Again Today.

The yachts will race again tomorrow for the Marblehead Cup, which goes to one of the two foreign boats, while all three will struggle for the Corinthian Yacht Club Cup.

In a supplementary race for other thirty-square-meter boats in the harbor the Clickaut II won by a good margin over the Hathi.

Cavalry to Patrol Golf Links During Western Open Tourney

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 19 (AP).—Many leading American golfers are entered in the Western open tournament to be played at the Ozaukee Country Club, Aug. 21-24. Tournament officials announced today that 320 entries had been received. A feature never tried before, so far as the committee knows, will be the patrolling of the course by mounted members of National Guard cavalry troops. The committee believes this will be an effective method of handling the large galleries that are expected to follow Hagen and Horton Smith and other outstanding players in their efforts to wrest the Western crown from Abe Espinosa.

Is More Than Minute Behind Victor —Istalena Third—Avatar Loses Sail and Finishes Last.

By SHANNON CORMACK.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—Rear Commodore Junius S. Morgan Jr.'s gray sloop Windward was the winner of the first of the races that will decide the ownership of the New York Yacht Club's Cup for Class M sloops, sailed today in a fresh northeasterly breeze over a leeward course of fifteen miles.

Windward was a little over a minute ahead of Harold S. Vanderbilt's Prestige at the finish, with George M. Pynchon's Istalena, winner of the majority of her class races last week, a minute and a half astern of Prestige.

Nine sloops started, all finishing the course, and as the series will be decided on a point basis Morgan's sloop has 9 points to her credit.

With a one-gun start, which undoubtedly gives every one an equal opportunity to get over the line in an advantageous position, Istalena and Commodore Floyd L. Carlisle's Avatar were over the line first, with the balance of the fleet well bunched, so that from the committee boat there did not appear to be more than a second or two difference.

Run to First Turn Is Close.

All set spinnakers for the run to the turning mark, situated a little southeast of the Point Judith whistling buoy. The run down was very close and the fleet was just as huddled at the buoy, with the exception of Onawa, as it was at the start.

Pynchon's double-ended sloop had retained the slight advantage obtained at the start and led the others to the buoy, but as they rounded, Andiamo, W. J. Shaw's Marblehead fifty-footer, made an overlap. Istalena had to bear off and Andiamo shot round on the inside.

Windward also managed to cut in on the Pynchon sloop, and as the yachts rounded the order of the first three was Andiamo, Windward and Istalena. The difference in time, however, was fragmentary and in a second or two Istalena picked up the lost distance, came over on the lee of Andiamo and got out on the windward side so that the Marblehead boat had to come under her stern within less than a quarter of a mile of making the turn.

After the three leaders came Prestige, Avatar, Barbara and Simba in that order with Valiant and Onawa a couple of minutes behind.

Prestige Makes Short Hitch.

The fleet headed off on the starboard tack bearing in to Point Judith for a short time with Prestige making a short hitch, just enough to allow Vanderbilt to get the wind. He then sent Prestige in shore again.

Innis O'Rourke, at the wheel of Avatar, commenced to follow Vanderbilt's example when the luck of Avatar's jib carried away and the sail blew out to leeward. Valuable time was lost in getting the canvas on deck and having it re-rigged, with the result that at this point the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club's representative was virtually out of the race. Avatar thereupon finished the course under a mainsail and jumbo.

The accident was a streak of extremely hard luck for Commodore Carlisle, for his sloop has shown itself to be a fast traveler in the kind of breeze that was blowing.

Andiamo had virtually no chance against the Sound sloops in the beat back to the lightship, and from first place at the turning mark she dropped back to sixth at the finish line. This was to be expected, perhaps, as the Marblehead boat is not in the same class with this year's sloops in windward work.

Istalena and Windward meanwhile were fighting a private battle of their own with Prestige well off to windward and pointing nicely up to the mark.

Windward crept up on Istalena, passed her and came across the Pynchon craft's bow on the starboard tack. Istalena still keeping on her tack.

The fleet, with the exception of Barbara and Avatar, kept on inshore from Point Judith to a point off Narragansett Pier, from whence they could lay direct to the finish line. Windward was steadily gaining and finally worked to windward of Prestige and about two-thirds of the way home virtually established her position as winner.

SLAVIN'S 153 WINS CADDIE GOLF TITLE

GENOVA IN SECOND PLACE

Herman Rama of Fresh Meadow Wins Caddie Masters' Crown With a 72, Equaling Par.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITESTONE, L. I., Aug. 19.—By virtue of a 74 in the second eighteen-hole round a 16-year-old, red-haired youngster, Edward Slavin, who is a caddie at the Old Country Club, won the Long Island caddie championship here today at the Clearview Golf Club. Slavin's two-round total was 153, one stroke ahead of Dominick Genova of Brookville and M. Barron of Hempstead.

Ninety-six players competed, representing various Long Island clubs, and two 13-year-old boys, Joseph Buno of the Women's National and William Dimeo of North Hempstead, were among them. Neither, however placed in the first thirty-two to qualify for the final eighteen holes played this afternoon, Dimeo having 94 and Buno 97.

Besides the first three players, the others who will represent Long Island in the metropolitan caddy championship next week are William Dewie, Rockaway Hunt, who scored 155; L. Elliott, Queensboro, 155; A. Gaudio, Old Country, 156; F. Stuhler, Hillcrest, 157; R. Graywacs, Coldstream, 157; J. Martone, Brookville, 157; A. Bordinka, Lakeville, 157; L. Delavakis, North Hempstead, 157, and Joe Smith, Queensboro, 157. The team honors went to Queensboro with 325, Old Country having 330, Clearview 346 and Hempstead 348.

The Caddy Masters' championship was also held over the same course today, Herman Rama of Fresh Meadow carrying off individual honors with a 38—34—72, which equaled par. Anthony Indenso of North Hempstead, with a 73, and Fred Dugan of Deepdale followed with a 75.

Matt Mardousa of St. Albans, in a play-off with J. O'Brien of Queensboro and R. Brennan of Hempstead, gained the fourth place in the group that will represent the caddie masters in the metropolitan tourney.

JERSEY CADDIE GOLF WON BY SICILIANO

MASTERS' TITLE TO REINER

Victor Triumphs in Play-Off of One Hole After Triple Tie in Tournament.

Special to The New York Times.

RAHWAY, N. J., Aug. 19.—Mike Siciliano, 16-year-old Asbury Park High School graduate, and entered from the Deal Golf Club, won the New Jersey State Golf Association's tenth annual caddie championship at the Locust Grove Golf Club here today with a thirty-six-hole score of 151. Frank Siciliano of Asbury Park, a cousin of the winner and the same age, was runner-up. His score was 76, 75—153. Mike Siciliano got off to a bad start, putting his first two drives out of bounds on the No. 1 hole of the first round. He never was worse than a stroke over par thereafter, his cards being, 41, 36—77 and 33, 36—74.

John Reiner of the Mountain Ridge Club won the caddie masters' championship on a play-off of a triple tie. He tied at 147 with Mike Serino of Ferncliffe and Nick Florio of Somerset Hills, Florio having the lowest card of the day, 69, on his afternoon round. On the one-hole play-off of the 400-yard first hole, Serino and Florio both missed second shots. Reiner was over the green, but he chipped back and got a 4, against a 5 for Serino and a 6 for Florio.

The caddie team championship went to the Essex County Country Club team with a total of 641. The scores were: Robert Farrell, 5 and 77; Edmund Peacock, 78 and 79; Robert Fahey, 80 and 80; Joe Torlucci, 80 and 79. Farrell is a brother of Jack Farrell, the North Shore Club profesional. Torlucci's brother Charles won the State caddie title in 1927 and 1928, but he was over age this year.

The ten leaders in the caddie championship and the four leading caddie masters will represent New Jersey at the Hempstead Country Club next week in the metropolitan championships.

RANGELEY, Md., Aug. 19.—In an eighteen-hole exhibition match played at the Mingo Springs Golf Club today, Joe Turnesa and George Manship finished all-square with Bill Ryan and Garred Hobart. The medal scores were: Turnesa 71, Manship 76, Ryan 73 and Hobart 76.

VASSOLA WINS TITLE IN CADDIE TOURNEY

Strokes 36 Holes in 163 to Gain Crown in Westchester Play.

John Vassola, a caddie at the Green Meadow Club, won the Westchester caddie championship yesterday from a field of 100 that competed over the Grassy Sprain Golf Club links, Yonkers, N. Y. Vassola turned in an 81 in his first round and an 82 in the afternoon for a thirty-six-hole aggregate of 163. Although George Dooley of Wee Burn scored 83, 77—160, he was not considered eligible for the title, since he represented a club in Connecticut, and neither was Anthony Castaldo of Mount Kisco, who tallied a 161, as he took part in the junior division for those 14 years of age and under.

Among others who will be eligible to play in the metropolitan district championship next week and represent Westchester are T. Sarachino, Apawamis, whose total yesterday was 164; J. Koval, Sleepy Hollow, 164.

Do you blame the dog for laughing?

"A one-piece garment consisting of drawers and outer shirt, the material to be of broadcloth or something similar. The shirt should have a sailor or sport collar open at the throat and chest, with half-length sleeves. It may be worn with or without a cravat and may have one or two breast pockets or no pockets at all. The trousers should be of linen, equipped with a wide, adjustable elastic belt. Canvas shoes with a light weight sole and rolled half-socks complete the outfit.

"I am positive that every man who once wears such an ensemble will never be coerced back into wearing the stuffy clothes we now wear."

Fortunately for senses of humor, men needn't wear "stuffy clothes" even now.

They may be comfortable without embarrassment, at a very small cost, thanks to our Men's Suit Sale.

RUTH SENDS IN RUN TO BEAT WHITE SOX

SHERID GETS 1ST VICTORY

Yields Only 8 Hits, One Earned Tally and Gains Initial Major League Triumph.

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The Yankees furnished Roy Sherid just enough runs today to end his quest for his first major league victory. He allowed the White Sox eight hits and the 3-to-2 decision in his favor represented defensive prowess rather than any overpowering attack by his mates.

To the joy of 5,000 eye-witnesses, Babe Ruth was back in the game with not even a limp or a stagger to show for yesterday's injury. He slapped two singles in four times up, the first of which forwarded the second Yankee run from first to third. In the sixth he grounded out, but his grounder drove home the winning run.

In earned runs the Yanks gave Sherid only as many as the Sox made. The deciding tally of the Sherid-McKain twirling tussle, a battle of juveniles, was scored without the aid of a hit. Combs, first up in the sixth, drove a long fly to centre. Watwood got under the ball after a long run, but spilled it.

Ruth Fools Sox Infield.

Combs, galloping from the moment he hit the ball, made third before the said ball returned to the infield. The Sox infield played deep for Ruth and when the Babe rolled the ball straight at Kerr there was no chance to head off Combs at home plate.

Sherid's success was largely due to his mastery of Reynolds and the Great Shires, who had chances to drive in runs their first two times up. The Sox had five of their hits in the first and third innings. After the third Sherid allowed only three scattered singles.

Metzler hit singles his first three times up. He scored in the first and in the third inning. His single followed singles by Berg and McKain and scored the catcher home.

Doubles by Dickey and Loenig in the third scored the first Yankee run. A safe bunt by Combs and singles by Ruth and Lazzeri tied the score, 2 to 2, in the fourth. Sherid was bothered only once after the third inning. Pinch-hitter Clancy opened the ninth with a single, but Gehrig's fast play on Kerr's bunt nailed Clancy at second. Kerr was out stealing and Sherid fanned Hoffman for the final out.

Gehrig Stars in Field.

Gehrig added nothing to the hit column, but his plain and fancy fielding helped Sherid vastly in three important places.

Byrd's habit of opening games with doubles was broken today by Watwood's fast fielding. Saturday and Sunday the Yank attack began with a first-inning two-bagger by Byrd. Today Watwood swept up the youngster's safe slap to left centre and nailed him at second base.

Players of the Game

Babe Herman—The Enigma of Baseball

By JOHN DREBINGER.

All Rights Reserved.

BABE HERMAN, lanky outfielder of the Robins, is leading the National League batters. He is clouting over .400 and is a favorite to win the 1929 batting championship.

But if any one is prone to regard this as merely another incident in the passing show, he knows nothing of the tempest this singular fellow has precipitated behind the scenes, of the endless arguments he unwittingly has inspired among critics, writers and even the players.

"I told you so," says Expert A. "I told you fellows three years ago Herman would become the greatest hitter of his time."

"And I'll tell you," replies Expert B, "that even if he hit .600, he couldn't play on my team. He loses more games with his head than he ever could win with his bat."

A Colorful Career.

Surely, then, a fellow who can attract to himself such divergence of opinion must have something. And Herman has it in amazing quantity.

Herman's entire career as a professional ball player, dating back eight years, has been a series of paradoxes, of events colorful and amusing.

He will miss a certain pitch by two feet and look ridiculous. Later he will swing at the same sort of pitch and rattle a few boards loose in the outfield.

He measures 6 feet 4 and weighs 190, but has a tendency to slouch which gives him the appearance of being almost frail. Two players, once thinking him a mark, spoke out of turn. He flogged both with a punch. That gave him a batting average of 1.000.

Played in Nine Leagues.

He has been with a dozen clubs in nine different leagues and was released by most of them despite the fact that he has now risen to a position of considerable eminence. The fellow always seems to have fallen upstairs.

Afield he has made some astounding plays, some even brilliant. He has also made many bad ones.

At times he appears boastful, but one never knows whether inwardly he isn't enjoying the best laugh on his hearers.

"You know, I used to be a sporting writer," Herman once said to a group of baseball scribes. "Yep, used to write for a paper while I was at high school in Glendale, Cal.

BABE HERMAN.

But I had to give it up. You see, I was the big shot, the all-around star, and I simply couldn't be writing about myself all the time. You know, a good expert or writer is only a guy who can't do anything else."

And he turned away to let the writers reflect upon this one.

Started Moving Early.

Biographical sketches usually make dry reading but not in Herman's case.

Born Floyd Caves Herman, June 26, 1903, in Buffalo, he migrated early in life to California and made his debut as a professional player in 1921 with Edmonton in the Western Canada League. Heinie Manush broke in at the same time and in the same league. Both were picked up by Detroit the following year, but Herman was cast adrift at once.

"Doubtless, the Tigers have made many mistakes," was the Babe's comment, "but this easily was the worst they ever made."

Herman's footsteps in 1922 took him to Reading, then to Omaha, where he hit .416 in ninety-two games, but he was released for getting hit on the head by a pop fly, though not until the manager and the president of the club had engaged in a spirited debate.

"How can I release a man who is hitting four hundred?" wailed the manager.

"I don't care if he is hitting four thousand, he goes," said the president.

The Babe's own version is slightly different. He says he chased that fly ball to the stands and, then seeing it was going to fall into the seats, turned away. But the wind carried it back, and the ball just missed him. He was always lucky that way.

At all events, he went, and in 1923 was signed by the Red Sox under Lee Fohl. But he didn't like Boston, and he didn't like the Red Sox, so he demanded his release and got it.

He Refused to Quit.

Atlanta, then managed by Otto Miller, took him, and Otto still laughs when he tells how he tried to fire the Babe five days in a row only to have him break up the game each day with his bat. The fifth day the Babe hit four for four, Cuyler, then playing with Nashville, spoiling the fifth hit with an amazing catch.

"Gosh," muttered Otto, "if Cuyler hadn't caught that wallop, we would have won the game."

But Herman took the remark as a reflection upon his ability as a hitter. One word led to another, and Herman wound up in Memphis.

By devious routes he finally landed in Seattle, where Spencer Abbott scouted him for Uncle Robbie in 1925, but Robbie at once traded Herman with six others to Minneapolis for Johnny Butler. This gave Herman a tremendous laugh.

In 1926, he was back with the Robins and has been with them since, though not without giving Uncle Robbie many a near stroke of apoplexy. Until last year he was a first baseman.

Saved by McGraw.

In his first year with the Robins he supplanted the veteran Fournier and performed wonders. In 1927 came nothing but blunders and a batting mark of .272. Robbie asked for waivers, but when McGraw put in a claim, Robbie withdrew the request.

"If McGraw thinks well enough of him to claim him," said Robbie, "I guess I can use him, too."

As an outfielder last year he hit .340, and now he is sailing higher than ever and fielding surprisingly well.

Rogers Hornsby regards Herman as the perfect free swinger.

Ty Cobb spent a lifetime studying batting, Herman never studied the matter five minutes, but his swing is the poetry of motion. He hits to all fields. Some say he clouts a ball harder than Ruth.

INDIANS TOPPLED BY SENATORS, 5-3

Misplays Costly to Cleveland, Only One of Washington Runs Being Earned.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19 (AP).—Errors gave the Senators a 5-to-3 victory over the Indians today, only one of the visitors' runs being earned.

Sam Jones pitched steady ball for Washington, holding the Tribe to six hits in seven and two-thirds innings. He tired in the eighth and Marberry came forward to stop a Cleveland threat.

ALEXANDER SENT HOME, WILL BE SUSPENDED

President Breadon of Cards Announces Action Against Veteran for Breaking Training.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19 (AP).—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran St. Louis Cardinals pitcher, has been sent home from New York for breaking training and will be suspended upon arrival here, President Sam Breadon announced today.

"I feel very badly about the matter," Breadon said, "but disciplinary methods are entirely up to the manager of the team."

Alexander was a strong factor in winning the pennant for the Cardinals in 1926 and 1928, and his failure to hold his own this year was one of the reasons for the downfall of the club.

TIGERS AND RED SOX DIVIDE DOUBLE BILL

Sorrell Stops Boston, 6 to 2, After Mates Lose Opener to Gaston, 3 to 2.

DETROIT, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Tigers divided a double-header with the Red Sox today, capturing the second game, 6 to 2, after dropping the opening combat by 6 to 2. Vic Sorrell pitched the Detroit triumph, while Milton Gaston stopped the Tigers with seven hits to win the opener.

Earl Whitehill, who went the route for Detroit in the first game, struck out eight Bostonians and pitched excellent ball except in the fifth inning when he allowed four hits and a sacrifice on which the Sox scored all their runs.

Dale Alexander got his twentieth home run of the season in the night cap with Fothergill on base.

Lomski Loses to Walker on Points in 10 Rounds Before 25,000 in Philadelphia

WALKER IS VICTOR OVER LEO LOMSKI

25,000 WITNESS STRUGGLE

Middleweight Champion, Seeking Loughran's Crown, Takes Six of the Rounds.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, advanced in his quest for another boxing crown tonight by defeating Leo Lomski of Aberdeen, Wash., on points in the main ten-round bout at the Municipal Stadium. More than 25,000 fans saw the battle, which probably will have a bearing on the light heavyweight championship, which Tommy Loughran proposes to abdicate. Walker won six of the ten rounds, Lomski three and one was even. Lomski weighed 172¾ and Walker 166.

Before the main bout started Maxie Rosenbloom and K. O. (Phil) Kaplan, New York, and George Courtney, Oklahoma, challenged the winner. Loughran also climbed into the ring and announced he was ready to meet any man in the world.

The bout opened with Lomski landing a short left to the head. They sparred in the centre of the ring, with Lomski landing lefts and rights to head. Walker brought a cheer from the crowd when he landed a hard right to Lomski's jaw. They slugged in the middle of the ring and Lomski drove him back to the ropes again. Both were swinging wildly as the bell sounded.

Early in the second round they went into a clinch. Walker missed a left to the head but followed with a left to the stomach. Mickey suffered a split lip from a hard left. Walker landed a left to the head but got two short pokes to the head. They sparred around the ring with Walker missing a left to the head. Lomski came in fast with left hooks, but Mickey put his left to Lomski's face. Lomski smothered Walker with lefts and rights and landed a hard left to the face as the bell sounded.

In the fourth round Walker missed a left hook as they fell into a clinch at the start. Walker's left reached Lomski's head. Mickey followed with a left to the body. Lomski put over a short right and Mickey's right ear began to bleed. Walker staggered Lomski with a hard left to the jaw that sent Leo back against the ropes. Lomski quickly recovered. Mickey landed a hard right to the head just before the bell.

Lomski was over Walker forcing him into a neutral corner in the next session. Lomski bored in with lefts and rights. Lomski pushed Mickey around the ring. Lomski sent a right to the jaw and Walker appeared very tired as he walked back to his corner at the end of the round.

Walker missed a left to the body as Lomski forced him back and landed a short right to the head which sent him to the ropes as the sixth round opened. They clinched. Lomski's left was partly blocked by Mickey, but Leo put over a hard right to the head. At close range, Walker tried to hold Lomski. Mickey forced Lomski across the ring, landing a right to head, but Lomski came back and landed two solid lefts and a hard right to the body as the bell clanged.

Walker Forced to Ropes.

The seventh stanza got under way with Walker shooting a short left to the body and a left to chin. Mickey landed two more lefts, but Lomski, using his left, forced him back to the ropes. They sparred around the centre of the ring with neither doing any damage. Walker landed a short right to the head as they fell into a clinch. Lomski drove him back to the ropes. Mickey began to mix things and landed a left and a right to the body. Lomski took the offensive again and they were slugging away as the bell rang.

Mickey came out fast in the eighth round to land a left and a right to the head and staggered Lomski with a hard right to face. Lomski missed a right as they danced in the middle of the ring. Walker's left caught Lomski in the stomach and they fell into another clinch. Lomski drove Walker to the ropes but swung wildly when he apparently had good openings. The bell sounded without any further damage.

As the tenth round started Lomski landed a left and right to the head, but Mickey came back with a left. They slugged away in the centre of the ring, with Lomski looking somewhat tired. Mickey sent a left to the head and was swinging wildly as Lomski slipped. Lomski landed two hard lefts to the head and drove Walker across the ring just before the bout ended.

Johnny Farr of Cleveland outpointed Henry De Wancker of France in a ten-round bout. Farr, weighing 131½ pounds to the Frenchman's 131, conceded five inches in height, but battered the latter around until De Wancker's nose was badly cut and his right eye closed.

Graham Outpoints O'Dowd.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 19 (AP).—Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., bantamweight champion, won an easy ten-round decision over Eddie O'Dowd of Columbus in the main bout on a boxing card tonight. They fought at 123½ pounds, Graham's title not being at stake.

Sports of the Times

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By JOHN KIERAN.

BILL TERRY having explained how easy it is to play first base, Frank Frisch was caught in a corner and interrogated on the art or science of playing second base.

What's the first rule of the game out there?

"Know your hitters and keep your eye on the signs."

What hitters and what signs?

"Every hitter in the league and the signs the catchers give for the next pitch."

Is that more important than natural fielding skill?

"You can't field a grounder if you don't get up to it, and there are lots you'll never get near if you don't have a pretty good idea where they're coming. Listen, for the first couple of years I was in the league I kept a little book—I've got it home yet—and in that book I wrote down what every player hit and where he hit it, see? Low-ball hitter, high-ball hitter, right-field hitter, pull hitter, straightaway hitter and so on. Then when a fellow's at bat, you have a fair idea where he'll hit when the pitcher throws one to him."

Preparedness.

Does he shift his position with the sign from the catcher for a curve or a fast one, as the case might be?

"No, I don't actually shift. It's more like getting ready to start in the right direction, and the chances are that it will be one way on a fast ball and another way on a curve or a change of pace. Now, you take a batter who's looking for a fast one, and you know from the sign that the pitcher is going to throw him a lot of lemon soda, bean soup and clam chowder—soft stuff, see? Well, he'll swing early and pull that as a rule—left-hander to right field and right-hander to left field. Then there are times when you know the batter is trying to hit in your direction."

As for instance?

"With a man on first all the percentage is in hitting toward right field. It's behind the runner, and it makes a harder double-play ball if it's hit on the ground. If it's a base hit, the man on first is practically sure of getting to third, whereas if it's a single to left, he'll stop at second base. But some batters hit to left with men on first—intentionally, I mean."

Naming Names.

Who?

"Why, Eddie Roush for one. You see, he's a left-hand hitter, and he can pull or drag 'em toward right field easily enough. Ordinarily, that's what you'd expect of him, and I guess that's why he doesn't do it. So we play him to hit the other way. Maybe when he hears of it, he'll switch back. Then we'll switch, too. Now, Lindstrom hits to right with a man on first. You can count on that. In fact, most of the Giants do—more on that club than any other, I should say."

How about playing deep or shallow for different hitters?

"Sure. Play back for slow runners and in some cases for harder hitters. Terry is a fast man, but you have to play deep for him because he's a hard hitter. Lloyd Waner you have to play closer. If you don't, he'll beat out a lot of slow rollers. He drags a lot of 'em down there. Babe Herman you can play back. He hits 'em hard, and he's fast, too, like Terry, but he doesn't drag 'em very often."

Defensive Tactics.

How about covering on a steal?

"You make your decision on your hitter and the sign from the catcher. If you're looking for the batter to hit your way, the shortstop covers. If you expect him to hit the other way, you cover. That part's simple. Nothing to it."

Well, what is the hardest play a second baseman has to make?

"Coming in on a slow roller and getting his man at first. And I suppose it looks easy enough to people in the grand stand."

How about covering first base?

"You do that when a first baseman goes in for a bunt, of course, but bunting has gone out of fashion. All the boys are swinging from their heels now."

How about handling the double steal?

"The second baseman is usually the cut-off man because he's in a better position to make the return throw to the plate if it's needed. But you have to vary that if your second baseman has a weak arm and your shortstop a good arm."

Double-Play Technique.

What about making double plays on ground balls?

"They talk about the man in the middle being the main works—it's the fellow who starts it who can gum it up. First he's got to get the ball and then he's got to ferry it to his partner fast and right where it belongs. Now, I'm a second baseman. If the grounder is close to the bag—on my right, I throw it underhand to the shortstop as he comes toward the bag, and I try to get it about as high as his chin, say. That's so's he can catch it and pull back for his throw with one motion. If you chuck it at his knees or over his head, he has to catch it and then another motion for his throw."

Who decides the ownership of pop flies?

"There oughtn't to be any trouble on that. After fellows have played together, they should know as soon as a ball is hit who can get it and who can't. A man never should yell he'll take it unless he's absolutely sure he can get up to it. I used to yell for every pop fly hit inside the park. I know better now. But when you're running back and an outfielder is running in for the same ball, he should call the play because it's in front of him."

Shortstops and One Thing or Another.

Can't a good shortstop help a second baseman?

"You said it, he can. Boy, it certainly helps to have a guy on the other side of that bag who knows how to peel little potatoes."

What about the shortstops he had played opposite?

To which one would he hand the palm?

"Well, that's hard to say. But, listen, this young Gelbert—I swear he'll be as good as the best of them next year. Mark my words. How can he miss? He has everything—speed, good hands, a fine arm, size and everything else."

Maybe so, but was there anything more about playing second base?

"Ask me after the game. You usually learn a little more every day."

WALLACE STOPPED BY BERG IN NINTH

Is Badly Beaten and Floored Twice in Final Round Before 8,500 at Dexter Park.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

The English lad scored his victory simply by overwhelming Wallace at every stage of the bout from its beginning. Punching tirelessly and pitilessly with both hands and from all angles Berg weakened his rival to such an extent that Referee Andy Griffin stopped the bout after two minutes forty seconds of the ninth round. At the time the referee halted proceedings Wallace had been pounded to such an extent that he was helpless to protect himself and was weary in mind and body and could not undertake a counter fire in his own behalf.

A crowd of 8,500 witnessed the fight.

Berg Chases Wallace.

Berg started chasing Wallace when the starting bell released the boys from their corners, and never once did the English boy cease his pursuit. Wallace retreated steadily in the first round as Berg rushed after him, punching him tirelessly with both hands to the head, face and body. Occasionally Wallace would jab a left or try a right for the body. The Philadelphian was wild, however, and was warned for fouling in the first round.

It was the same through the second and third rounds, with Berg holding the upper hand all the way. With the fourth round Wallace went into a terrified retreat and forgot all about counter-fighting, for the simple reason that it was impossible. Wallace just ran away until Berg pinned him on the ropes and then the Philadelphian sought relief by holding. Repeatedly Berg almost forced his rival through the ropes, hammering with both hands to the body and head.

Wallace Is Floored.

Wallace was tired and weary and his face was bruised and bloody in the seventh round and the crowd entreated the referee to stop the battle. In the eighth Berg's hammering caused Wallace to collapse and the Philadelphian remained down for a count of nine.

Wallace started the ninth with a rally and reached Berg's body and jaw with several lefts and rights. But Berg kept hammering away and backing Wallace to the ropes floored the Philadelphian with a rapid fire succession of lefts and rights to the jaw. Wallace arose at the count of nine but went down again shortly after as Berg pounded home rights and lefts tirelessly. Referee Griffin then stopped the bout. Berg weighed 126½ pounds and Wallace 130 pounds.

Jerry Pelton, discoverer of Andy DiVodi, stepped to view another promising youngster in Tommy McGough, Minnesota, who easily won the decision over Al Peters, east side lad, in their six-round bout. The Minnesota bantamweight proved fast, aggressive and a hard hitter, flooring Peters in the fourth round and staggering the east sider in the fifth and sixth rounds. McGough weighed 118½ pounds and Peters 117 pounds.

Dominick Stangelo, Newark lightweight, who also fights under the name of Mickey Jones, fought a six-round draw with Bobby Heller. Stangelo weighed 137½ pounds and Heller weighed 139 pounds.

Georgie Tasker, Maine featherweight, and Stanley Knapeck of the east side fought a draw in another six-round bout. In the opening bout of four rounds Sammy Binder of the east side won the decision over Georgie Bell, Harlem junior lightweight.

Joey Leone, west side Italian, won the decision over Jimmy Kelly, Long Island City lightweight, in the six-round semi-final which followed the main bout in the ring. Leone weighed 130 pounds and Kelly 123½ pounds.

Lieshman to Sign With Yanks; Coast Star Agrees to Terms

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 19 (AP).—William Essick, scout for the New York Yankees, today came to an agreement with Ed Lieshman whereby the 21-year-old star shortstop of the San Jose Bees will sign with the Yankees on Sept. 1. He is to report next season. Lieshman, just out of high school, has played such good baseball with the California State League team this season that representatives of the Philadelphia Athletics, Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Browns were after his services.

VINCE DUNDEE FIGHTS TO A DRAW WITH BAIN

Baltimore Boxer Floored, but Rallies Before 15,000 at Newark Velodrome.

Vince Dundee of Baltimore and Able Bain of New York fought ten fast rounds to a draw at the Newark Velodrome last night. A crowd of about 15,000 fans packed the arena.

Bain floored Dundee in the first round with a glancing right hook to the cheek. Vince's knees wabbled and he went down for the rest. He arose at the count of nine. Dundee rallied in the second, and made his best showing in the fifth when he staggered Bain several times with snort rights.

Bain weighed 158½; Dundee, 153.

Willie Brown, 139, of Newark, outpointed Noel Jackson, 129, of Atlantic City, in six rounds. Freddie Fiducia, 123, Newark, knocked out Jimmie Howe, 121, Newark, in the second round of a six-rounder. In the opener, Harry Baron, 132, Newark, knocked out Babe Palmer, 130, Newark, in the first.

Nat Arno, 135¾, tost to Buster Brown, 133¾, of Baltimore, in eight rounds.

Brown Again Defeats Fifield.

TORONTO, Aug. 19 (Canadian Press).—Joe Brown, Montreal welterweight, scored his second successive victory over George Fifield, Toronto, when he took an eight-round decision at the Arena Gardens tonight.

Stribling Defeats Sekyra.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 19 (AP).—W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon (Ga.) heavyweight, won a decision over Joe Sekyra of Dayton, Ohio, in a 10-round bout tonight. Stribling weighed 180 and Sekyra 176.

HOPPE IS DOUBLE VICTOR.

Defeats Green and Jackman in Three-Cushion Exhibitions.

Willie Hoppe scored victories in two exhibition matches at three-cushion billiards played at the Strand Billiard Academy yesterday. In a match in the afternoon Hoppe vanquished Jerry Green, 50 to 26, in 52 innings. The victor turned in a high run of four while the loser had a cluster of five.

At night Hoppe defeated George Jackman, 50 to 28. Hoppe had a high run of seven while his opponent's best run was five. The match went 47 innings.

SOUTH AFRICA LEADS IN CRICKET MATCH

SUTCLIFFE HAS 104 RUNS

Bats for 3¼ Hours in Best English Innings of Test Play This Season.

LONDON, Aug. 19 (Canadian Press).—It was South Africa's day at the Kennington Oval in the fifth cricket test match with England today. Before lunch the visitors, bowlers polished off six English wickets for only 92 runs in ninety-five minutes. Then, after losing three fine batsmen in ten minutes for only 20 runs, the Springboks, through their captain, H. G. Deane, and the veteran, H. W. Taylor, a batsman who has been playing in test matches since 1913, pulled the game round.

This pair raised the South African score to past the 200 mark and when stumps were drawn for the day the first innings totals were: England, 258; South Africa, 283 for five wickets. Barring sensational happenings, South Africa should get a draw out of the match, which concludes tomorrow.

Sutcliffe Star Player.

Herbert Sutcliffe alone of the English players made anything like a creditable showing. If his score of 104 is deducted from the English total it will be seen the balance of the team fared very poorly. Sutcliffe batted for three and a half hours, carrying on under the most difficult pitch conditions on Saturday and again today. His was the best test match innings an Englishman has played this season. He hit nine fours. Cameron, the South African wicketkeeper, gave a remarkable display behind the stumps. He did not pass a single bye.

Sutcliffe, 84, and Leyland, 9, resumed the English innings, left at 166 for three wickets on Saturday. Leyland was bowled when he attempted to pull a ball from Vincent. Carr was caught on a huge off-drive. Freeman was snapped up at the wicket, while Ames and Clark were easy victims. Geary might have made some runs if he could have found anybody to stay with him.

Catterall and Siedle opened the South African innings. Catterall mistimed a hook on the last ball of Clark's first over and was easily caught by Carr at shortleg. No runs had been scored. Mitchell and Siedle were both bowled by Geary. Taylor and Deane played most carefully till lunch time.

Taylor and Deane Dominate.

After lunch Taylor and Deane collared the English bowling as it has rarely been dominated. Taylor's 121 was one of the best efforts of a South African against an English side. Deane was unlucky to miss his century by seven runs. Cameron and Morkel were together when stumps were pulled.

The attendance reached 15,000.

Five New Events on Program Of Next National Horse Show

Prizes of greater value than ever in the history of the event are to be distributed at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden, Nov. 7 to 13, it was announced yesterday by Reginald W. Rives, Secretary of the National Horse Show Association, under whose auspices the twenty-fourth annual show will be held. Not only will all of the old events be programmed, but five new ones, carrying rich prizes, also will be contested.

STRELLE SCORES 107 IN CRICKET MATCH

S. S. Aquitania Star Gets Century, Not Out, as Team Draws With Crescent A. C.

ISRAEL, SHIPMATE, GETS 69

A century by J. Strelle of the steamship Aquitania, who scored 107 not out, livened up the play in the exhibition match between the cricketers of the Aquitania of the Cunard Line and an eleven of the Crescent Athletic Club on the grounds of the latter at Bay Ridge, yesterday.

Although the sailors had a considerable lead when stumps were drawn, the match resulted in a draw as the Crescents still had three wickets in hand when play stopped. The Aquitania score was 228 for the loss of six wickets, at which stage the innings was declared closed. The Crescents responded with 162 for seven wickets.

Other good scores for the Aquitania were made by Israel, 69, and Moffatt, 25. Boyes added 11. The best effort on the Crescent side was that of L. Hartley, who retired after putting on 50. A. H. Brebner, 37, D. Brayshaw, 28 not out, and L. S. Barnard, 24, also reached double figures.

The score:

HOFFMAN WILL MEET RUGGIRELLO TONIGHT.

Promising Heavyweights to Box in Main Ten-Rounder at Queensboro Stadium.

The rising generation of heavyweights has the fistic stage exclusively to itself this evening at the Queensboro Stadium, Long Island City. Matchmaker Al Weill has arranged a card consisting of a feature ten-round event and six five-round battles and among the fourteen principals is not one more than 22 years of age.

Georgie Hoffman, Yorkville's promising graduate of the amateur ring, is to meet Salvatore Ruggirello, Italian invader, in the ten-round feature. Hoffman's last engagement brought him a spectacular knockout victory over Angus Snyder and, coming in the wake of his knockout of Mike McTigue, advanced the Yorkville lad considerably. Ruggirello halted the winning streak of Mike Sankovitch and is confident he can perform a similar feat against Hoffman tonight.

In the six five-round bouts the principals will be Lou Barba vs. Joe Barlow, Buddy Howard vs. Julius Weiss, Mark Simon vs. Benny Edell, Jack Kelly vs. Amedio Grillo, Jackie Saunders vs. Jack Wisnick and Primo Ubaldo vs. Al Brennan.

George Sidders and K. O. Fitz-Jones, rival National Guard welterweights, are to furnish the action tonight in the principal bout of ten rounds at the Twenty-second Engineers Regiment Armory. In the ten-round semi-final Jimmy Abbott and Herbie Green are scheduled to meet in another welterweight struggle.

HOBBS LEADS BATSMEN.

Veteran Displaces Hammond in English Cricket Standing.

LONDON, Aug. 19 (Canadian Press).—Averages available today show that the veteran, Jack Hobbs, has climbed to the top of the table for batsmen in English first-class cricket, displacing Wally Hammond, Gloucestershire, while R. Tyldesley, Lancashire, heads the bowlers. Nottinghamshire leads the counties in the championship table.

The figures:

AN ANTI-VITAMINE TARIFF.

Many attacks have been made upon the tariff bill as it passed the House—the Senate committee changes in it being made public only today—but it remained for the Southern California Restaurant Association to lead the most damaging assault. It has pointed out that the Hawley bill, with its higher taxes on tomatoes, green peas, string beans and some other vegetables, is really doing what it can to promote what the doctors call "deficiency diseases" in this country and to encourage the spread of rickets, scurvy and beri-beri. Recent medical discoveries—especially those in the chemistry of medicine—have disclosed the immense importance of the vitamines, all the way from Vitamine A to Vitamine E. Without their presence in the diet of children there can be no normal growth or proper vitality.

The senior chemist of the United States Department of Agriculture recently issued a circular on the relation between public health and tomatoes, in the course of which he dwelt upon the importance of having the widest possible distribution of vitamines. Lack of them often results in various functional disorders and even death. He asserted that Vitamine B is "necessary for the "maintenance of life and health at "all ages." Yet the House bill would place a rate of three cents a pound on fresh tomatoes, which, as this authority in the Department of Agriculture declares, contain the necessary Vitamine A "in abundance." This surely is a direct challenge to the medical profession, to dietitians and to all organizations interested in public health.

Probably the members of the Ways and Means Committee of the House did not have these scientific and hygienic discoveries brought to their attention when they were framing the tariff bill. Their apparent motto was anything to please the farmer, and if he wanted higher and even prohibitive duties on imports of vegetables the thing to do was to let the poor fellow have them. It may be that neither he nor many Congressmen knew much concerning the latest advances in knowledge about the causes and cure of certain human maladies. But it is characteristic of tariff-makers never to be up-to-date. Most of their guns are pointed astern. Their schedules and rates of tax are apt to become obsolete shortly after they are enacted, by means of improved methods of manufacture or through the results of scientific research. In this particular case, the anti-vitamine tariff will be going directly contrary to the latest medical theories and medical practice. When physicians and mothers and trained nurses are told that the Congress of the United States is going dead against the largest and cheapest supply of vitamines for growing children and invalids, they will feel like rising up and making a mighty protest in the name of tomatoes and lettuce and string beans and carrots!

THIS IS SO SUDDEN.

Few things in politics are more amusing than the gravity of its augurs. Representative FORT of New Jersey, Secretary of the National Committee, passes the week-end at Mr. HOOVER'S retreat and dam-building school in the Blue Ridge Mountains. What is the portentous purpose of this visit? That the President and his guest may confer about the choice of a successor to Dr. WORK as Chairman of the Republican National Committee. The choice has been made by the only person entitled to make it. On Sept. 9 the committee will go through the form of taking the man Mr. HOOVER has selected. It is the President's business as leader of his party to pick out for Chairman the personage essential to him in that business.

The only thing the committeemen have to ask in regard to a candidate is Mr. Swiveller's: "Is the old min friendly?" A few other names were mentioned, to give an opportunity of "elimination," but that of Mr. CLAUDIUS HART HUSTON, Mr. HOOVER'S old associate in the Department of Commerce, led all the rest. A few days ago Senator MOSES, still remembering his sufferings from too much WORK, declared his own joy and that of the New England members in the Tennessee expert. The gratification of Mr. MOSES is not entirely altruistic. If "JIM" WATSON ever gets anything right, it was the next Chairman who secured for Mr. MOSES his more or less ornamental post as Chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

We needn't dwell on the importance of the National Chairman to a President, especially a President who wants to be renominated—if there is any other kind. Mr. HUSTON is an accomplished player of the game of politics. He had shown his quality in Tennessee before the Hooverian epoch. He may be said to come from everywhere—East, West and South. Whatever his part in the somewhat doubtful service of carrying those five Southern States in 1928, he may be trusted to have sufficient influence with Southern delegates in 1932. One indispensable and powerful art of the National Chairman, that of filling the campaign chest, he is known to possess. He has long been the political adviser of Mr. HOOVER. He is reported to be an easy man to get along with. He is an eminent man of business.

Finally, he has revived the forgotten art of silence. As the hart panteth after the water-brooks, so the country panteth after a National Chairman who can, will and does shut up and stay shut up. The temptations are great. Mr. HUSTON may yield and fall. Forbid it, Heaven! So, if prematurely, no less heartily, we greet him. But how surprised he will be when he finds he is to be National Chairman!

RED AND WHITE DANUBE.

To the outsider, particularly the American outsider, there is little to carry conviction in what is apparently the favorite open-air game in Austria. Clashes between the monarchist Heimwehr organization and the Socialist Defense Leagues have on the whole been marked by so much tumult and by so few casualties that even the spectre of civil war when it hovers over Austria seems to take on the traditionally gemüthlich character of the locality. The division of feeling is real enough. It goes back to the beginnings of the Austrian Republic. After the armistice relations between "Red" Vienna and the heavily Catholic country districts became acute, and civil war might have come to pass if the prostrate condition of the country had not made it so completely dependent on the bounty and good-will of the outside world. With the progressive lift in economic conditions since the war the earlier embitterment softened. The issue between Red town and Conservative province has been fought out in parliamentary politics and in popular street demonstrations. Since the situation at no time has got out of hand and, on the part of the Socialist organizations, the spirit of moderation has been so notable, the belief has been created that Austria's militant spirits will be content to go on indefinitely making faces at each other.

Observers on the spot take a more serious view. A monarchist Putsch in October is regarded as highly probable. Arms and ammunition have been drifting in from various sources for Heimwehr use. The Socialists have been laying in a few supplies of their own from sympathizers in Germany. It seems odd that a coup d'état whose essence would be a surprise should be advertised so far in advance. But according to well-informed sources it is not a case of a coup being put over by a small minority. Sympathetic with the Heimwehr are believed to be several members of the present Austrian Government, including the Minister of War and the Vienna Chief of Police.

Should a monarchist plot succeed or even manifest impressive strength it is certain that foreign intervention would come without loss of time. Austria by the treaty of St. Germain is pledged to abstain from any act which might "directly or indirectly" compromise her independence. Primarily aimed against union with Germany, this provision could without undue stretching be applied to any attempt to upset the present republican régime. If in the face of this the Heimwehr leaders persist, one explanation is found in reasons not political but industrial and social. The Heimwehr is said to be heavily financed by Austrian Big Business in close alliance with German interests, and the purpose is said to be, by overthrowing the present régime or by forcing foreign intervention, to put an end to Socialist and trade union domination in Vienna.

JUST BEFORE ELECTIONS.

No one realizes more thoroughly than a United States Senator that the memory of the voting public is short. Members of the House of Representatives, with terms of two years, and even Presidents, with terms of four, are not in so advantageous a position to test the axiom as Senators, whose terms run for six years. Yet their tactics invariably change in the twelvemonth before renominations fall due, and the most uncompromising of them begin to preach "sweet reasonableness."

Since this change of attitude has often been noted, why should J. THOMAS HEFLIN of Alabama be looked to for an exception? From 1927, when the shadow of the Smith nomination began to fall athwart the glass dome of the Senate chamber, to the end of 1928 Mr. HEFLIN grew more and more vehement in his denunciation of those who supported the aspirations of the Governor of New York. It was in this period that he spoke, at least once, of tar-and-feathers for a colleague who defended American Catholics from the Heflin outbursts. Often he said of the crisis which affrighted him that it was a time to try men's souls and that there should be no quarter asked or given. Due to his vehement arguments that the preservation of American institutions depended upon the defeat of Mr. SMITH, many Alabama Democrats voted for Mr. HOOVER, although it is now understood in the State that Senator HEFLIN refrained from voting, finding himself unable, even at the moment when the civilization of the fathers wavered in the balance, to mark under the Republican emblem.

Alabama stayed in the Democratic union, but Mr. HEFLIN had hardly issued his post-election statement when he realized that his advice of no quarter might be taken seriously. Angry Democratic officials throughout the State proposed to exclude from the 1930 primary, which will have Mr. HEFLIN'S renomination ambitions to deal with, all those fellow-partisans who had voted for Mr. HOOVER. It was then—and what time more natural?—that the Senator began to reveal that gentler, more understanding, more Christian side which always shows in Senators when they are about to come before the people. He sat down at his desk in Lafayette and addressed a two-column statement to "Mister Editor." It spoke, but more refrainedly, of the narrow escape which American institutions had had from "Raskobism," and called again, though much more mildly, for Mr. RASKOB'S official head. But when it reviewed the local situation the statement seemed to be issuing from the throat of a dove. Harmony—get together—bury the past—let's all be Democrats. These were the cooing notes uttered by the erstwhile War Eagle of the Tombigbee. If the Hoovercrats may not participate in the 1930 Senatorial primary it may prove an impossibility to renominate HEFLIN. That is the real reason for his harmony call, and it is always a like reason when a politician urges the dead past to bury its dead.

ONE BUDGET ITEM.

It is gratifying that the Budget Committee of the Board of Education has distinctly favored a more effective program for the evening schools, especially for improving and extending their service in behalf of a quarter of a million adults who do not know our language. The Teachers Union Auxiliary has reported that the elementary evening classes are not properly organized or conducted either to attract or to hold illiterate adults. It has recommended that experiment be made in a few centres in the different boroughs with selected teachers, larger seats, improved lighting and better facilities and materials.

Such piecemeal provision would benefit only a few immediately. The whole service would be greatly improved if the organization of classes with an enrolment of ten, twelve, fifteen or twenty persons were permitted, according to circumstances, instead of continuing the higher minimum now insisted upon. This would make possible more individual attention, which is especially necessary in the case of these students. It would also promote formation of classes in districts where the present number cannot be assembled but where the smaller minimum could be. If this were done and the estimate for the new budget were based on the smaller unit, the Board would be making a great advance in a field of education which from a civic point of view is coming to be recognized as more and more important.

Illiteracy, as the United States Bureau of Education has emphasized in its reports for the period 1926-28, is not a matter that can be removed by a few lessons, unless we assume that the mere ability to write one's name makes one literate. "It takes "many lessons to teach an illiterate "to read well enough," the report states, "to get pleasure from what "he reads and thus acquire the "habit of reading." But from the State's point of view it is not his personal pleasure which justifies this provision. It is rather that he may take his part as a citizen of this country. And literacy with that objective is not to be gained by a few nights' study. In the State of New York one seeking to become a voter is expected to have an acquaintance with an English vocabulary of 4,000 words. The obligation of the State to provide tuition has thus been increased—and even doubled by the extension of the suffrage to women. This becomes a major educational responsibility of the State.

EQUITY'S SETBACK.

In abandoning Hollywood as the scene of the battle for recognition of Equity's demands, Mr. GILLMORE gave the producers there cause for rejoicing. They did not have much to say about the fight while it was in progress, and are not saying much now. If there is dancing and singing and clapping of hands it is done in private. The war is off, at least temporarily, and they have the advantage. The president of the Actors' Equity Association has given all members permission to work under any contract that the movie and talkie producers care to hand out. He left the field to return to New York.

Many of the Equity rank and file must be pleased. They have struggled along without work, behaving loyally toward Equity, but wondering bitterly how long they would have to wait before their union would be able to provide them with the two things it has been striving for—recognition and reasonable contracts. Now they are rewarded by official permission to accept the fat salaries—together with overtime without pay—offered by the producers.

Equity is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, which points out in its weekly news bulletin that Hollywood non-members owe Equity a debt of gratitude for saving them as well as members from the proposed wage cut two years ago. Ever since the theatre strike of ten years ago, when Equity obtained a charter from the Federation, the actors' union has grown stronger in its own right. In August, 1919, it was weak, with only 2,700 members and $13,500 in its treasury. All the strength of the managers among vaudeville, movie, burlesque and legitimate theatres was thrown against it. Yet in thirty days it won its fight. It was recognized as the representative of the actor. It obtained the standard contract. It got more safeguards for working conditions than it had asked for in the first place.

This victory was brought about through the sympathetic strikes of stage employes and musicians. Mr. SHAY, president of one group, told the actors that he hoped a conference could be arranged with the managers, but if it could not, and "if this is to be our rock of destruction, I can't think of a better rock "to be destroyed on." The head of the musicians' union told them at the same meeting that when his organization joined the strike there would be "a grand symphony." The managers continued to refuse to discuss matters, maintaining silence, just as they are doing now, and gradually every production in New York but one was closed up through the walkout of the stagehands and musicians.

Mr. GILLMORE announces that he has returned to Broadway to talk things over with the heads of other unions. If Mr. WILLIAM CANAVAN of the Stage Employes' Union is sympathetic, as he has been before, every movie and talkie palace in New York may be closed. Every studio in Hollywood may be in darkness while the electricians take a holiday. Equity has had a serious rebuff, but it is difficult to believe that it is permanently defeated.

GERMANY'S NEW LAURELS.

The "place in the sun" denied to Germany's political leaders has certainly been made up for by a place in the air and on the sea. The truly triumphant arrival of the Graf Zeppelin in Tokio, 102 hours out from Friedrichshafen, is a great event in the modern world. As a scientific achievement it is matched by the remarkable passage of the Bremen across the Atlantic in record-breaking time. As if this were not enough glory for Germany, her representatives have just captured the President Hoover Cup in the international yacht races off Marblehead.

The most dangerous leg of the Zeppelin's journey is now behind. The journey across the barren steppes of Siberia had rightly been regarded with apprehension. In case of accident help could have reached the airship only after long delays. Except along the railway there are few settlements in Siberia, and once off the beaten track land travel is arduous. Furthermore, in mere length the journey across Siberia is formidable. From Berlin to Tokio by rail (and ferry) takes upward of twelve days, depending on the state of the train service. The Zeppelin made the trip in one-third that time—or less than it takes to cross the Atlantic even on the Bremen. This is a record of travel unequaled in the relations between the East and the West.

The Japanese, alert as they are to the significance of modern mechanical and engineering triumphs, received the Zeppelin with fitting enthusiasm, realizing that here was an achievement of which men, regardless of nationality, have a right to be proud. At the same time they freely give credit where it is due—to those German inventors and engineers who have shown their faith by their works and have proved to the doubting that the Zeppelin, as a type of airship, is a success.

The sort of skill that brought triumph to the German contestants in the thirty-square-meter yacht race off Marblehead shows that Dr. ECKENER is not the only German navigator to cope successfully with unknown factors of the elements. The German yachtsmen were in strange waters, sailing against skippers who had the advantage of long familiarity with local tides and winds. These, as yacht racers know, play a great part in the successful sailing of small boats. Such knowledge is best learned by experience. The Germans made up for it by keen observation and by exceptional agility in handling their small craft. In five races they won by points over their American competitors.

Many are the laurels handed to Germans today. As Dr. ECKENER finishes his cruise around the world the German nation will watch his success with pride in the realization that his flight symbolizes to the world the best in the new Germany.

ENGLAND'S TEXTILE STRIKE.

The appointment of a board of arbitration to settle the dispute between workers and employers in England's textile industry indicates that a temporary solution is in sight. Even this will be better than the continuation of the present deadlock, which not only has brought suffering to hundreds of thousands of mill workers but has crippled one of England's major industries. Presumably the wage reduction of 12½ per cent demanded by the employers will not be sustained by the board. Otherwise arbitration would be fruitless.

Unfortunately, the mere settlement of this wage dispute will do little to improve the basically unsound conditions in England's vast textile industry. Reports of investigators show that for years they have been unsatisfactory. Output has remained comparatively stationary during the last two or three decades. The owners have failed to modernize their plants. They have fought the tendency to cut down local competition by combining forces with other companies—a practice which has proved so successful in the United States. Furthermore, the attitude of labor and capital has been obstinate—the former seeking shorter hours and more pay for less production and the latter trying to keep wages down and obtain more work out of the men.

Also the industry has had to face increasing competition throughout the world. Not only have American textiles been exported in ever-larger volume to South America, there competing with English lines, but in India, China and Japan, which formerly absorbed a large part of England's cotton goods, native mills have increased their output at a remarkable rate, thus depriving England of former markets. Some of these foreign mills have been selling their goods abroad in competition.

Mr. RAMSAY MACDONALD has hinted that a subsidy might be granted to this industry to help tide it over the present crisis. Already its borrowings at the banks are said to be excessively large. Government support would be, in fact, in the nature of further loans. That such a thing is even suggested is an indication of the unsoundness of the industry as a whole. Certainly the continuation of the present deadlock could only bring greater disasters in its train. Here is a puzzle the solution of which has already taxed the most competent business men and bankers in England. If the Labor Government can find a way out that is economically sound, it will have performed a great service to the British nation as well as to the underpaid workers who are today the chief sufferers.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Science and the Backward Brother.

Observers on the Graf Zeppelin report the Siberian natives in their scattered villages "cowering" with fear at the passage of the strange aerial monster. It is established tradition that primitive man is stricken either with awe or panic when first introduced to the works of civilized man. CORTES'S ships were ominous white birds and CHAMPLAIN'S blunderbusses frightened more Iroquois than they killed.

Actually, there is reason for doubting whether the savage mind is much overawed by the white man's "magic," unless it makes a noise or threatens personal harm. The roar of the Zeppelin's propellers, like the crash of the white man's guns, terrify. The primitive man's fear of the camera is based on the risk involved in trusting one's "double" in somebody else's hands. But these fears and hesitations are not difficult to overcome. What impresses one about the usual pictures of the contemporary anthropologists is the amiable attitude of the native toward the airplane, camera, anthropologist's calipers or whatever white man's toy it is the native has just seen for the first time.

What the savage certainly does not succumb to is admiration for the white man's ingenuity in its highest manifestations; the reason being that the savage, like most of his civilized brothers, is not enough of an expert to understand the marvels of science. To early man in the Congo or New Guinea a bicycle is by ever so much a more impressive object than an "oslo," which is a machine for measuring five one-millionths of a second in radio transmission.

Boston's Exaggerated Weather.

Discussion has waxed hot over the accuracy of the thermometers in the Department of Agriculture kiosk on Boston Common. For twenty years Bostonians have accepted their weather as so registered, and now it appears that all the time the instruments have been grossly exaggerating.

A prominent Bostonian recently sent a letter to Washington protesting that the thermometers were not accurate. The Department of Agriculture replied that it never said they were. The kiosk has never been "an official recording point."

The temperatures recorded in the kiosk are incorrect because the shelter for the thermometers is of iron. In Summer it retains the heat of the sun, becomes hotter than the air and adds a few degrees to the reading on the thermometer. In Winter, quite the other way, the iron is chilled and the records are invariably too low.

After all, there must be a point between the high and low temperatures when the reading is correct.

Complaint has often been made by the sweltering man in the street that "official" temperatures recorded at some point high above the city, where cool breezes are blowing, give no proper indication of the heat which prevails nearer the ground. A proper balancing of the exaggerated report from Boston Common and the conservative report from the "official" kiosk should give the Bostonian a fair indication of how hot he ought to feel.

Chickens Home to Roost.

The rotogravure editors and HENRY L. MENCKEN now have a great deal to answer for since KANHAIYA LAL GAUBA'S book, "Uncle Sham," has been permitted by the Treasury Department to be sold in this country. For it is to those sources largely that the indignant East Indian author has looked for the materials wherewith to prove that American civilization has "run amok" and that blasphemy and indecency are our leading social characteristics. Mr. MENCKEN'S "Americana" department in The American Mercury, and those endless bevies of bathing beauties which adorn the picture pages, have impressed Mr. GAUBA as the only accurate indices of American life. Those of his countrymen who have been incensed by Miss MAYO'S "Mother India" are now grimly regarding pictures of our young women being shaved in barber shops and reading of preachers who discuss in the pulpit the virility of King SOLOMON.

If patriots respond to Mr. GAUBA that this is a large country, and that the examples which he takes as representative are exceptional and few, his reply (already offered in "Uncle Sham") is that India also is too large a country to write a conclusive book about. In such an impasse, the only recourse for those who want India to think well of America is to call the Rotarians, Lions and Kiwanians into mass session and denounce Mr. MENCKEN once more.

Exonerating the "Movies" Again.

Something should be done to muzzle "debunkers." They deprive us of convenient alibis and explanations, as, for example, that evils in modern child life are traceable to the "movies." This assertion has saved many a parent and educator the task of looking more deeply into the causes of the revolt of youth, and so has been a great comfort to millions.

Now comes an English educator who, according to an article in The Christian Science Monitor by the former President of the British National Union of Teachers, asserts that the "cinema" has very little influence on the formation of children's opinions. After an extensive investigation he concludes that only 10 per cent of a child's ideas are affected by seeing the "pictures."

Two generations ago dime novels and Wild West thrillers were blamed for the waywardness of youth. In an earlier age the blame was placed on such devastating works as the writings of the Brontë sisters. Today there are still persons who hold toy soldiers to be the real cause of badness in boys, and others who can prove that the automobile has been the greatest tool of the devil. In this multiplicity of convictions the "movie" finds such a large company that it may survive, as did the stage when it was held responsible for all the sins of the young.

Faults in a Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Legislature in passing the so-called safety responsibility law, effective Sept. 1, has nullified it by including provisions governing the acts of motorists outside the constitutional boundaries of the State, also compelling motorists to insure in certain companies, which the United States Supreme Court has many times ruled cannot be enforced as far as the insured is concerned.

BRITAIN'S POSITION.

Writer Argues It Ill Becomes This Country to Criticize Her Debt Stand.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES attitude toward Great Britain in the present crisis at The Hague is amazing and inexplicable. Even now you hardly seem to realize what has been apparent from the beginning—that Mr. Snowden's attitude is not party manoeuvring, not the result of ill health or natural bad temper, but an expression in plain terms of what the British peoples have been thinking for years. If you must condemn any one, you must condemn the whole nation. England is sick and tired of being the complacent victim of a policy of "making things easier for France"; sick and tired of bearing such a vastly disproportionate share of the post-war burden. It is not bad manners nor sickness: it is the turning of the worm—the British taxpayer.

May I suggest that any criticism of Great Britain's action from this country is—to say the least—in extraordinarily bad taste? The United States has fought bitterly against making the smallest sacrifice on behalf of her former allies; she has consistently refused to take part officially in any scheme for the rehabilitation of Europe; and yet, when Great Britain at last says firmly that she has sacrificed enough and can sacrifice no more, American opinion rises up in holy wrath at such grossness.

It is not a matter of a few millions a year. It is the end of a policy: the policy that derives from the theory that it is always possible to squeeze a little more out of the taxpayers of Great Britain in the cause of "European harmony." Englishmen are no less concerned than they ever were for peace and settlement in Europe, but they profoundly resent scoldings from the newspapers of a nation with the record of the United States in that same cause.

CITY HALL LACKING.

There Should Be Guide-Books and Photographs for Visitors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES article giving a history of the New York City Hall has been read by me with great interest. I agree that this building is one of our best examples of early American architecture. It has many important historical associations, and the restoration of the building that was completed several years ago was done with great skill and perfect taste. It would seem, however, that some organization should provide an intelligent method for showing this beautiful building to visitors.

A few months ago my partner and I spent a morning at the City Hall and tried to find some photographs or guide-book that would give us illustrations of the interior. We inspected the second floor for several hours without meeting any one except an old woman who was wandering about muttering to herself, and who could give us no information about the building. We then went up to the Metropolitan Museum, where they have done such fine work in the American wing in preserving examples of early American architecture, and found that they had no photographs of the interesting interior details of the City Hall, nor had it occurred to them that making a record of this fine example of early American architecture was within their province.

May I suggest that a handbook of this beautiful old building, as well edited and illustrated as the handbook of the American wing, would be a worthy project? LEE BURNS.

Radio in the Parks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The parks are for quiet, rest and recreation and not for bellowing dynamic speakers.

We are driven from our homes by the loud bawling of the radios, and when we seek peace and refuge in a near-by park we are appalled, as we approach at a distance of two blocks, by the clamor of dynamic speakers. The booming, explosive and blasting noise grows louder and louder as we approach this uncanny and unearthly amplifier.

How a musician can allow the music from his band in Central Park to be deformed and mutilated into harsh, ungainly and excruciatingly ugly sounds is more than can be comprehended.

If these noises keep up, there is no place for a quiet-loving person in the City of New York.

"Body Reading" for Health.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The interview with William H. Blake of Teachers College, printed recently in THE TIMES, concerning character reading from body posture, reveals a new and practical method of character analysis. We may soon hear of cafeterias, like the fortune-telling tea rooms, that will "read" one's walk while one gropes along the steam tables, and all for the price of the lunch.

The most significant reason, however, for understanding the correct use of the body in for the sake of your health. It is all right to "be yourself," but if that means that your shoulders cave in, your head hangs down and your body is rigid, the chances are that your self-expression is leading you into trouble.

PAROLE.

Wait but a little longer. I will bring
Some curious treasure to your empty head
From the gray caverns of this Shadow Land—
Some small, sweet unimaginable thing—
A rushlight ring that will not fade nor fail;
The breast of some bright bird that never was;
An ivory petal from an ebony rose;
A strain of frozen music; cap and veil
Woven of Iseult's tears and Deirdre's hair;
A bowl of flaming ice; a purse of dew;
A jug of silver wine pressed from a star;
A packet of sweet lavender that grew
Beside a river flowing from the moon.
Wait for me! I'll be out of prison soon.

STANDARDS RAISED FOR SAFETY AT SEA

Drastic New Rules for Lifeboats and Navigation Proposed by International Conference.

MORE RADIOS REQUIRED

State Department Sees Big Gain in "Potential Life Savers"—Tells of Americans' Part.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—A summary of the report of the International Conference on Safety at Sea, covering nearly every phase of the problem of safety of life on the sea, was made public by the Department of State today.

The conference convened April 16 this year, the nations represented being the United States, Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, Japan, the Scandinavian countries, Finland, the Soviet Government of Russia, Spain, Australia, Canada, the Irish Free State, the Netherlands and Belgium. Vice Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond, R. N., was the president of the conference.

The convention, which was signed by every delegate, will come into force July 1, 1931, as between the governments which have deposited their ratifications by that date, provided not less than five nations have so acted.

The principal subjects considered by the conference were ship construction, life saving appliances, radiotelegraphy and safety of navigation.

In the matter of ship construction the four main subjects are subdivision of ships, structure and openings, and stability. To a very large extent the agreements with respect to these subjects were proposed by the American delegates.

In respect to existing ships, the obligation is imposed on each government to effect upon its ships, so far as practicable and reasonable, the increased standards of safety recommended, while in the case of new ships a stability test is required.

Lifeboat Room for All.

In the matter of life saving appliances, fire detection and extension, the report provides specifically that there must be accommodations in boats for all persons on board, and in addition buoyant apparatus for 25 per cent. of all persons on board.

Regulations dealing with the construction of lifeboats, embarkation of passengers, the handling of dangerous cargoes and with drills it is stated, raise the world standards as well as the standards of the American law.

Since the international agreement of 1914 radio installation was required only on ships carrying fifty or more persons, while under the law of the United States radio installation is mandatory only on steam vessels having on board fifty or more persons and does not apply to sailing vessels. The new regulations require that all passenger and cargo ships of 1,600 tons or over when employed in international service must be equipped with radio apparatus.

"An interesting problem of the conference," the State Department summary says, "was with respect to authorizing the use of automatic radio alarm receiver. The Washington radio telegraph convention of 1927 specified standards which should be attained by any such automatic alarm receiver.

Radio Compass Mandatory.

"The present convention recognizes the use of any automatic alarm receiver meeting the specifications of the Washington radio-telegraph convention.

"The general result of the provisions of the convention relating to radio-telegraphy is that at least 1,000 vessels not now equipped with radio will be required to install radio apparatus. They make potential lifesavers of a vastly increased number of ships."

The sections of the convention dealing with navigation apply to all ships on all voyages. The regulations provide for dissemination of meteorological data by ships at sea, larger activities by the ice patrol, matter of alarm, distress and urgency signals, the efficient manning of ships, and amendments to the regulations for the prevention of collisions at sea.

Equipment of all passenger ships of 5,000 tons or over with the radio compass is made mandatory.

Representative Wallace H. White of Maine, chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, was chairman of the American delegation to the conference.

K. OF C. FORCES GATHER.

5,000 Expected to Make Milwaukee Meeting Break Record.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 19 (AP).—The fourth degree was conferred Sunday on 181 Knights of Columbus, here for the organization's supreme convention, which officially opens tomorrow.

Hundreds of Knights and other visitors were pouring into Milwaukee today for the meeting, which will continue through Thursday.

Although these will be but 450 delegates, some of them from Canada, Cuba, Mexico, Porto Rico and Central America, Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody of Grand Rapids, Mich., who predicted the meeting would be the greatest in the order's history, expected an attendance of 6,000.

Sunday's ceremonies were followed by a formal dinner, at which Mr. Carmody discussed the order's activities in boy guidance, war work and education. Commenting on the work done during the World War, he said: "Too many of us forget that the war is not over for those boys who came back sick and broken in mind or body." He said the $44,000,000 collected for war work was not exhausted until 1927 and that all of it went for service men.

BAUMES UPHOLDS PENALTY.

Author of Criminal Laws Denies They Caused Prison Revolts.

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP).—Flatly denying that the Baumes laws were responsible for recent prison riots in the State, Senator Caleb H. Baumes of Newburgh, sponsor of the anti-crime legislation, today told the Women's Republican Club of Tompkins County that the real causes of the outbreaks were overcrowding and poor feeding of prisoners and lack of guards. He urged better prisons in which all inmates could work eight hours a day as the best solution for New York's pressing prison problem.

"Let those who think of sympathizing with the habitual criminal reserve some of their sympathy for the victims," he said, in refuting newspaper statements criticizing the severity of the Baumes laws.

S. DIAGHILEFF DIES; BALLET IMPRESARIO

Former Director of Czar's Ballet Found Dead in Bed While on Vacation at the Lido.

TOOK DANCERS TO EUROPE

His Oriental Fantasies in Color, Sound and Motion Captured Imagination of the World.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE LIDO, Venice, Aug. 19.—Serge Diaghileff, famous Russian opera and ballet producer, was found dead in his bed at the Hotel Lido Baths here today. He had recently been suffering from gastric trouble and was spending a holiday with Serge Lefar, the dancer, after a strenuous season in London.

Formerly the director of the late Czar's ballet in Petrograd, he became famous many years ago when he introduced the Ballet Russe to Europe. He captured the imagination of a generation with the celebrated Russian Ballet in Paris, London and New York and other world capitals.

As "King of the Ballet" he spent royally, lavishing huge sums for settings, costumes and orchestra, as well as for dancers.

Had Genius for the Sumptuous.

M. Diaghileff with an imperial subsidy first brought a ballet corps to London in 1909. At a later period his dancers performed single pieces at the Coliseum in conjunction with a vaudeville program. In time he was able to engage various theatres which were exclusively devoted to his gorgeous productions. His Oriental fantasies such as "Scheherazade" and "Thamar" will long live in the memory of theatregoers.

He did not dance himself or compose music, but he had a genius for sumptuous and novel settings. If he had been a benevolent millionaire, anxious to assemble the finest artists for the delectation of European capitals, without considering his own financial success, he could not have gathered together a more splendid galaxy of names. Among the composers who cooperated with him were Prokofieff and Strawinsky. Among the artists who delighted to design his costumes and settings were Picasso, Matisse and Derain.

His choice of dancers was perfect. He confined himself to no rules, but chose excellence from the most diverse sources. In Paris he often chose the most austere artists. More recently he had turned to the "Surrealistes."

Such eclectic yet discriminating taste might have been of little avail if Diaghileff had not been able to synthesise these arts and produce by virtue of his extraordinary gift for organization a perfect whole.

Credited With Leading Renascence.

M. Diaghileff, along with Michel Fokine and Leon Bakst, was credited with leading an artistic renascence in Russia and presenting the world with the Ballet Russe, whose harmonious blendings of color, sound and motion have pleased the capitals of Europe and the cities of the United States since 1909.

M. Diaghileff was born in Novgorod, Russia, in 1872. He was the son of Paul Diaghileff and Eugenie Evreinoff. Beginning his career as a musician, the man who was to become the world's outstanding impresario of the dance was graduated with honors from the Conservatory of Petrograd before he was 20.

In 1898 he planned and edited the first Russian review of the world's artistic endeavor, Mir Iskusstvo. Hard times in the land of the Czar after the Russo-Japanese War forced its suspension, and Diaghileff, whose interest meanwhile had become centred on the stage, was from 1899 to 1901 in the service of the Imperial Theatres under the direction of Prince Wolkonsky. A supporter of Isadora Duncan and of Fokine, his revolutionary zeal displeased the authorities and he was transferred to other spheres.

Russian Ballet Captures Paris.

Russia meanwhile was trying to exhibit her culture in Western Europe. Paris had seen an exhibition of Russian painting at the Autumn Salon of 1906. The 1908 repertoire of the Opéra in Paris was liberally sprinkled with Russian works. In 1909 it was decided to send the Russian Ballet, never before seen outside of Russia, to Paris, and Diaghileff was chosen as its manager.

The production was a success. The next year Diaghileff took the French capital by storm with "Scheherezade," an Oriental fantasy, with music by Rimsky-Korsakov, and settings by Bakst. Other successes of the season were Schumann's "Carnival" and Stravinsky's "L'Oiseau Feu." Some of his dancers were Nijinsky, Adolph Sohm, Lydia Lopoukowa and Anna Pavlowa.

After that year the purpose of the expedition had been accomplished and the government withdrew its subsidy. Diaghileff found himself faced with the financial as well as the artistic responsibility for the troupe and there followed tours throughout Europe and America. He visited the United States in 1916 and 1917.

Russia was active as an ally, and hints of propaganda marred his success. The trip netted a deficit of several hundred thousand dollars, which was made up by Otto Kahn.

ARTHUR S. PEAKE DIES; BIBLICAL SCHOLAR

One of Foremost Christian Theologists in the British Isles —Was 63 Years Old.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Arthur Samuel Peake, eminent biblical scholar, died at Manchester today after an internal operation, aged 63.

Dr. Peake, who was one of the foremost Christian theologists in the British Isles, had been a professor of biblical exegesis in Victoria University, Manchester, since 1904, and editor of The Holborn Review since 1919.

Born at Leek, Staffordshire, on Nov. 24, 1865, son of the Rev. Samuel Peake, he was educated at Ludlow School, at Stratford-on-Avon, and at Coventry grammar schools before entering St. John's College, Oxford. There he won high honors and later became a fellow of Merton College, from 1890 to 1897. He also lectured at Lancashire Independent College and at the United Methodist College in Manchester.

Dr. Peake was the author of many works on theological subjects, including a study of the life of the Apostle Paul. He edited a commentary on the Bible in 1919, and the British edition, in five volumes, of "The Outline of Christianity." In 1928 he was elected president of the National Free Church Council.

CHARLES A. OGREN.

New York Lawyer Dies of Injuries in Automobile Accident.

Charles A. Ogren, a New York lawyer and layman of the Methodist Episcopal Church, died on Friday night at the Kane Summit Hospital, Kane, Pa., as the result of injuries he received two weeks ago in an automobile accident while motoring back to New York from a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Paul N. Anderson of Jamestown, N. Y. Mr. Ogren's offices here stated yesterday.

Mr. Ogren, whose residence was at 4 Urban Street, Mount Vernon, N. Y., was driving through Kane on Aug. 3 with Mrs. Ogren and a friend when their car was forced off the road, skidded and smashed into a wall. While Mrs. Ogren received injuries as a result of which she is at present in a critical condition at the Kane Hospital, his hurts were not believed to have been serious, being confined to the fracture of a bone in his leg. But a clot of blood from the injury entered his heart almost two weeks later and resulted in his death. The friend was only slightly hurt.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at Jamestown.

Besides his wife and daughter Mr. Ogren is survived by a son, Charles Francis Ogren. Mr. Ogren's fifty-ninth birthday was on Aug. 13, three days before his death. He was a member of the law firm of Ogren & Sewery of 149 Broadway.

WILLIAM STEIN DEAD.

Veteran Dealer in Leaf Tobacco Dies on Eve of 72d Birthday.

William Stein, one of the oldest retail dealers in leaf tobacco in New York, died early yesterday morning of a brain hemorrhage at his home at 1,928 Harrison Avenue, the Bronx. A celebration had been planned for him tomorrow in honor of his seventy-second birthday. He was born in Danzig, Germany and was the son of Rabbi Abraham Stein, who officiated at the Meisel Synagogue at Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Stein immigrated to this country in 1880 and went into the leaf tobacco business. He established his office at 441 East Sixth Street in 1888 and maintained that business address the rest of his life. He was the author of many poems, which his family intends to publish in a memorial volume.

John N. Lane.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Aug. 19 (AP).—John M. Lane, 77, of this city, a grandnephew of President James Buchanan and a nephew of Harriet Lane Johnson, mistress of the White House during President Buchanan's administration, died here last night after a long illness. He was born in Lancaster, Pa., and had lived here since 1863. He is survived by his widow, four sons and a daughter.

Everett H. Boyd.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 19.—Everett H. Boyd, veteran boarding officer of the United States Customs Service and Acting Deputy Collector, died today at his home on Pierce Road, Weymouth, in his seventieth year.

Since his appointment as assistant weigher in April, 1895, his work has been among those closely connected with shipping. On notice of his death the flags on the government tug Mackinaw and on the Appraisers stores were ordered at half staff.

James Ballard Dyer.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 19 (AP).—James Ballard Dyer Sr., 69, member of the Board of Directors of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, and superintendent of the leaf department of the concern, died suddenly early today.

Miss Anne Dunn.

Miss Anne Dunn, 57, for many years head of the English department of the Brearley School for Girls, Sixty-first Street and Park Avenue, but for the last three years headmistress of the institution, died yesterday after a prolonged illness.

Miss Dunn was a member of the Headmistresses' Association, the Colony Club and the Cosmopolitan Club. Funeral services will be held at 11 A. M. Wednesday at St. George's Chapel, 207 East Sixteenth Street. Interment will be private.

Robert H. Bowen Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 19.—Robert Hall Bowen, 37, Professor of Zoology at Columbia University, New York City, died this morning at Crary Clinic, North Dartmouth, of gangrenous appendicitis, after an illness of six days. He had been spending the Summer in research work at Woods Hole and was taken ill there.

William E. Whiting.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP).—William E. Whiting, 60, of New York City, died at a local hotel today of a heart attack while en route to the Thousand Islands. Mr. Whiting was manager of a Fifth Avenue apartment building.

Obituary Notes.

Dr. Theodore R. Albright, dentist, died yesterday at his home, 125 West Ninety-second Street. Funeral services will be held on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the house.

Charles F. Johnson, 84, died yesterday at his home in Roselle Park, N. J. He had come to this country from Sweden, and had been a resident of Roselle Park for thirty-five years.

Alfred J. Dubeau died at his home in Elizabeth, N. J., yesterday following a short illness. A widow, Mrs. Lorenda DeVine, and two daughters survive.

Charles Frederick Koster, a resident of New York, died yesterday at White Plains Hospital. He had come to White Plains about a week ago to recuperate from a recent illness, and was staying at the home of his sister, Mrs. Harvey L. Winslow.

DIRECTED MANY FESTIVALS

A Native of Texas, He Was One of the First Propagandists for American Music.

BERLIN, Aug. 19 (AP).—Announcement of the death of Frank Van Der Stucken, noted American music director and composer, was reported in dispatches from Hamburg today. Cremation will take place tomorrow.

Mr. Van Der Stucken, 71 years old, had lived mostly in Germany during the last few years.

Mr. Van Der Stucken arrived in Hamburg from the United States last June to undergo an operation, but was in such a weakened condition that he was sent to a hospital to recover sufficient strength to make the operation advisable.

It was undertaken several days ago, but death followed quickly. At his bedside when the end came were his wife and daughters, Gretz Landin of Boston and Isa Bobrick of Hamburg, also his son, Professor D. H. Van Der Stucken of Andover, Mass.; another son is Fred R. Van Der Stucken of Reading, Pa.

A Native of Texas.

Frank Van Der Stucken, veteran choral and orchestral conductor, was born in Texas in 1858 and associated through a long and industrious career with some of the most significant musical developments of his period in America.

Following the celebration of his seventieth anniversary on Oct. 15 last by testimonial dinners given him both in New York and in Cincinnati, Mr. Van Der Stucken's health began to fail him. He suffered a stroke on Feb. 5, but through sheer will power made a trip to New York on the invitation of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, by which he was then made a member. Mr. Van Der Stucken's "Festival Overture" headed a program of compositions by American composers given at that time under the auspices of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, with Henry Hadley, a fellow-composer and conductor, directing the performances.

Following these ceremonies Mr. Van Der Stucken went to Hamburg, where he suffered a relapse. He was forced to go to a hospital and to remain there until his death.

Frank Van Der Stucken's talent for music showed itself so early that at the age of eight he was taken to Antwerp for his musical education. There he studied under Peter Benoit. Other of his teachers were Reinecke, Langer and Liszt. The young Van Der Stucken, an accomplished pianist became in the season of 1881 and 1882 conductor at the Breslau Opera. Two years later he gave concerts of his own compositions under Liszt's encouragement and patronage. Coming to America in 1884 he succeeded Leopold Damrosch as leader of the Arion Society of New York. He left this position to become, in 1895, first conductor of the Cincinnati Orchestra (until 1907), and head of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music (until 1903). In 1906 he succeeded Theodore Thomas as director of the Biennial Cincinnati May Festivals, a position which he held until 1912, resuming the direction of these festivals in the years 1923 and 1925.

His New York Concerts.

These were by no means the only musical activities of Mr. Van Der Stucken in America and in Europe. He organized concerts of new works given in Steinway Hall in the season of 1884-85; symphony concerts given in Chickering Hall in the season 1886-87. He was the first to give a complete programme of American compositions in a series of concerts given in the season of 1887-88. He directed festivals in Indianapolis in 1887; a concert of his own compositions in Berlin later in the same year; a program of American compositions at the Trocadero during the Paris Exposition of 1889, for which service he was made an officer of the Academy by the French; a festival in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, in 1889; the sixteenth National German Saengerfest at Newark in 1891, and further festivals at New York in 1892, Antwerp in 1893, New York, 1894; Antwerp, 1913-14, and Copenhagen, 1919.

Although Mr. Van Der Stucken divided his activities between America and Europe, being very active as a musician in both countries, he was emphatically devoted to the land of his birth and was one of the first propagandists for American music at home and abroad. He was also rarely curious of all new developments in music in his youth and fought for the "modern" music and "modern" ideas of earlier days. Though his principal activity was that of conductor, he was also a composer, among his works being music for Shakespeare's "Tempest," a prologue to Heine's "William Ratcliffe," the opera "Vlasda," the prologue "Pax Triumphans," a march composed for the opening of the St. Louis Exposition, "Louisiana," a festival hymn for men's voices and orchestra, an orchestral suite and many choruses and songs.

Dr. Charles S. Millet.

Special to The New York Times.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 19.—Dr. Charles S. Millet, seventy-one, widely known for his tuberculosis research, died today at his home here. For many years he directed a sanitarium in East Bridgewater and was a member of the Children's Clinic staff of the State Department of Public Health. He leaves a wife and six children. One of his daughters, Lucia, is the wife of Leonard Mason, author, while a son, Charles Sumner Millet Jr., is now at Harvard.

Dr. Millet was a graduate of Harvard Medical School, class of 1880. He was a brother of Frank D. Millet, noted portrait painter, who went down with the Titanic.

JOHN B. DANIEL DIES; RADIO ANNOUNCER

He Succumbs to Peritonitis at 29 on Eve of Date Set for His Wedding.

John Bennett Daniel, radio announcer of the National Broadcasting Company, whose voice had been heard on the air since his début in 1923 with WJZ, died yesterday morning at 2 o'clock at St. Elizabeth's Hospital from peritonitis, after an appendicitis operation performed on Wednesday. He was 29 years old. The operation was performed on the eve of the date set for his wedding to Miss Bertha Cable, daughter of Lieutenant William A. Cable, U. S. N., retired, of 1,910 K Street, N. W., Washington.

Services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Funeral Church, Broadway at Sixty-sixth Street, New York, and burial will be at the Rosedale Cemetery, Orange, N. J.

Mr. Daniel was at work on Saturday night in the studios of the broadcasting company, 711 Fifth Avenue, when he was overcome. He was taken to the hospital for the operation.

He was born in England, the son of Tom Daniel, a noted English basso. His schooling was begun in Scotland and completed in this country. He became a professional singer and was heard in musical comedy, concert and church work throughout the country. He was also in the navy for two years.

After his appointment in 1925 to the staff of WJZ, Mr. Daniel was transferred to WRC in Washington. A year ago he was returned to the New York studios. Mr. Daniel is said to have presented former President Coolidge more than twenty times on the radio, in addition to microphone presentations of President Hoover, the Lindbergh reception in Washington, and other events broadcast over nation-wide networks.

Radio paused last night in its sixty-minute to the hour routine to pay tribute to Mr. Daniel's memory. The pauses, each of five minutes, were on stations WJZ and WEAF and networks of stations associated with the National Broadcasting Company.

Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent and William S. Lynch, NBC staff member, spoke briefly on their last association with Mr. Daniel, when the three of them described the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin at Lakehurst, two weeks ago.

PASSAIC BANKS PASS INTO NEW CONTROL

Receivers Transfer Majority of Hobart Stock to Purchasers at Price of $422,940.

OFFICERS TO BE CHANGED

Buyers Will Fix Date for Reopening After Conference With State Banking Head.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Aug. 19.—The Hobart Trust Company of this city and its two branches, the Merchants Bank of Passaic and the Service Trust Company of New Jersey, which were closed by State officials on July 24, passed from the control of the New Jersey Bankers' Securities Company today to that of a group of Passaic bankers and business men, thus marking the first important step toward reopening the institution.

The Passaic men received the Securities Company's 30,210 shares of Hobart stock from John J. Stamler and Nicholas LaVecchia, permanent equity receivers of the company, for $422,940. Their bid of $14 a share was approved by the Court of Chancery in Newark two weeks ago. There is a total of 40,000 shares of stock outstanding.

The transfer took place in Mr. Stamler's office at Broad and Market Streets, Newark. Afterward, neither of the two equity receivers nor the Passaic purchasers would discuss the details of their conference. The purchasers, however, said they could not fix a date for the reopening of the Hobart bank until after a meeting with Frank H. Smith, State Commissioner of Banking. They said this meeting would be held soon.

In the Passaic group were James H. Walden, Robert D. Benson, Arthur S. Hughes, Dow H. Drukker and Henry C. Whitehead. Mr. Whitehead is counsel for the group. All five men are associated with the People's Bank and Trust Company of Passaic.

It was said that the Securities Company probably would invest the money in bank stocks pending an investigation by the receivers as to whether its assets should be liquidated. Notices to the stockholders in the Hobart bank will be sent out in a day or two, preparatory to electing new officers.

Major John J. Roegner of Passaic, who was head of the Hobart bank until it was closed, returned today after a vacation but was not prepared to say whom he would name to succeed Joseph J. Weinberger as City Counsel. Weinberger, who was suspended from office by the Mayor, is under indictment with his brother, Harry H. Weinberger, founder and former president of the Securities Company, and Frank Campbell, a stockholder.

INJURIES FATAL TO TUDOR.

Ex-Captain of Harvard Hockey Team Crashed in Auto.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 19 (AP).—John Tudor, 22 years old, captain of last year's Harvard hockey team, died at Truesdale Hospital today from injuries received in an automobile accident at Assonet Saturday night.

Early yesterday an operation was performed and a blood transfusion made in the futile attempt to save Mr. Tudor's life. His injuries were internal.

Mr. Tudor prepared for college at St. Mark's School, where he began his hockey career. He was also a member of the baseball teams at St. Mark's and later at Harvard played on the freshman nine. He captained the freshman hockey team at Harvard and easily gained a place at wing on the varsity team during his remaining years in college.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Tudor, were at their summer home at Hancock, N. H., when the accident occurred. Both rushed to his bedside. The father is a prominent Boston lawyer.

PANTAGES WINS DELAY.

Will Plead in Los Angeles Aug. 22 to Girl's Charges.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19 (AP).—Alexander Pantages, 54-year-old theatre magnate, was arraigned in Superior Court today and was granted a delay until Aug. 22 in his plea to charges of criminally attacking 17-year-old Eunice Pringle, a dancer. The motion, made by Pantages's attorneys, said sufficient time had not been permitted in setting the date of arraignment to allow a study of the proceedings.

The District Attorney's office today had three new accusations against Pantages in the form of affidavits by young girls who formerly were ushers in Pantages's theatre here.

WOMAN AND SONS INJURED.

Mrs. McNally of New York Hurt in Up-State Motor Crash.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Michael McNally, 3,410 Kingsbridge Avenue, New York, is in a critical condition at the Champlain Valley Hospital here as a result of a broken spine suffered in an automobile accident at Clintonville this noon.

One son, Vincent, 20, fractured a shoulder, and another, James, 12, fractured his left arm.

Mr. McNally, who was driving, and two daughters were not injured when the car went down a twenty-foot embankment after the steering gear locked.

West Point Classes Start Hikes.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, Aug. 19.—About 300 of the cadets of the United States Military Academy in West Point, constituting the first and fourth classes, started on hikes and manoeuvres today by direction of Major Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the academy. The fourth class, numbering upward of 400 cadet, under direction of Major Terry, Assistant Commandant of Cadets, started on a hike for Palisades Interstate Park. The first class, under Colonel R. C. Richardson, Commandant of Cadets, took a practice march around the post and tomorrow will set out for Lake Popolopen, to camp and engage in a sham battle.

WESTCHESTER DEAL IS LAID TO BARRETT

Supervisors' Chairman Says He Took Associate's Word and Did Not Check on Values.

TELLS OF PLEA FOR HASTE

Two Others of Board Testify They Accepted Appraisal Without Investigation.

PRINCE DEFENDS HIS PART

Broker, at Untermyer's Hearing, Denies He Broke Rule by Taking Profit and Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The chairman and two members of the Westchester County Board of Supervisors testified this morning before Samuel Untermyer, Governor Roosevelt's special investigator, that they had taken no steps to check up the value of land bought by the Supervisors for $948,000 recently near the court house in White Plains. The site is assessed at $456,000 and has been appraised at $561,000.

The three Supervisors denied they knew that L. Ward Prince of Prince & Ripley, real estate dealers, broker in the transaction, was a part owner of the property bought by the county. But one of them testified that he had derived his idea of the value of the property from E. Percy Barrett, chairman of the Supervisors' Committee on Budget and Appropriations, who had obtained his appraisal figures from Mr. Prince.

Appearing as the key witness, Mr. Prince testified that when he took a profit and commission as broker in the sale of property in which he was interested he had violated no rule of the New York Real Estate Exchange, of which he is a member, because it is permissible for a broker to act in such circumstances if he informs the principals of his status as owner. Mr. Prince further testified that he owned a 40 per cent interest in the Grand Court Realty Corporation, owner of the largest single parcel of the nine parcels included in the site under investigation.

Says Barrett Urged Haste.

Howard Washburn, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, testified that he had been in the real estate business at Chappaqua for twenty years and had been a member of the Board of Supervisors for eighteen years, representing the town of Newcastle.

He said that the matter of purchasing the site for additional county buildings had been broached before the Committee on Budget and Appropriations by its chairman, Mr. Barrett. Mr. Barrett advised haste in acquiring the site, he added, because his options ran in some instances for thirty days and in others for only a few days. He did not know, he said, that Mr. Prince was interested in the property.

"You didn't appraise the property?" asked Mr. Untermyer.

"I didn't," replied Mr. Washburn.

"Did you ask if any appraisal had been made?"

"I didn't," said Mr. Washburn.

"Did any one say that an appraisal had been made?"

"I don't recall."

Mr. Washburn testified that he did not think an appraisal of the site under investigation was essential and that he would have insisted upon an appraisal only "if I thought it was in the interest of the county."

Admits Prices Were Not Verified.

When he was asked on what he based his opinion as to the fairness of the purchase price, Mr. Washburn testified that he had been informed that a parcel with a 150-foot frontage on Martine Avenue, adjoining the site, had been sold for $800,000 "to a New York syndicate." He admitted that a "New York syndicate" was "very indefinite."

His further based his belief in the fairness of the prices asked on information he said he had received that Westchester County "could sell for $800,000" a plot 193 by 100 feet on Mamaroneck Avenue, near the site in question.

"What steps did you take to verify that?" asked Mr. Untermyer.

"Only the information I received," replied Mr. Washburn.

"Did you take any means to verify it?" insisted Mr. Untermyer.

"Only the word of Mr. Barrett," replied Mr. Washburn.

Mr. Washburn testified that the values he had heard quoted for the two neighboring parcels made him feel it was unnecessary to investigate the value of the site bought by the Supervisors. Members of the board took speedy action because they understood the options would expire.

Asked About Signing Report.

"Why did you sign this report?" asked Mr. Untermyer, reading from the recommendations made under date of July 1 by the Committee on Budget and Appropriations to the Board of Supervisors:

"We have investigated the property in question, have investigated the values of the property and the prices as fixed by the various options and are of the opinion that it is for the best interests of Westchester County at this time prior to any additional increase in the value of the property in this vicinity, to acquire this property for the future needs of the County of Westchester."

Mr. Untermyer also was unable to elicit from the witness information as to any purchaser who would buy the so-called school site from the county at the $800,000 figure. He had asked Mr. Washburn, as he had two other Supervisors, why he had signed the report which contained this paragraph:

"It is possible at the present time to dispose of the Mamaroneck Avenue frontage of the school site property which will be less than one-half of the area of the school site, for a sum which will be sufficient to pay the entire cost of the property which we herein recommend be purchased."

Charles D. Millard, Supervisor from Tarrytown, describing himself as a real estate lawyer, said he had hurried back to White Plains to place himself at the disposal of Mr. Untermyer. He testified that he voted for the purchase of the site with a clear conscience "absolutely," and that he gained an idea of its value by his daily presence in White Plains.

"I pass it every other day," he said. "That helps a little."

After Mr. Untermyer had brought from him an admission that he personally caused no independent appraisal to be made, he pleaded:

"I'm a poor country lawyer. Don't take advantage of me by asking catch questions."

Haight Tells of Conference.

When George S. Haight, Supervisor from Mount Vernon, arrived for the hearing in the Chamber of the Board of Supervisors, he was asked by Mr. Untermyer to explain where he had been. He said he had been in the office of the County Attorney, William A. Davidson, for a consultation and added that other Supervisors had been there. Mr. Untermyer asked him the purpose of the conference, and Mr. Haight replied that it was to look over the minutes of the meeting of the Supervisors on July 1, when they voted to purchase the site. Mr. Haight answered in the negative when asked whether he had been asked to go to the conference in the County Attorney's office.

In examining Mr. Haight, Mr. Untermyer established that the Federal Government had purchased for $127,000 a corner plot about half the size of the parcel in question in the same neighborhood on Grand and Quarapas Streets.

The hearing was adjourned until 10:30 o'clock on Thursday morning.

Carries a Bottle on His Hip, But Finds It Nitroglycerine

CHICAGO, Aug. 19 (AP).—The little bottle which W. B. Martin was carrying on the hip last night looked innocent enough. He found it in the basement of the drug store where he works, put it in his pocket and went for an automobile ride.

The contents got a thorough shaking, for with all respect to the Department of Streets and Alleys, some of the city's thoroughfares are not everything they might be.

Riding here and there, Martin thought at last of the bottle. What might it contain? Upon sudden thought, perspiration beaded his brow. He drove cautiously to a police tation, where the sergeant took a quick glance and doused the bottle in water.

"I congratulate you," the sergeant said, "in being able to be up and about. At a rough estimate, there is in that bottle enough nitroglycerine to render you, I should say, virtually extinct."

INQUIRY IN LAVALETTE.

Court Orders One After Misuse of Borough Funds Is Charged.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 19.—Supreme Court Justice Joseph L. Bodine today ordered Walter R. Darby, State Commissioner of Municipal Accounts, to investigate the financial affairs of the borough of Lavalette, Ocean County. This decision was reached following a hearing on a petition of several taxpayers for such action.

It was alleged that more than $300,000 was illegally appropriated for a sewer system and that a contract for a part of the sewer had been let to Linus R. Gilbert of Bound Brook at $1,119,958.50, although two lower bids had been received. It was also charged that borough officials with private businesses have been allowed to do work for the borough and have received payment, acts which are said to be contrary to the crimes act.

Justice Bodine directed Darby to report in about ten days so that it might be determined whether an extended inquiry is needed.

OLD SCHOOL RECORDS INSPECTED BY GRAVES

New System Which Makes City's Educational History Accessible Praised by State Official.

Frank P. Graves, State Commissioner of Education, inspected yesterday in the basement of the Board of Education Building, at Park Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, the new record system which makes accessible the whole history of education in the city of New York. He was escorted by Dr. George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, past row upon row of metal cabinets and steel book cases containing the old records, and characterized the system as "astounding." It was organized recently by Joseph Miller Jr., secretary of the board, and is said to be the most complete in the country.

On a shelf of old records, going back as far as 1812, Dr. Graves found a volume containing considerable matter about his father, who was a member of the Brooklyn Board of Education in 1887. It was the finding of this particular record that prompted Dr. Graves to use the expression "astounding."

On other shelves he found blueprints of school buildings erected long before the Civil War, records of proceedings at which sat men now dead for many years and complete archives of the now defunct Department of Public Lectures, whose free lectures crowded the school buildings before the first moving picture palace came to Broadway.

Dr. Graves had an opportunity to observe the successful fight that the Record Bureau is waging against a stream that occasionally seeps into the record rooms from its subterranean channel under Fifty-ninth Street. A strange decomposition that attacks books scarcely twenty years old but leaves others a century old unharmed was discussed and a chemist assigned to study the problem.

SIGHTED YACHT AT SEA.

Liner Radios Unidentified Small Vessel Reported "All Well."

"On Aug. 16 at 5:40 A. M. in Lat. 38.42 degrees N., Long. 16.35 W., in fine weather, we passed by a small two-masted yacht with triangular boom sails and jib. Unable to distinguish name. Requested to be reported 'New York All well.' Believe two persons aboard."

The position indicated in the message is slightly northeast of the Azores.

THE INSIDE OF PROHIBITION

By Mabel Walker Willebrandt

Former Assistant United States Attorney General in Charge of Prohibition Cases.

Copyright 1929 by Current News Features, Inc. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world.

In this article Mrs. Willebrandt discusses the clarifying and interpreting of the statutes applying to prohibition offenses which preceded the passage of the famous Jones law.

CHAPTER 16—PUTTING THE LAW IN LAW ENFORCEMENT.

Before there can be any kind of effective law enforcement, there has to be law, very definite and very certain, to enforce. One of the great complaints of the anti-prohibitionists has been that the things done in the name of prohibition enforcement have been beyond the law. Some of that is right. With any new statute it is of the utmost importance early to clarify its interpretation and unify its application. This can be done only by carrying disputed points to the highest courts for settlement. Much of my effort in the past eight years has been in that direction.

I have watched vigilantly for about eight years the decisions of courts on difficult interpretation of liquor laws in the ninety-two districts of the United States. When a variety of opinion arose between judges I have worked to get the question before higher courts. When harmony of interpretation could not be obtained in the various Circuit Courts of Appeal, the question has been brought to the Supreme Court of the United States. Just winning the case is much less important than clarifying the law.

With the able assistance of Mahlon D. Kiefer, who has headed the appeals section in my office, and Sewall Key, who though primarily on tax work has rendered yeoman service on many briefs, I have submitted 278 cases on certiorari briefs to the Supreme Court of the United States, and have helped to settle finally disputed interpretations in nearly two scores of cases, argued and briefed, on the merits. Every one of these decisions brought certainty where legal confusion had been before.

Have you not often been in doubt whether prohibition agents have a right to stop cars on the road? So had we until the law was settled about three years ago. The case of United States vs. Carroll, 267 U. S. 132, was briefed and argued twice in an effort to decide whether a car can be stopped on the highway without agents first getting a search warrant. The Supreme Court itself deliberated over the matter for many months. The Chief Justice finally handed down an opinion in twenty pages which reviewed the law from ancient times, and decided that although agents cannot stop that way any time they please, they may, without a search warrant, stop one the movements of which they have observed enough to be reasonably certain of its violation of law.

Blow at Rum-Runners.

This decision has proved to be a bulwark of strength in dealing with rum-runners along the border. The court made it plain that every case must rest on its own facts. But the facts which they held sufficient to stop and search the Carroll car were: First, the agents' knowledge that it had previously been used to carry liquor; second, the fact that it was proceeding from the Canadian border, and third, that its springs were very heavily weighted down with an unusual load.

The public is very liable to break into criticism without waiting to know the facts when prohibition agents stop cars. It is well to remember that the Supreme Court of the United States has spoken affirmatively in upholding their right to do so, under some circumstances.

Another recent victory in interpreting and strengthening the prohibition law is the case of United States vs. Marron, 275 U. S. 192. Bootleggers keep their books just like business men. They record the amount of liquor handled and the payments of graft to the police officers and others on whose protection they depend. Because of the constitutional guarantee to protect a defendant from having to testify against himself and to protect his books and papers from seizure without a search warrant, most courts at first refused to allow bootleggers' and other lawbreakers' books, which are kept to record their illegal business, to be used against them.

Government agents in the Marron case went into a "blind pig" in San Francisco. They arrested the proprietors and seized their books. There was much difference of opinion between government lawyers as to whether such evidence could be used. With deep conviction I briefed and argued the view that the Constitution never intended to throw a mantle of protection around records of crime found incident to the arrest of a lawbreaker. The Supreme Court upheld this view.

Crook Learns Respect for Law.

Settling the law in this respect has proved of great value in the offensive against big liquor violators. They recognize it, too. Recently I listened to testimony, in the McNeil Island Penitentiary, of a bootlegger who described how, after the Marron case, the ring of which he was a member constructed a room under their garage. It opened by a trapdoor in the garage floor which responded to an electric switch. In this vault all books and papers were kept and all records of graft payments and accountings between the partners in crime. He said:

"We weren't going to argue with the Supreme Court after that Marron case. We run the risk of our books revealing all the inner workings of our business. I am here taking my jolt, but there are a lot of our crowd still out because you didn't get our books when you arrested me."

I have always felt that the worst prohibition offender is the agent or official who shuts his eyes to some "favored" violator's acts. It used to be generally believed, however, that there was no way to punish such an agent other than by reprimanding or firing him. This gave him, merely because he wore a badge, a kind of sanctimonious immunity that always rankled in me. A case entitled United States vs. Donnelly, 276 U. S. 505, arose, involving this very question.

The Prohibition Director of a Western State was convicted of refusing to prosecute a rum-runner when he had plain evidence of his violation of law. The Prohibition Director defended himself on the ground that the prohibition act punished only commissions of crime, not omissions on the part of agents who failed to report crime. It was a nice legal point. Lawyers here were split over it and the Supreme Court itself was even finally divided. But I insisted that Congress intended to catch defaulting agents just as much as bootleggers.

Mr. Mitchell, Attorney General (then Solicitor General), turned down my first brief and wrote one himself on the other side of the question. When the case was set down for argument again, I persisted in my view and Attorney General Mitchell, like the fair-minded lawyer that he is, said:

"Go ahead. File the brief according to your own views, but I can't sign it with you."

We had much friendly rivalry in the department over the fact that I went before the court to argue a view of the law with my superior officer's brief on file presenting the other side. The outcome, however, left the smile with me, for although two justices dissented, the Supreme Court's majority opinion adopted my interpretation of the law. And the opinion was written by Justice Butler—Attorney General Mitchell's former law partner and close friend. He said (page 572):

Diligence and good faith on the part of enforcement officers are essential . . . The infliction of punishment for their intentional violations is an appropriate means to hold them to the performance of their duties.

This opinion has had a noticeably wholesome and cleansing effect on agents and United States attorneys alike.

When Foreign Nations Object.

Not only has it been necessary to strengthen the law at home by securing a final interpretation by higher courts of questionable sections of it, but it has been essential to deal with other knotty problems involving international law to keep the country from being flooded with liquor from foreign shores.

The raiding of a bootleg establishment in Chicago without proper search warrant does not produce very serious consequences; but the seizure of a British ship, even though actually laden with intoxicating liquor intended for thirsty American throats, may produce very serious consequences if the seizure has not been in accordance with international law. One consequence may be the payment of heavy damages by the United States Government, and another and even more serious consequence is the building up of bad feeling between nations.

The extent of the rum-running business between foreign shores and the United States may be gauged by the fact that within two years after we had made a treaty with England extending the distance within which we might make captures fifty-six British rum-running vessels were seized. There were, of course, many other British rum ships, as well as ships of other nations loaded with liquor for America, that either were not detected or were not captured.

The Grace and Ruby.

In 1921 the hovering operations of foreign vessels, mostly flying the British flag, amounted to a national scandal. As a practical matter, most of "Rum Row" hovered from twelve to twenty miles off shore, but sent their cargoes in, close to land, by means of small dories. It was like catching mosquitos to apprehend these dories. If the parent ships were seized outside of the three-mile limit, into which they seldom ventured, England and other foreign countries under whose flags they were registered would protest, and usually the State Department would turn the ship loose.

One day the Assistant United States Attorney at Boston reported to me a set of facts that I felt sure would admit of a vigorous policy on the part of the United States Government and perhaps make some new law on the subject. The Grace and Ruby was hovering about ten miles off Gloucester, Mass. Men came out from the shore in a motorboat, the Wilkin II. A part of the Grace and Ruby's crew helped to load liquor into the Wilkin II, and then climbed into a dory which belonged to the parent schooner, tied it to the Wilkin II and went ashore. Not only was the Wilkin II seized, but also the parent ship. Great Britain made protest.

I became so interested in seeing the law crystallized by carrying the case to court that I went over to the State Department and literally took off my hat and coat and rolled up my sleeves to argue with solicitors of that department and representatives of the British Government. I could not bear to see the United States miss the chance of turning one of Great Britain's own decisions against her.

That was one where the British schooner Araunah had been hovering off seal banks but sent her crew and small boats within a foreign government's territorial water to kill seals. The British Government had agreed that that constituted an offense by the parent ship. In other words, the parent ship had made constructive entry into foreign territorial waters by means of her own small boats, crew and tackle.

That was the argument we put up in the Grace and Ruby case. The court sustained it and the United States Government held this rum ship. This theory of constructive entry seriously hampered Rum Row.

In her next article to be published tomorrow Mrs. Willebrandt will record some of the legal adventures affecting malt and yeast and explain her position in regard to the famous Jones law.

2 BUILDINGS FALL, INJURE 10 WORKERS

15 WERE SHORING WALLS

Policemen and Firemen Dig for Hours on Erroneous Reports That Laborers Were Buried.

Groaning and sending out a great gust of dust the retaining walls of a pair of three-story buildings at 246 and 248 Eighth Avenue, at Twenty-third Street, collapsed early yesterday. Ten workmen were injured, two seriously enough to call for hospital treatment.

The fall of the walls, which tumbled while a gang of fifteen men was reinforcing them, echoed through the neighborhood. A large force of firemen and policemen worked for several hours digging into the débris on reports that several laborers had been caught in the collapse. The reports proved untrue.

The collapsed walls tore down the flooring and this piled a story high, some of it overlapping on the sidewalk. Only the fact that the collapse was signaled by rumbling and jets of mortar dust as small bindings gave way prevented loss of life. At the first sound of danger the workmen started out of the buildings.

The Injured Workers.

The injured are:

BLIGH, JAMES, 35 years old, a negro, of 32 West Ninety-ninth Street; abrasions of left arm.

BRACCA, JAMES, 31, of 875 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn; internal injuries; St. Vincent's Hospital.

CARR, WILLIAM, 20, of 236 Kingsland Avenue, Brooklyn; shock.

DORACIO, VITO, 35, of 8 Vandervoort Place, Brooklyn; abrasions.

The buildings, formerly consisting of apartments, furnished rooms and stores, were being remodeled for apartments and for a ground floor restaurant. The work was in charge of Abraham Wasserman, a contractor, of 3,636 Gunhill Road, the Bronx, whose brother was injured.

The fifteen men were hard at work, shoring the structure, when the central retaining wall gave way at 8:25 A. M. The crackling noise had warned them, and their foreman, Charles Rose, shouted for all to get out. Wasserman and Bracca, the last to get out, were struck by a plank and by débris, flying bits of the structure injured the others.

Patrolman Michael Davis witnessed the crash from his post at Twenty-third Street and Eighth Avenue. He said the front wall crumbled and in a few seconds the general collapse followed.

Streets Filled With Apparatus.

The policeman ran to a telephone booth in a drug store and notified the West Twentieth Street station. Patrolman Jacob Piazza, in command of the rescue squad of that station, was the first to arrive. Calls for fire-fighting apparatus brought Deputy Chief George Ross and apparatus that stretched north and south of the buildings for several blocks. The absence of fire caused all but four companies to be dismissed.

Drs. Doyle of St. Vincent's, Goldwater and Brewer of Bellevue, and Lemcke of New York Hospital, responded. They remained on duty until the débris had been cleared sufficiently to disclose that no injured or dead had been buried in the collapse.

Frederick C. Kuenle, Chief Inspector of the Bureau of Buildings, examined the buildings on either side of the fallen structure and pronounced them safe.

All traffic between Twenty-first and Twenty-fourth Streets on Eighth Avenue was halted for about an hour.

EX-DRY OFFICIAL SUES MRS. WILLEBRANDT

Gus O. Nations of St. Louis Charges He Was Libeled in Prohibition Article.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, and the Current News Features Company, were made defendants in a $1,000,000 libel suit filed here today by Gus O. Nations, former chief of the St. Louis Federal prohibition enforcement unit.

Mr. Nations, under garnishment proceedings, also tied up funds due Mrs. Willebrandt from The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which has published her articles on prohibition and its enforcement.

Mr. Nations charges the articles were intended to make the public understand that he, while acting as Federal prohibition agent in St. Louis, had been guilty of official misconduct in connection with the Griesedieck brewery case.

The petition, signed by Mr. Nations as his own attorney, refers to an excellent reputation and wide acquaintanceships which Mr. Nations enjoyed during the tenure of his office from Jan. 12, 1923, to June 30, 1924, and during the years following until the publication of articles by Mrs. Willebrandt, the first one of which tells, according to Mr. Nation, how Mrs. Willebrandt "had to fight the Anti-Saloon League to remove a popular agent," which, the plaintiff believes referred to his activities and experiences.

Mr. Nations also cited alleged charges by Mrs. Willebrandt that the government had to fight the Anti-Saloon League when it protected Heber Nations, brother of Gus, and then labor commissioner of Missouri, who was accused of "helping to flood his territory with high-powered beer."

GRAND JURY GETS DATA ON TIPSTERS

Hears Officials of Air Company as Postal Inspectors Keep Up Drive.

BROKERS STILL SOUGHT

Lawyer Promises to Surrender Two Men Today—Federal Agents Get Safe Deposit Keys.

United States Attorney Tuttle took his bucket-shop and stock tipster clean-up drive before the Federal Grand Jury yesterday morning. At the same time he announced that ten postoffice inspectors and a large staff of accountants were being kept busy with the drive. Meanwhile Arthur H. Montgomery and Gerald Tiffany, alleged heads of Hadley & Co., brokers, of 1 Broadway, remained unlocated throughout the day.

The evidence presented before the grand jury was about the activities of the two men, particularly in the sale of stock in Airvia Transportation Company, Inc., Mr. Tuttle said. Mr. Tuttle reiterated that neither the Airvia company, nor Costal Airways, Inc., sales of whose stock has also been touched upon in the preliminary investigation, was involved in any of the alleged violations of law which the authorities maintain have been committed through dealings in their stocks.

Says Clients Will Surrender.

Late in the afternoon David P. Siegel, acting as attorney for the two men sought by the authorities, conferred with Mr. Tuttle, ostensibly to learn what bail would be expected if his two clients surrendered. It is understood that Mr. Tuttle declined to go into the matter, but Mr. Siegel, nevertheless, announced that both Montgomery and Tiffany would surrender at the Federal Building this morning.

Mr. Tuttle said, however, that the large force of postoffice inspectors searching for the two would continue their efforts. If the men are found they will be arraigned on charges of mail fraud.

The grand jury yesterday heard Joseph J. Strassburg, formerly president of the Airvia company, and subsequently its attorney; Bessie Strassburg, his sister, who served as assistant secretary of the company, using the name "A. F. Rowe," and Oscar Mandel, treasurer of the company. It is understood that Miss Strassburg admitted that she was "A. F. Rowe."

In the questioning of witnesses, it is understood an effort was made to identify John J. Brownley, about whom the authorities know only that he lived in Newark. Persons connected with sales of stock in the Airvia Company have said that Brownley in large measure controlled the marketing of stock of several aviation companies.

Forced to Turn Over Keys.

On leaving the Grand Jury room, Miss Strassburg was required by Post Office Inspectors to turn over keys in her possession, including at least two safe deposit box keys. Last Friday Miss Strassburg was said to have told Assistant U. S. Attorney Mintzer that no safe deposit boxes had been used in the transactions of Hadley & Co. Yesterday she is said to have admitted that both Montgomery and herself had boxes at the Equitable Safe Deposit Co. They were held under the names of Arthur Burt and Bessie Burt, she said. She said that on Saturday she had opened the boxes in company with Montgomery's son and removed sealed envelopes which she turned over to her companion.

Mr. Tuttle said yesterday that there was information in his possession indicating that Tiffany's real name is Harry Taylor, and that he used both names in his business dealings.

According to computations made by Chief Postoffice Inspector Charles H. Claraham, the telephone business of fraudulent dealers in stocks and stock market tips, who have scurried for cover since the authorities began the present drive, has shrunk 150,000 calls a day. The widespread activity of such concerns, according to Mr. Tuttle, was also indicated by the contents of his morning mail yesterday. It included fifty-two complaints from citizens who have been victimized in stock selling schemes. A number of these complaints, according to Mr. Tuttle, were in enterprises in which the investigation has already begun, while others told of alleged fraudulent schemes of which the authorities have had no previous knowledge.

LONG BEACH CRASH INQUIRY

Public Service Commission Inspectors Begin Investigation.

Inspectors from the office of Randolph H. Nexsen, deputy chief engineer of the Public Service Commission, were at Long Beach, L. I., yesterday investigating the crash of the twelve-car Long Island Railroad train against a twelve-ton concrete bumper at the Long Beach station at 12:26 P. M. Sunday. At the office of Mr. Nexsen it was said that a report of the investigation would not be made public for a day or two.

According to the report filed in the office of the Public Service Commission yesterday morning fifty-seven persons were injured in the wreck. The majority of these, however, were said to have been only slightly hurt.

Alimony Defaulter Saved From Jail.

Supreme Court Justice Collins decided yesterday that Max Strong, who owes $809 back alimony in a suit by Mrs. Alice Strong of the Hotel Ambassador Edgemere, L. I., in which she got $30 a week pending the trial, need not go to jail for contempt of court if he pays the arrears at $1 a week with the current alimony. The court found that Strong was unable to pay because his wife had him put in jail twice, as a result of which he was unemployed for a time. She recently received a $75,000 legacy.

Aviation Notes by Will Rogers, Who Owns 3 Cars and 25 Steeds

To the Editor of The New York Times:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 19.—With the morning papers stating that we had 11,000 miles of lighted airways, a Zeppelin with sixty people going around the world in less time than a Congressman can make a speech, with twenty more or less beautiful airheaded women who have exchanged their kimonos for helmets and goggles, with our great navy flier Williams tuning up to go 350 miles an hour, and me feeding two Fords and a Buick and twenty-five head of horses, it just looks like I am out of tune with progress. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

P. S.—They are aviators, but they are still women. They had only been out sixty miles when they all struck and wanted to have it their way.

CLOAK BOARD PLANS SWEATSHOP FIGHT

Its First Official Act Is to Order Thorough Inquiry Into Sub-Standard Conditions.

STATE IS ASKED TO HELP

Commission Urges Miss Perkins to Have Plants Inspected for Labor Law Violations.

A declaration of war against sweatshop conditions in the cloak and suit trade was the first official act of the commission of the cloak and suit industry, which held its first meeting yesterday in the offices of Raymond V. Ingersoll, impartial chairman of the industry, at 132 West Thirty-first Street.

Under the direction of Mr. Ingersoll, who was named executive director of the commission, a group of subcommittees will conduct a three-month investigation of sweatshop conditions in the industry. The recommendations to be made by Mr. Ingersoll will form the basis for action by the full commission.

The commission adopted a resolution calling upon Frances Perkins, State Commissioner of Labor, to cooperate with the campaign by causing systematic inspections to be made of plants in the needlework trades during September and October, to facilitate enforcement of the labor laws.

The resolution emphasized the need for checking insanitary and substandard conditions said to be prevalent in violation of the law.

The commission, which was created after Governor Roosevelt had intervened in the recent strike of 30,000 cloakmakers, consists of twelve members. Three, including George W. Alger, the chairman, were appointed by Governor Roosevelt. The International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, the Industrial Council of Cloak and Suit Workers, the Merchants' Ladies' Garment Association and the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association each has two representatives. Mr. Ingersoll serves as the unanimous selection of the other members.

Alger Outlines Plans.

After announcing the choice of Mr. Ingersoll as executive director, Mr. Alger voiced the commission's intention to wage intensive warfare upon sweatshop and all substandard conditions in the industry. The commission will not act, however, Mr. Alger declared, until it has investigated conditions thoroughly and laid the foundation for recommendations in which all interests may be expected to concur.

In a statement issued after the meeting Mr. Alger said that the past two months have brought a large measure of unity into the industry. In the metropolitan area, he said, 531 firms not previously affiliated with the union have entered into contracts with it.

Mr. Alger reported an increase of membership in the Industrial Council of Manufacturers from 157 to 277 and an increase from 53 to 55 in the American Association of Manufacturers. The sub-manufacturers' group, he said, has increased its membership from 406 to 868 and has added 156 Brooklyn shops to its roster.

"One of the functions of this commission," Mr. Alger declared, "is to enlist the aid of the great fair-minded American buying public in support of decency and fair standards in this essential industry. It is part of the business of this commission to study and apply methods of extending and making public facts which will enable public opinion to function intelligently by putting its support on the side of industrial fair play. This will be done. In the meantime the existing and developing cooperation of the industry will give the commission a foundation for asking fair cooperation from the great retail interests, and it promises well for the elimination of sweatshop conditions where such conditions still exist."

Impending Strike Discussed.

The meeting was attended by all members of the commission except Mrs. Caspar Whitney, one of Governor Roosevelt's appointees; Max Meyer of the Industrial Council and Jacob Sperber of the Merchants' Ladies' Garment Association, who was represented by Samuel Blumberg.

Before the meeting Morris W. Haft of the manufacturers discussed informally with Isidor Nagler, a workers' representative, the advisability of calling off the impending strike of 7,000 embroiderers until conditions in the cloak industry were settled. Those who attended the meeting declined to say whether the matter was discussed in the formal session.

Lieutenant Governor Lehman, it was announced, will speak at a testimonial luncheon in honor of Mr. Ingersoll at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel tomorrow. Other speakers will be Morris Hillquit and Benjamin Schlesinger for the union, Harry Uviller for the contractors, Samuel Blumberg for the jobbers and Henry H. Finder and John L. Wilkin for the "inside shop" manufacturers. The luncheon is being given by a joint committee representing these groups.

COTTON GROWERS GET AID OF FARM BOARD

Cooperatives Obtain Loans Enabling Them to Pay Members All Cash for Crop.

FIVE TO 10 MILLIONS READY

Board Will Advance 25%, Credit Banks 65% and the Cooperative Itself 10%.

MARKET HEDGING REQUIRED

Agreement Specifies That Definite Value Must Be Fixed on Cotton Involved.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—By making available from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 to cotton cooperatives of the South, the Federal Farm Board will assure them sufficient funds to handle their part of this year's crop, the board announced today. The arrangement already includes the fourteen State organizations operating in the American Cotton Growers Exchange and the Staple Cotton Cooperative Association of Greenwood, Miss.

The board said the sum to be advanced is an elastic one, and that the exact amount would depend upon the year's marketing operations. If more is needed by the cotton cooperatives included, or others who are able to comply with the board's conditions, it will be forthcoming.

The important point, the board felt, was that with funds which the cooperatives already are able to command the advance gives them about 90 per cent of the value of the cotton they handle, and will enable them to make full payments to their members who are in distress.

Intermediate Credit Banks Aid.

The associations are able to obtain through the intermediate credit banks 65 per cent of the value of the cotton handled, and it is the board's purpose to add 25 per cent of the remaining value, leaving the associations to finance, from their reserves or otherwise, the 10 per cent left. The board stipulates that its part of the loan is on cotton on which a definite value has been fixed by hedging in the futures market.

"The general financing program will be discussed at a conference on Wednesday between presidents of the Southern intermediate credit banks and the Federal Farm Loan Board under which they operate.

The American Cotton Growers' Exchange is the selling agency for about 300,000 cooperative members producing in fourteen States where associations affiliated with the Exchange are maintained.

Carl Williams of Oklahoma City, member of the board, said it is ready to make any necessary advances to the cooperatives, and that the range of advances mentioned was only an estimate, as neither the cooperatives nor the board knew now what would be required.

"The cooperatives can get all the money they need," Mr. Williams said.

"The arrangement will permit the organizations to operate more efficiently and serve the growers better than ever before; to meet the demands of the growers and at the same time preserve an orderly marketing."

Edgar Markham Takes Board Post.

The board announced the appointment of Edgar Markham as assistant to the chairman of the board in charge of press relations. Mr. Markham has been Washington correspondent for The St. Paul Pioneer-Press and St. Paul Dispatch for twelve years.

The board's announcement of the loan to cotton cooperatives follows:

"Following a number of conferences with officials at the American Cotton Growers Exchange, the Federal Farm Board has tentatively agreed to make certain financial advances to cotton cooperative associations of the South to assist in the movement of the year's crop.

"These associations are now able to obtain loans from the Federal intermediate credit banks to the amount of 65 per cent of the value of the cotton. The Federal Farm Board proposes to loan an additional 25 per cent—a total of 90 per cent for the two government agencies—on cotton on which a definite value has been fixed by hedging in the futures market.

"The total volume of advances of this sort to be made by the Federal Farm Board will be limited only by the actual requirements of the cotton cooperative associations. It is expected that the sum involved for this year's marketing operations will run somewhere between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000.

"The effect of the secondary loans by the Federal Farm Board will be to permit the cooperative association to make final settlement with the member-grower when the latter desires to sell his cotton, without forcing that cotton onto the market at a time when buyers may already be oversupplied.

"From the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and the Federal Farm Board, the association will receive advances equal to 90 per cent of the fixed value. In this amount, the cotton associations will add 10 per cent from their own capital reserves, will pay in full the grower who is in distress and must have money, and will at the same time be able to merchandise the cotton in an orderly fashion as the spinning mills of the world require it."

Sees Great Help to Industry.

Discussing the action of the Farm Board, Philip S. Weld, acting president of the New York Cotton Exchange, stated yesterday that the move would no only be of great help to the industry, but also was a tribute to the efficiency of the various cotton exchanges.

The action, Mr. Weld said, emphasizes the recognition on the part of government bodies that the exchanges exert a stabilizing influence in the American cotton industry.

SHAW'S NEW PLAY PRAISES ENGLAND

HAS USUAL GOOD NONSENSE

Threat of United States to Annex Island Unlooses Dialectic on Irresponsible Democracy.

By CHARLES MORGAN.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MALVERN, England, Aug. 19.—The audience at the Malvern Theatre, where Bernard Shaw's new play, "The Apple Cart," was performed privately yesterday and again tonight, received it well. Except in rhetorical fragments it is not Mr. Shaw at his full range; in one section which is independent of the others it is Mr. Shaw at his worst; but the first and last acts taken together are good entertainment and make up a pamphlet on democracy which may silence many catchwords and charm away many pious delusions.

Mr. Shaw appears to have discovered England. Who would have thought, in another August, fifteen years ago, that a Shavian mouthpiece wold even tell, except with the tongue in the cheek, of "this little gem set in the silver sea"? The jewel may not indeed be quite of the same water as the "precious stone" preferred by another patriotic dramatist, but is it not gratifying to find an author of "common sense about the war" even roughly in agreement with John of Gaunt?

It is true that King Magnus of England is hard driven to his little emotional quotation. The American Ambassador has announced to him the decision of the United States to enter (or, as the King sees it, to annex) the British Commonwealth. The unhappy monarch is in despair, feeling that American penetration of his realm already has gone far enough. England's rocky shore may be at "the beck of the envious siege of watery Neptune" but not of American ideas and American money.

"We live,"—it is a pretty Shavianism—"in a world of wops." Hence the unexpected Lancastrian outburst which leavs us to wonder why in the matter of annexation it should have needed an American threat to convert Mr. Shaw.

But he is evidently for the purpose of this play converted and not to patriotism alone. Democracy, King Magnus declares, instead of establishing responsibility has abolished it, and all the rest of the play is a dialogue with this text.

In the first and last acts the King is seen giving an audience to his Cabinet. They are a queer lot. One of the ladies looks and behaves as if her place is the music hall, and Miss Holmes-Gow does it admirably. The other looks but does not behave like a woman undergraduate in a Gilbert and Sullivan opera.

The men are all jobbers or nonentities except Boanerges, a hearty Republican whom a little flattery twists around the royal finger. The Prime Minister, Proteus, is a caricature of adroit political insincerity. The theme is vaguely in the future. They have brought a charter for Magnus to sign. Either he must make a "rubber stamp" of himself or—heavens knows and the Ministers certainly do not know what they will do if he refuses.

Seven men and two women sit down to debate the question. Their debate is twice interrupted—by the coming of the American Ambassador with his message, the delivery of which by James Carew is a highly entertaining piece of serious farce; and by another interlude occupying the whole second act, which is so dull and pointless that it is hard to imagine what persuaded Mr. Shaw to write it.

It is better to keep our noses to the political grindstone, for this does grind ideas and make sparks fly. There is an essay delivered by Magnus on the uses of royalty when democracy has proceeded to its logical conclusion which is as ingenious a piece of dialectics as Mr. Shaw has written. There is another essay on the impossibility of honestly governing a corrupted plutocracy to which Miss Eileen Beldon, although handicapped by fantastic costume, gives persuasive seriousness.

Charles Carson as the Prime Minister is a genuinely wily hypocrite, and Matthew Dolton's republicanisms are excellently good-humored.

At the centre of their discussions is King Magnus, and Cedric Hardwicke, except in the boudoir, where nothing but cardboard could live, exhibits in him a quick intellect, a quiet humor and a rich store of good nonsense that in the best Shavian manner is not nonsense at all.

London Critics Divided on Play.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The London critics were not altogether unanimous in applauding Shaw's play. One of them says it "lacks force because its manifest artificiality throughout made it impossible to believe in any of the characters," including the comic American Ambassador, complete with goatee, beard, goggles and Stars and Stripes.

Under the heading "G. B. S. Fires Damp Squib," Hannen Swaffer in The Daily Express has the hardest knock. He says:

"At the age of 73 Shaw has nothing new to say. The forces which he has created have moved beyond him. He is no longer a prophet but a rather pathetic figure, unconscious of the changes which he has wrought.

"As a criticism of democracy 'The Apple Cart' contains no idea a millionth part as funny as the joke that Philip Snowden, for fear of whom a few panic-stricken millionaires were recently reported to be investing their capital abroad, is now the idol of the British public, with the whole Empire cheering him as the champion of their interests."

Venezuelan Port Still Unsettled.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Aug. 19 (AP).—Conditions were said today to be still unsettled in the vicinity of the Port of Cumana, State of Sucre, Venezuela, where a rebel raid was made a week ago. Revolutionary units were said either to control or to be menacing the port. The Dutch steamer Commewyne arrived here after calling at all other eastern ports in Venezuela.

Central Abolishes Timekeepers.

CORNING, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP).—The office of all timekeepers of the New York Central Lines east of Buffalo will be abolished and the work centralized in the central transportation offices in Syracuse, according to an announcement made here by railroad officials today. The order will go into effect Sept. 22.

CONVENES TO PLAN WORLD PEACE PARLEY

International Religious Committee Gathers in Germany—Nathan Straus Hails Move.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Aug. 19.—Sessions of the Cooperative Community of Confessions of Peace opened here this afternoon. The Cooperative Community was founded last year at Geneva, when a committee of fifty members was appointed and charged with making preparations for a congress in 1930, to which all religious professions and sects will be invited.

The most important question before the session today was as to where this parliament of religions shall meet. Thus far, Jerusalem seems to be favored most.

The session was opened and conducted by Dean Shailer Matthews, president of the theological faculty of the University of Chicago, who reported great progress in the movement and he said that here in Frankfort the ground must be prepared for a great world parliament of peace.

The following cablegram was sent yesterday by Nathan Straus, now in Mamaroneck, N. Y., to the Religious Peace Conference opening in Frankfort-on-Main:

"A world religious conference on international peace is an earnest of the dawn of the day when nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more, for when men of all races and creeds come together and look each in the eyes without fear or mistrust while proclaiming peace and brotherhood as the teaching of all their religions, there is achieved that recognition of world brotherhood out of which world peace can be born.

"I have been taught all my life that there is but one God and all men are equally his children and therefore brothers to one another. Now in the evening of my days I realize more fully than ever that all religions summon their followers to the same fellowship under the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. The day on which the church, synagogue, mosque and temple shall unitedly refuse to sanction war for their followers will be the most glorious in the history of mankind.

"May the World Religious Conference help to bring near that day by focusing men's minds and souls on international peace as one of the noblest ideals of man's religious striving."

INVENTOR IN AUSTRIA CHARGES FRAUD HERE

Doctor Begins Action Against Two Alleged to Have Taken Rights to Stomach Camera.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 19.—A summons has been issued by the Vienna economic police against Baron Andreas Veitzchberger and Engineer Gerhard Back, who are accused by Dr. Joseph Heilpern, assistant to Professor Wenkebach, internal specialist, of having robbed him of the fruits of an invention which, he alleges, they are now exploiting in the United States.

A year ago, Dr. Heilpern said, he invented an apparatus to photograph the interior of the stomach. He employed Back as engineer to perfect the apparatus technically and Baron Veitzchberger was manager and financier, he declared, and with about $3,500 in advance payments the pair went to the United States to introduce the invention there.

In reply to Dr. Heilpern's repeated inquiries, Baron Veitzchberger is alleged to have written:

"Here in the United States, where every barber is an electrician, there are great difficulties in getting the machine taken up. We are compelled to spend our time chewing gum and drinking beer."

Dr. Heilpern said he had discovered that Baron Veitzchberger was interested in a corporation at 511 Fifth Avenue which had manufactured 1,500 of his machines, of which many had been sold. Dr. Heilpern requests the Austrian police to seize Back's passport while he is here on a visit.

Baron Andreas Veitzchberger, at 511 Fifth Avenue, where he has office space, expressed surprise when told of the summons issued in Vienna.

"The three of us are partners," Baron Veitzchberger declared. "I simply cannot understand, for Dr. Heilpern was fully informed as to the nature of our contract and knows that none of us can receive any return from the undertaking at the present time."

The contract, he explained, called for the manufacture of 250 "gastrophoto" instruments, to be sold at $540 apiece. If the entire 250 are sold, he said, he, Dr. Heilpern, and Mr. Back were to divide $150,000 royalties on 1,500 of the instruments.

"Only about forty have been sold so far," he declared.

ROCKS IN CHAIR 401 HOURS.

Mrs. H. B. Schmidt, 20, of Champaign, Ill., Claims a World Record.

Special to The New York Times.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Aug. 19.—What is claimed to be a world's rocking record was made at 1 o'clock this afternoon by Mrs. H. B. Schmidt, 20 years old, who finished 401 hours of rocking in a chair and then concluded she had achieved a record which would stand for some time.

Mrs. Schmidt started rocking at 8 P. M. Aug. 2, with four men and two other women competing in a rocking chair marathon.

On Aug. 14, J. B. Haney of Kansas City, the only remaining contestant, fell asleep at the nend of 280½ hours. Mrs. Schmidt continued teetering in an effort to establish a world's record, and at the end of the 401st hour this afternoon decided she had rocked enough.

BOXER DIES AFTER BOUT.

John Sullivan Succumbs Following Knockout in Jersey City.

John (Kid) Sullivan, a featherweight boxer from Savannah, Ga., died early this morning in the Jersey City Hospital after being knocked out last night in the ninth round of a fight with Herman Follins of Union City at the Oakland Athletic Club in Jersey City. Follins is held by the police.

Sullivan was knocked down twice in the ninth round before Referee Jack Masterly stopped the contest.

In the final bout, between Jose Martinez and Harry Carlson, lightweights, Carlson won on points, but was obliged to go to City Hospital afterward and have two stitches taken in his head. He said Martinez butted him during some infighting.

WILL RADIO FILMS INSTEAD OF RECORDS

Columbia System to Test New Method of Broadcasting Over Nation-Wide Network.

BYRD GOT TRIAL PROGRAM

Duplicate Reproductions on Reels Would Cut Wire Tolls in Routine Programs.

Broadcasting from reels of film instead of phonograph records will be tested this Winter by the Columbia Broadcasting System, a representative of the company said yesterday.

Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation recently acquired a half interest in the Columbia system and it will handle the recording of music and speeches on films.

It was pointed out that the reels of radio program can be sent to the broadcasting stations for use whenever the management desires. A device at the radio studio would reproduce the program over the microphone.

The plan had a preliminary test recently when Paramount recorded speeches by film stars in Hollywood and later broadcast to the Byrd Antarctic Expedition from Atlantic City.

Commander Byrd's favorable report of the clarity of the program is said to have developed the idea of using films in regular broadcasting. By sending duplicate films to each station for routine programs the company would save wire tolls now paid when the radio transmitters are linked together.

The Columbia representative said that the film is far mote economical and easier to handle than wax records as tested at several stations. He pointed out that a wax record often requires several recordings before it is good enough to put on the air, and if even a slight mistake occurs near the end of the recording it must all be done over again. On the other hand, if an error occurs in the reel the film can be cut and fixed at that point and repetition of the entire performance is not necessary.

The radio law of the United States stipulates that mechanical music and talks must be announced as such, but the film people are not adverse to this because, they explain, it affords a natural avenue for advertising on the air when the announcer declares that "this program is recorded and furnished to you by a Paramount film."

"Films are expected to play a greater part in radio," said the Columbia-Paramount representative. "Sound recorded on a film can be broadcast with such clarity that the listener cannot detect whether it is an original performance or a film reproduction. And the next step will be television, when films will, no doubt, record plays and scenes in action for later appearances on the silver screens of radio throughout the world."

TO REVIEW GUARD UNITS.

Major Gen. Smith to Inspect 107th and 108th Regiments Today.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 19.—As the 107th Infantry regiment of Manhattan began target practice and the 108th Infantry of Syracuse, Rochester and up-State cities set to work at combat problems, announcement was made today that Major Gen. W. R. Smith, superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point, would review both regiments tomorrow.

When Major Gen. Smith inspects the 2,100 men he will be accompanied by Colonel R. C. Richardson, Commandant of Cadets at West Point.

Announcement also was made that Major Gen. Fuqua, chief of the infantry division of the regular army, would review the two regiments on Wednesday.

The visiting guests from the regular army while in camp will be entertained by Major Gen. W. N. Haskell, commanding General of the New York National Guard.

He plans to go to Fort Ontario either Thursday or Friday to review the 258th Field Artillery of the Bronx.

KILLS HIMSELF AND FAMILY.

Michigan Man Ended Life of Wife and Four Children.

ROYAL OAK, Mich., Aug. 19 (AP).—Hans Peter Nielson of Royal Oak killed his wife and four children with gas fumes early today and took his own life with poison after setting fire to his house.

Firemen who broke into the flaming house found Mrs. Magdeline Nielson, 35, and her four children, Niels Hans, 9; Bertha, 8; Paul, 6, and Bodell, 2, dead in the bedroom. Every gas jet in the house had been opened. Nielson's body was found in the bathroom.

Over the bodies of his wife and children the father had thrown naphtha, after which he apparently entered the bathroom, took poison, soaked his clothes in naphtha and then set fire to himself.

The house was only slightly damaged. The body of Mrs. Nielson was burned, but those of the children were untouched.

Neighbors said the killing climaxed a night of quarreling.

$7,500 AWAITS PERSON WHO GAVE LIQUOR 'TIP'

Informant Entitled to Quarter of $30,000 Owner Paid to Redeem Great Lakes Yacht.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP).—Despite the lure of money for most folks, $7,500 is lying in the treasury awaiting a claimant.

That is the amount which can be paid, under the 1922 tariff act, to the person who gave information to the Federal authorities which led to the seizure recently at Detroit of the yacht Margo, owned by Bert A. Massee of Chicago and chartered by Louis Mendelssohn of Detroit.

The Federal authorities alleged that they found forty cases of choice liquors aboard the craft, which is the largest pleasure boat in the Great Lakes, and Massee's check for $30,000 was required to redeem it.

Under the tariff act a person giving information to the government to the recovery of "any duties withheld, or any fine, penalty or forfeiture incurred," is entitled to 25 per cent of the amount—in this case $7,500. But no one has claimed it, although one account of the seizure attributes the "tip" to a disgruntled member of the crew to whom $7,500 might be considered worth the asking.

Another story, which, like that one, has official backing, is that the original information came from a woman who had been a guest on the yacht and left the party at Detroit. However, it has not been made entirely clear whether her "tip" was intentional or accidental, or whether her financial situation is such that $7,500 would be less attractive than the chance publicity in connection with such an incident.

SLAIN BY GIRL'S FATHER.

Arkansas Youth Shot Down Just Before Trial Begins.

FOREST CITY, Ark., Aug. 19 (AP).—Clem Summers, an enraged father, today killed T. K. Privett, under indictment on a statutory charge, in the corridor of the St. Francis County Court House here, shortly before his case was called to trial. Summers's daughter was the complaining witness.

Both Privett and Summers, who lived in the Pine Tree community about sixteen miles from this place, were members of prominent St. Francis County families.

Witnesses said Privett, who was 19 years old, and Summers's daughter were talking together in the corridor when Summers saw them, drew a pistol and fired, killing the youth.

Sheriff J. M. Campbell quoted Summers as saying he killed Privett because the latter had sought to delay the hearing.

Summers was held on a first-degree murder charge.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies, and children generally, caused by souring food in the little digestive tract such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book, "Useful Information." It will be sent you FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

Getting Even With the Theatregoer.

"GETTING EVEN," a play in four parts and 36 scenes by Nathaniel Wilson, produced and staged by Mr. Wilson; settings by Cleon Throckmorton. At the Biltmore Theatre.

Whether or not Nathaniel Wilson had some message to convey in "Getting Even," which was snapped out at the Biltmore last evening, was difficult to say. Somewhere beneath its thirty-four staccato scenes, the ugly form of symbolism seemed to be struggling for expression. All that reached the stage, however, and drifted across the footlights was a profusion of clipped words, stiff postures and cloying platitudes. For a time this terse play seemed odd. Then it grew tedious.

But somewhere among the eighteen scenes of the third act, the audience became unruly and gave vent to its torture in gales of mocking laughter. By that time "Getting Even" had definitely established itself as one of the most arduous of the Summer theatrical playthings. And having borne with it for two hours you were entitled to whatever relief you could manage—leaving the play and the players, as the stumbling Jimmy Durante might say, to their own "recorses." When, in the death-bed scene, the nurse concluded the festivities by announcing that she was going for a long walk, her words were received with enthusiasm and the meeting broke up in disorder. Life and theatregoing returned to normal for the rest of the week.

Mr. Wilson's episodic cyclorama was depicting the stormy career of Veronica Mathilda McConnell between the ages of 11 and 22. In the beginning she was Pollyanna of the slums, too good to be true, as succeeding events suggested. Midway she was a precocious brat. At the end she was a young lady of extremely high temperature. She had seen life with many men. She died babbling of green fields, in a private room of the New Rochelle Hospital.

Meanwhile she has been getting even with something that was not disclosed, unless, by chance, it was that concept known broadly as life. She was scandalously betrayed in the first act. After that her scatter-brained ways endeared her beyond all conscience to a scribbling mystic with a lily-like wife, who drifted in and out of the narrative like petals blown by Summer zephyrs. While she was raising the devil in a Maine Summer colony they cherished her. When she was living off the lavish bounty of an A. & P. manager they loved her. The more unspeakable she grew the more irresistible she became in Maine, Larchmont and New Rochelle.

Gradually you perceived that "Getting Even" was not so much "a slice of life", as the billboards declared, as a vehicle for a diminutive actress who has patriotically embraced the name of her State—Georgia Clarke. Heretofore she has appeared in stock companies and road productions, and at the Triangle Theatre. Cast as Veronica Mathilda McConnell she was prominent in at least thirty of the thirty-four scenes in Mr. Wilson's play. Learning the lines for such a part was no mean achievement. But it was her most conspicuous contribution to a long and giddy evening in the theatre.

One block south of the Sheridan Square subway station and a turn to your right is the Grove Street Theatre, which last season was occupied by that band of professional insurgents known as the New Playwrights. Now it has been redecorated in the best Joseph Physioc manner, heavily perfumed and, for some reason not quite clear, renamed the Gansevoort. Last night it was turned over to another hopeful little group of amateur-professionals. Well after the announced hour of 9 they began to perform there "A Noble Rogue," a home made "musical melodrama" about Jean Lafitte, the pirate, who, they would have you believe, was pretty much a somebody in the New Orleans of 1814.

The concoction of such a musical entertainment is an extremely difficult task, probably one of the most difficult in the theatre, and those who have undertaken it in Greenwich Village are to be admired more for their courage than for their achievement. They are, to be sure, under the general direction of Paul Gilmore, himself an old hand in the business, but any advantage gained by that is more than offset by the materials with which Mr. Gilmore had to work. Kenyon Scott's slow, overconventional book was of as little assistance to last night's undertaking as were his early nineteenth century lyrics. His tunes were the best part of the evening, but even they were reminiscent of the lilting, romantic scores of past musical shows, particularly some of those which graced last Spring's season of French musical comedy. The most modern touch appeared to be the introduction for comedy purposes of two effeminate young men, but effeminate young men have long been fixtures of Broadway comedy.

Marguerite Zender sang well and the others gave unstintingly of what presumably was their best. But that best, it is to be feared, will not cause any commotion in the ranks of uptown musical comedy impresarios, from Aarons to Ziegfeld. Following the performance the dramalovers were further entertained by night club specialties in the Persian Gardens above the theatre.

GILLMORE TO CONFER WITH UNION HEADS HERE

Actors Notified Rules on Film Appearances Are Suspended During Parley.

The Actors' Equity Association yesterday officially notified its members here that regulations regarding their appearance in sound and talking motion pictures, in effect since June 5, have been suspended, pending the outcome of conferences between Frank Gilmore, Equity's president, and the heads of the International Studio Crafts Unions, the men concerned with the making and exhibition of motion pictures. Mr. Gillmore is scheduled to leave Los Angeles for New York on Wednesday morning, and the conferences will start upon his arrival.

According to Equity officials, William Canavan, president of the stage employes' union, suggested that Mr. Gilmore come here as soon as possible. At the Equity offices it was hoped that from these negotiations would emerge some solution obviating the necessity of a strike.

It was pointed out that while the Equity regulations were in effect, about 2,000 motion picture contracts, involving salaries said to amount to $500,000, were offered to actors in New York. They were so generally refused, it was said, that only one member, a player brought on from Los Angeles, was suspended in this city.

Actors who were suspended on the coast during the progress of the fight will have to be reinstated individually by the Equity council here, it was added.

The association would not comment on the controversy between Mr. Gillmore and Ethel Barrymore, its first vice president, saying that all statements would have to come from the persons concerned.

Hollywood Cheerful Over Truce.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 19 (AP).—The temporary truce between the Actors' Equity Association and the motion picture producers today brought a new cheerful tone to various film studios and also to thousands of actors who have been fearful for their livelihood during the organization battle.

FRANCE REWARDS SERAFIN.

Conductor of Metropolitan Is Made Chevalier of Legion of Honor.

It was announced yesterday in Paris that Tullio Serafin, leading conductor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, had been made Chevalier of the French Legion of Honor in recognition of his services in the promotion of French music.

This distinction follows brilliant performances of opera which Mr. Serafin has conducted during the Spring season in Paris, and is one of the milestones of an exceptional career which has included engagements as conductor at the Regio Theatre, Turin; La Scala, Milan (four years); the Paris Opera; Covent Garden in London, and the Colon at Buenos Aires.

Three years ago Mr. Serafin began his present engagement as conductor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and the performances which he has directed there have been among the finest that the Metropolitan has provided in recent seasons.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Dinner Is Served" was withdrawn from the Cort Theatre on Saturday night.

"The Subway Murder" is now the title of the play previously called "Murder in the Subway." It will open in Hempstead on Sept. 6 and come to Broadway the week of Sept. 16.

Jane Cowl's play, "Jenny," in which she appeared on tour in the late Spring, again went into rehearsal yesterday. It will reopen at the Cass Theatre, Detroit, on Sept. 9 for two weeks, and come to the Booth Theatre here the week of Oct. 7, after engagements in Cleveland and Buffalo. In the cast are Kay Strahling, Spring Byington, Joyce Carey, Helen Brooks and Ben Lackland.

Jack Donahue will not appear at the Palace next week, as previously announced. He will come there several weeks later.

Lee Wilson Dodd's play, "A Strong Man's House," will open in Jamaica on Sept. 2, with Mary Nash in the principal role. The company will further include Howard Lang, Lester Vail, Robert Strange, A. G. Andrews and Ray Collins. "A Strong Man's House" is scheduled for Broadway on Sept. 16.

Glenda Farrell, last seen in "Skidding," has been engaged for "Divided Honors," now in rehearsal.

Richard W. Krakeur, who was associated with Sam H. Harris during the past season, has been engaged as general manager for Edgar Selwyn.

"Bare Facts," at the Triangle Theatre in Greenwich Village, will hereafter be played on Monday nights instead of Sundays.

"She Got What She Wanted" will reopen at the Windsor Theatre in the Bronx next Monday night with Galina Kopernak again heading the cast. George P. Winitz, the producer, expects to bring Miss Kopernak back to Broadway in a new play after the holidays. He will also sponsor touring productions of "Rio Rita" and "The Vagabond King" this season.

KALTENBORN OPENS SEASON

His Symphony Orchestra Gives Program in Central Park.

Franz Kaltenborn and his symphony orchestra opened their 1929 series of concerts on the Mall in Central Park last night.

The program included, among other items, Wagner's Tannhäuser March, the "March Slav" of Tchaikovsky, Weber's overture to "Der Freischutz, excerpts from Verdi's "Un Ballo in Maschera" and the "William Tell" overture.

Mr. Kaltenborn is to be commended for straying somewhat from the beaten track by including a selection from the opera "Thais" of Massenet, from which the "Meditation" alone is familiar. During the second half of the program, the conductor took up his violin, and in "Tales from the Vienna Woods" proved himself an expert on that instrument.

A large audience was present and marked attention was given to the rendering of the various items, which, on the whole was excellent. The leader of the first violins, who played the "Meditation," referred to above, did so most tastefully. If there were a few anxious moments in "Un Ballo" and the succeeding encore, the piquant orchestrations of "Poupee Valsante" and a fantasy on a cossack dance by Dargomijsky which followed amply atoned and were acknowledged accordingly.

Anna Duncan at Stadium Tonight.

At the Lewisohn Stadium tonight Miss Anna Duncan will give dance interpretations with David Mendoza conducting the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. The following program will be given, commencing at 8:30 P. M.: Symphony No. 4, by Tchaikovsky; "Iphigenia in Aulis," (Air gai-allegro-allegro), by Gluck; Gavotte in E major by Bach; Dance of the Furies from "Orpheus" by Gluck; Three dances from "The Bartered Bride" by Smetana; March Funebre by Chopin; March from "The Damnation of Faust" by Berlioz; Scherzo from Symphony No. 7, by Schubert.

In case of rain, Miss Duncan's appearance will be postponed, and a substitute program will be played in the Great Hall under the conductorship of Hans Lange.

Seek Switch Tamperers in Fatal Wreck.

HENRYETTA, Okla., Aug. 19 (AP).—Spurred on by the finding of a lock from a switch standard on the edge of the town, where a St. Louis-San Francisco passenger train plunged do n an embankment yesterday, sending thirteen persons to their deaths, city and county officers and special railroad investigators today continued their search for persons who they believed maliciously opened the switch.

Tonight is an historic occasion. The art of the speaking screen moves forward to grander heights with this remarkable dramatic portraiture of Negro life. Directed by King Vidor, director of "The Big Parade." It is an entertainment whose daring and reality and vividness make it an imperishable landmark in the annals of stage or screen. It is told with gripping intensity in dialogue that's earthy and true, with songs and dancing. It is destined for a sensational reception accorded few pictures!

Additional midnight performance tonight at Lafayette Theatre. Thereafter midnight performance every Friday.

GERTRUDE SANFORD, EXPLORER, TO MARRY

Engaged to Sidney J. Legendre, Who Was Co-Leader in Abyssinia Expedition.

SISTER OF POLO PLAYER

John Sanford of 9 East Seventy-second Street and Amsterdam, N. Y., has announced the engagement of his younger daughter, Miss Gertrude E. duP. Sanford, to Sidney J. Legendre of New Orleans, La. The engagement, which is of wide interest, comes as a climax to Miss Sanford's recent return from an exploration trip into Abyssinia. Mr. Legendre, with his brother, Morris Legendre, was a member of the expedition.

Miss Sanford, who was graduated from the Foxcroft School in Virginia and later introduced to society in New York, is a member of one of the oldest American Colonial families. Her mother, who died a few years ago, was the former Miss Ethel Sanford, a second cousin of Mr. Sanford. On her mother's side Miss Sanford is a granddaughter of the late General Henry S. Sanford, who was United States Minister to Belgium from 1861 to 1869, and was known as a close friend of King Leopold. General Sanford in later years entered the fruit industry in Florida, and founded the town there which bears his name. Miss Sanford's paternal grandfather, the late Stephen Sanford, was a pioneer Amsterdam carpet manufacturer, whose business was handed on to his son.

Both sides of Miss Sanford's family have long been prominent in sports. Her father has raced horses here and in England. Her brother, Stephen Sanford, is internationally known as a polo player and also has kept race horses. Last September he played No. 1 on the United States team which played the Argentine team in the international matches on Long Island. Mr. Sanford was a member also of the polo team which played the Argentines in Rumson, N. J., in 1926. One of Stephen Sanford's most famous horses was Sergeant Murphy, which won the English Grand National Steeplechase in 1924. During the international polo matches with England in 1924 Miss Sanford's parents entertained the Prince of Wales at The Chimneys, their country place, in Brookville, L. I., near Oyster Bay.

Miss Sanford is a sister of Miss Jane Sanford. Both are members of the Colony Club. Her father was a Representative in Congress from the Saratoga district some years ago.

Her Ventures in Exploration.

Miss Sanford's ventures in big-game hunting and exploration have attracted wide notice. Her most recent trip, which she herself sponsored, was in the interests of the American Museum of Natural History. T. D. Carter, representing the museum, also was a member of the party, which left the United States in November to obtain specimens of rare Abyssinian animals. The expedition was considered the most dangerous undertaken by Miss Sanford, who already had had six years of big-game hunting in Canada, Alaska and South Africa.

Mr. Legendre is a member of an old New Orleans family. He is well known as a sportsman and athlete. He was graduated from Tulane and Princeton universities, where he was prominent in athletics. He and his brother two years ago spent the Winter in Indo-China in the interests of the Field Museum. Sidney Legendre also spent seven months in the South Seas. He and Miss Sanford were co-leaders of the recent trip, which was known as the Sanford-Legendre Abyssinian Expedition.

The wedding of the couple will take place about Sept. 15.

Marks—Kahn.

Mr. and Mrs. David Marks of 43 Johnson Avenue, Newark, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Babbette Marks, to Leo M. Kahn, son of Mrs. Frank J. Kahn of the Hotel Park Central, New York.

Miss Marks attended the Institute of Musical Arts, New York, and also studied at Baden-Baden, Germany. Mr. Kahn was an aviator in the World War.

Childress—Selden.

Special to The New York Times.

SCARSDALE, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Avent Childress of this village have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Mackay Childress, to Edward Gillette Selden of New York City.

Miss Childress is a granddaughter of the late Judge John W. Childress of Nashville, Tenn., and the late George Devereux Mackay of New York. She is a graduate of Miss Spence's School.

Mr. Selden is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Lord Selden of Andover, Mass. He was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1923 and is a member of the Harvard Club of New York.

The wedding will take place in October at the home of the bride.

MARTHA CARL'S BRIDAL.

Attendants Chosen for Her Marriage to H. J. Chase Aug. 27.

Invitations have been received here for the marriage of Miss Martha Grace Carl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Carl of Schenectady, N. Y., to Harold Jasper Chase, son of Mr. and Mrs. Q. T. Chase of Portland, Me. The wedding will take place on Aug. 27 in the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Schenectady, the Rev. Richard Raines, a cousin of the bride-elect and pastor of the Methodist Church of Providence, R. I., officiating.

Miss Carl will have Mrs. Frederick M. Spaugh for her matron of honor and her sister, Miss Charlessa Carl, for her maid of honor. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Lillian Carl, also a sister, and the Misses Isabelle Roberts, Elizabeth Van Cleve and Katherine Moore. Clarence Heisler will be best man. The ushers will be Carl Bryant, Frederick M. Spaugh, E. S. Thompson, Ashton Swick, Douglass Swick, Herman Bullwinkle, Norman Hadley, William Korff and Charles Flint.

The ceremony will be followed by a reception at the country home of the bride's parents on the Troy Road.

Danish King's Yacht in Collision.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Danish royal yacht Danneborg, with King Christian and Queen Louisa aboard, was in collision with the Japanese steamer Matsumoto Maru today. The yacht, lying in port here, was damaged slightly on the bow side, which was easily repaired. The King and Queen remained on board and will sail tonight on a cruise.

Marymount Students Return.

Among the passengers on board the Cunard liner Laconia, arriving yesterday, was a group of students of Marymount College, Tarrytown, who have just completed an extensive tour abroad. They were received in private audience by the Pope and presented to him a special copy of "Elan," the college year book. In France they were entertained at the Paris branch of the college. The following students won distinction at the Sorbonne this year: Miss Marjorie Lynch, Waterbury, Conn.; Miss Catherine Ginn, Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Fidella Waite, New York City.

Lancashire Mills Hum Again.

MANCHESTER, England, Aug. 19 (AP).—Lancashire went to work today after three weeks of paralysis of the cotton industry. The drone of machinery as 500,000 mill hands went to their tasks, and smoke pouring from tall chimneys all through the factory towns, proclaimed the end of the stoppage that cost workers and employers many millions of pounds sterling. Only the card rooms, where workers return tomorrow, were silent.

Accumulation

It is not a man's income so much as his ability to conserve a part of his earnings and increase it by careful investing that spells success.

The development of "Odd Lot" purchases of securities enables the investor to accumulate good issues, without waiting until he has accumulated a comparatively large sum.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

With no change in money rates from last week's final figures, yesterday's stock market engaged in another advance of the character which has become familiar. Some stocks which have lately been advancing were sold in the early trading, and a reasonable number of them, mostly among the oil and railway shares, lost ground for the day. But any reactionary trend displayed in those quarters was obscured by the very rapid bidding-up of prices for half a dozen industrial stocks of various descriptions, under the lead of United States Steel. This stock had at one time gained 10 points; the others which participated in the movement scored maximum advances ranging from 6 to 21 points.

In general, the rest of the market followed this movement, though at a respectful distance. Taken as a whole, the day's movement again reflected the market's indifference to the higher bank rate, the tightening money of the moment, or the uncertainties surrounding the money market's course in the coming Autumn. In the present attitude of the speculative community, as on many previous occasions of the kind, a swift advance in prices on top of an already abnormal rise is accepted as an assurance of an indefinitely continued upward flight, and the stringent money market is dismissed either as an artificial contrivance of a malign Reserve Board or as a price which can comfortably be paid for participation in such changes of value as the stock market presents.

In actual transactions, the day's business was considerably lighter on the Stock Exchange than the last full business day. The foreign exchanges did not move. Wheat prices lost 3 cents a bushel, the September delivery selling 13 cents below the high price of July, although still 25 cents above that of a year ago. The market still balances between the considerations of the season's heavy losses in Canada's crop and ours, and of the exceptionally large accumulation of unsold grain at the end of the past season.

Gold in the sum of £1,711,500 was taken from the Bank of England for export yesterday, making a loss of £2,025,000 since last week's Thursday statement was compiled and of £19,000,000 since the end of June. The Bank now holds some £138,600,000 gold, whereas until last month the lowest figure reached at any time since the gold resumption of 1925 was £143,700,000. Such a comparison—especially when the present figure is more than £11,000,000 below the "necessary minimum" fixed in the Cunliffe committee's report—lends great interest to the policy of the Bank. It is possible to draw conclusions too rapidly in that regard. London has many resources for controlling an excessive gold export. At the previous low point of January, 1926, the Bank of England had lost £12,000,000 of the gold accumulated for the resumption of free gold payments in the previous April. The year which followed witnessed the disastrous "general strike" and the prolonged embargo on coal production; British exports of merchandise for the whole of 1926 decreased £121,000,000 from the year before. Yet England sent us less than $6,000,000 gold in the entire twelvemonth, and the London bank rate was not advanced.

Undoubtedly, large credits were raised at that time in America by London to stave off what seemed to be an impending drain of gold and, when such shipments were made in quantity early the next year, they were soon arrested by a movement of exchange against New York. On the other hand, the existing position differs widely in some important respects. Wall Street money rates of 1926 were lower than London's; the New York bank rate was 3½ and 4 per cent as against the Bank of England's 5; speculation at New York had come to a halt and American money was pouring into foreign securities and into the European markets. These factors in the international position of 1926 are reversed today; in addition, the "flight from the franc" which diverted French capital to London and New York during most of that year is replaced by a situation in which Paris now has the whip-hand on every other market. The course which the Bank of England will pursue under these circumstances will provide a picture of high interest in world-finance.

TO DISCUSS STATION ORDER.

Railroad Presidents Are Expected to Confer Soon on I. C. C.'s Ruling.

Presidents of railroads terminating in New York probably will be called next week to confer on the recent order of the Interstate Commerce Commission against the maintenance of constructive delivery stations in Manhattan. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania, who has been away for some weeks, will return this week. It will then be possible to have a full attendance of heads of the railroads involved.

Beyond fixing a date before which the stations may not be abandoned the commission did not determine a definite time for this action. The railroads were permitted to continue their inland stations, which are in buildings with transfer facilities for trucks, unlike the constructive stations, which are theoretical points along the waterfront on which delivery charges are based.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and in the Financial Markets.

Just when the market gave indications of "going stale," United States Steel common was pushed forward again yesterday to better its previous high record on the Stock Exchange. To the sophisticated in Wall Street this seemed to be an adroit manoeuvre; at any rate, the "whirl in Steel" reanimated the general list, giving it a tone which cheered speculators for the rise at a time when they were becoming doubtful. Price movements were highly irregular in the morning. There was a fairly strong opening, with several "trading favorites" selling somewhat above Saturday's closing levels. Then the market began to move heavily, and by 11 o'clock a moderate reaction was under way. It was the bidding up of Steel, around noon, that lifted the market out of its lethargy. During the afternoon a large number of stocks advanced steadily, Steel setting the pace.

Speeding Up Stock Deals.

The market has kept its feet so well, despite the obstacles which it has encountered, that many deals, particularly those in which stocks are involved and which were scheduled originally for September or later, have been speeded up. It is expected that many of these will come to light this month. Incidentally, the good markets have meant the canceling of vacations of many bankers, who have been called back to aid in the plans for the new issues.

***

Trading Methods.

The head of a large brokerage house who has a flair for statistics has proved, to his own satisfaction at least, that it is the customer who purchases good stocks and stays with them through thick and thin who makes money in this market. One of his large customers purchased a long line of standard issues around the first of the new year and has not touched the account since. It shows profits ranging from 10 to 130 points, with only two losses in the entire list. On the other hand, many of the firm's in-and-out traders, who try to catch a few points here and a few points there, although trading in vastly more stock, have not done so well. Their difficulty has been that most of them have been inclined to "buy on the bulges," a procedure which keeps even the best of traders in difficulty. On recessions they find themselves with two strikes already called on them.

Picking the Laggards.

To illustrate that the present market is by no means a one-way affair, a leading broker cited yesterday the experience of a skillful trader who, in the last month, has taken a position in ten stocks only to have a paper loss today in eight of them.

Money Holds Unchanged.

Under the strain of some $30,000,000 of withdrawals it seemed to many bankers certain yesterday morning that the call loan rate would have to move higher, but the demand was met and another day of 7 per cent money passed without disturbance. That rate, bankers pointed out, is a moderate one in the face of a 6 per cent discount rate and cannot be expected to withstand a heavy expansion in stock market demand for credit. Undoubtedly the latter part of the present month will see firmer prices for demand loans. For the present, however, stock market demand for funds is not excessive and the local market has been the recipient of funds from the interior as a result of the return of first-of-the-month checks.

The Gold Outflow From London.

As bankers here and abroad have pointed out, it is only natural that where a free gold basis is to be maintained gold will flow whenever the course of exchange makes shipment of the metal profitable. What irritates that section of the English press and public which lately has become exercised over the Bank of England's loss of gold is the quickness with which French and German interests hasten to ship gold from England as soon as the smallest profit is available. Sterling has only just dipped below the gold point with relation to the franc and the mark, after a brief respite from the drain of previous weeks, yet already heavy requisitions have been made upon the British bank of issue for metal to be shipped across the Channel. The exact destination of the £1,711,536 bar gold taken from the Bank of England yesterday was not disclosed, but at least £750,000 is to go to France, according to reports, and £250,000 to Germany. The likelihood is that the remaining £711,536 also will go to these countries, since no early sailing of a fast ship to this country is scheduled.

In the Acceptance Market.

In presenting his survey of the volume of outstanding bankers' acceptances at the close of July, Robert H. Bean, executive secretary of the American Acceptance Council, preserves an eloquent silence regarding the recent action of the Federal Reserve in reducing the bill-buying rate. Prior to the action of the Reserve bank one of the chief topics of discussion in banking circles was the question of how the bill market was to take care of the expected heavy expansion of bill volume without material assistance from the Reserve bank. Now that the bank has indicated plainly its intention of purchasing bills in quantity, bill dealers view with assurance the advance in the quantity of paper being accepted, without fear of being forced to raise the rates. Mr. Bean evidently feels that the matter has been sufficiently discussed to require no further elucidation.

MONEY.

Monday, Aug. 19, 1929.

Money market was quietly firm all day, with rates showing no variation from last week's finals. On the Stock Exchange 7 per cent was the prevailing figure, but except for withdrawals of $30,000,000 new money involved was moderate. Time money, all dates, was quoted 8⅛@9 per cent, and here, too, turnover was light. Commercial paper and acceptance markets were dull and unchanged.

Common Stock, no par value,	300,000 shares

SOLVAY AMERICAN INVESTMENT CORPORATION, incorporated in Delaware in 1927, was organized by Solvay & Company, of Belgium. Under its charter it may, among other things, acquire, hold and sell securities of any character, and may issue its own securities to acquire the same. Its entire Common Stock is owned by Solvay & Company.

ASSETS: Upon application of proceeds of this issue, the Corporation will own 466,488 shares of no par value Common Stock of Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, of which 62,500 shares will be deposited in escrow against exercise of warrants attached to this Preferred Stock. Assets also include the direct obligation of Solvay & Company for $8,424,661 bearing interest at the rate of 4½% per annum.

Total net assets, based on June 29, 1929 balance sheet adjusted to include proceeds of this issue, after deducting all liabilities other than capital stock, amount to $76,144,034 or $304 per share of this Preferred Stock. Assets are conservatively carried, the Corporation's holdings of Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation Common Stock alone (including the additional shares now to be acquired) having a market value, at present quotations, of over $140,000,000.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: Proceeds of this issue will be applied toward payment for certain shares of the outstanding Common Stock of Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, to a total of 100,000 shares, which Solvay American Investment Corporation has recently contracted to purchase.

EARNINGS: Net earnings of Solvay American Investment Corporation, after interest charges and including $600,000 representing annual dividends at present rate on the additional Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation Common Stock now to be acquired, for the 13 months ended March 31, 1928 were $2,328,597; and for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1929 were $2,804,350. The annual requirement for dividends on this Preferred Stock is $1,375,000.

ALLIED CHEMICAL & DYE CORPORATION, incorporated in New York State, is a consolidation of companies ranking in their respective fields as the leading concerns in the chemical industry of the United States. The Corporation has no funded debt, its capitalization consisting of $39,284,900 par value 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock and 2,178,109 shares of no par value Common Stock. Net income of Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation as stated for the year 1928, of $24,212,498 after payment of preferred dividends, is equivalent to $11.11 per share on the 2,178,109 shares of Common Stock on which dividends at the rate of $6 per share per annum are now being paid.

SOLVAY & COMPANY, of Belgium, founded in 1863, with companies in which it has stock interests, is today the largest manufacturer of soda products in the world. Its products and their derivatives enter basically into almost every industry and in some form are used in practically every household. It owns and operates manufacturing plants in Belgium, France, Spain and Italy, and has important holdings in companies using the Solvay process in different parts of the world.

A more detailed description of this Preferred Stock, its preferences and limitations, the Sinking Fund commencing September 1, 1934, the restrictions regarding the issuance of additional funded debt or preferred stock, and a more detailed description of the warrants are contained in a circular, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned.

Application will be made to list this Stock and the Warrants on the New York Stock Exchange.

$127,000,000 TRUST BY GOLDMAN SACHS

Blue Ridge Corporation, Formed by Bankers, Will Market 2,000,000 Shares Today.

PROPOSES STOCK TRADES

An investment organization to be known as the Blue Ridge Corporation has been formed by the banking firm of Goldman, Sachs & Co. and will start business immediately with assets aggregating more than $127,500,000. The offering of the corporation's shares today, on a scale without precedent in American trust financing, also introduces an entirely new step in investment company finance; that is, the offer to exchange its shares, on a fixed basis, for those of the shares of twenty-one leading corporations whose stocks are listed on the New York Stock Exchange and among which are chemical, public utility, steel, railroad, photographic, agricultural machinery, oil and electrical manufacturing companies.

The Blue Ridge Corporation will be sponsored by the same interests which control the Shenandoah Corporation and the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation. The board of directors will be identical with that of Shenandoah. It marks another step in the close association between the Goldman, Sachs interests and the public utility interests of Harrison Williams.

2,000,000 Shares Offered Today.

The new company, organized in Delaware, will have an authorized capitalization of 10,000,000 shares of preference stock of $50 par value and 30,000,000 shares of common stock without par value. The offering to be made today by Goldman, Sachs & Co. will be of 1,000,000 shares of optional 6 per cent convertible preferred stock of $50 par value, priced at $51.50 a share and accrued dividend, and 1,000,000 shares of no-par value common, priced at $20 a share. Holders of the preference stock will be entitled to cumulative dividends at the quarterly rate of 1-32 of a share of common stock or, at their option, 75 cents a share. The preference stock will be convertible at any time into 1½ shares of common.

The Shenandoah Corporation has agreed to purchase, for long-term investment, 6,250,000 shares of the common stock of the Blue Ridge Corporation for $62,500,000 cash. The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and the Central States Electric Corporation will purchase for long-time investment from the Shenandoah Corporation for cash at par ($50) and accrued cash dividend 750,000 shares of its optional 6 per cent convertible preference stock, series of 1929, and at $33 1-3 a share 750,000 shares of its common stock. The sale of these shares of preference and common stock, all of which will be of additional issue, will provide the Shenandoah Corporation with the required $62,500,000 in cash. This investment by the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and the Central States Electric Company will be in addition to the 2,000,000 shares of common stock of Shenandoah Corporation now held by each.

Stock Trades Proposed.

In making the offer of exchange of its shares for those of twenty-one corporations listed on the New York Stock Exchange at a fixed price, Clifford F. Stone, president of the Blue Ridge Corporation said the exchange has been arranged as a means of acquiring blocks of such stocks for the company's investment account.

"In addition to purchasing stocks for cash," said Mr. Stone, "it will be the purpose of the company in connection with acquiring stocks of other corporations to exchange, from time to time, its own stock for the stock of corporations in the various fields of business activity in which the company regards it as advantageous to acquire an interest."

The company does not expect to acquire control of any corporation, but to build up substantial holdings in leading issues.

Of the twenty-one issues selected for investment by the Blue Ridge Corporation, at fixed prices, which are as of Aug. 17, last night's closing prices on the Stock Exchange showed that eighteen were above the price fixed for exchange, and three were below. The greatest discrepancy was in the offer for United States Steel, for which $238 in the shares of the new corporation was fixed. Steel closed yesterday at 248½. Members of the firm of Goldman, Sachs said last night that while these discrepancies were expected to creep in because of market fluctuations, the list would stand as issued, but that it was probable that later readjustment of the offering prices would be made to coincide with the open market selling prices of the various shares.

List of Selected Corporations.

The announcement of the Blue Ridge Corporation says that it is prepared to receive from financial institutions and security dealers, acting on their own behalf or for the account of clients, tenders of blocks of common stock in the following corporations on the exchange basis indicated:

Name of Company.	Common Stocks exchangeable for stock of Blue Ridge Corporation. Price per share for exchange purposes.	Number of shares of preference and common stock of Blue Ridge Corporation exchangeable per share of stock tendered. (For purposes of exchange, preference stock is priced at $51.50 and common stock at $20.)

Shenandoah Directors on Board.

Directors of the new corporation, identical with those of Shenandoah, will be Harrison Williams, Clifford F. Stone, Waddill Catchings, Sidney J. Weinberg and John Foster Dulles.

Upon completion of the financing of today, the capitalization of the Blue Ridge Corporation, but without giving effect to such shares as may be issued under its exchange plan, will consist of 1,000,000 shares of preference stock and 7,250,000 shares of common. Proceeds from the sale of the shares will be net to the company, all expenses in connection with the issue being borne by the bankers.

The Blue Ridge Corporation is the third investment trust of general management type to be launched with assets of more than $100,000,000 by Goldman, Sachs & Co. within nine months. The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, which was organized last December as a $100,000,000 project and subsequently acquired the Financial and Industrial Corporation, now has a market value of more than $500,000,000. The offering of the securities of Shenandoah last month was remarkably successful and the common stock is now quoted at about twice its original offering price.

The organization of the Shenandoah Corporation brought about a new alignment between the financial and industrial interests of the Goldman-Sachs firm and the public utility interests of Harrison Williams. The combined market value of the issued capital stocks of the Goldman, Sachs Trading Corporation and Central States Electric Corporation, sponsors of Shenandoah, and through Shenandoah of the Blue Ridge Corporation, is in excess of $1,000,000,000.

RISE OF $2 A BALE IN COTTON FUTURES

DAMAGE TO CROP REPORTED

High Temperature Continued in Texas and Oklahoma—Southern Buyers in the Market Here.

Prices on the Cotton Exchange advanced more than $2 a bale yesterday under the most active trading in some time. After a higher opening, covering operations carried the list upward until it finally showed a gain of 37 to 44 points on the day.

For the first time in two months Southern interests became buyers on both the New Orleans and the New York Exchanges as a direct result of conditions in the Southwest, where thirty-two stations in Texas and thirty-four in Oklahoma showed temperatures of 100 to 110 degrees over Sunday. Prices on the Southern Exchange led the advance, October there selling above New York quotations. More than half of the day's improvement took place in the last hour, when all months sold above the level immediately following the issuance of the government report on Aug. 8. As a result of shipments out of the local stock, the amount was reduced to 114,000 bales.

In addition to a statement by an agency in Memphis, Tenn., that the crop in Texas had reached a point of irreparable damage, the market was influenced by an announcement from Washington that the Farm Board would extend between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 to cooperative associations for marketing of the cotton crop. Loans will be increased 25 per cent where the cotton is hedged. An additional factor in the course of prices was continued strength abroad on the reopening of mills in Lancashire and the decline in sterling.

The condition figure for Texas, which the Department of Agriculture placed at 64 on Aug. 1, was estimated at 55 by two private agencies under date of Aug. 15.

STEEL SHARES GAIN 9⅞ POINTS IN DAY

Close at 248½ After Pulling Many Other Issues to New High Levels.

After resting for several market days, evidently to consolidate the gains which have been established, United States Steel common once more forged into market leadership yesterday and pulled most of the market along with it to new high levels. Steel opened at 238¾, declined to 237⅝, and then shot briskly forward under the impetus of a tremendous volume of buying which appeared to come from all quarters. Its close was at 248½ at which point it was up 9⅞ points for the day.

The oil shares, which spurted last week, did not hold the gains established, and were heavy and draggy all day, as were most of the railroad shares. In other directions, however, the market was brisk, but not boisterous, and gains of 2 to 5 points were frequent throughout a long list of representative industrial issues. Sales were just below the 4,000,000 mark.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent and loaned at that figure all day, the supply of funds being ample. Closing prices on the Stock Exchange and the Curb were about the best of the day.

INSURANCE COMPANIES REPORT FOR HALF YEAR

Three Show Increases in Assets and Surpluses Accumulated for Policy Holders.

Increases in total assets and surpluses to policy holders are indicated in the semi-annual reports of three insurance companies made public yesterday.

The National Liberty Insurance Company of America reports total assets of $45,008,041 as of July 1, compared with $42,533,162 on Jan. 1, an increase of $2,474,879. The surplus to policy holders on July 1 was $33,322,875, an increase of $2,741,279 during the period.

The Baltimore American Insurance Company of New York reports total assets of $9,998,074 on July 1, compared with $8,970,794 on Jan. 1, an increase of $1,027,280. The surplus to policy holders on July 1 was $7,472,135 after dividend requirements, an increase of $1,081,337.

The Peoples National Fire Insurance Company of Delaware reports total assets of $6,961,551 on July 1, against $6,104,265 on Jan. 1, an increase of $857,282. The surplus to policy holders on the former date was $5,018,066, an increase of $872,303 during the six months.

More Time for Stock Deposits.

Minority stockholders of the Universal Aviation Corporation have been notified that the period in which they may deposit their stock for exchange for stock of the Aviation Corporation has been extended to Sept 14. Graham B. Grosvenor, president of the latter, said yesterday that 95 per cent of the outstanding stock of the former had been deposited. Stockholders of record of July 1 may participate in the exchange.

EMPLOYES INSURED FOR $35,000,000 MORE

Jones & Laughlin Sign Contract More Than Doubling Protection to Its 25,000 Workers.

A contract for $35,000,000 additional protection for the 25,000 employes of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation of Pittsburgh and its subsidiaries with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company was announced yesterday by T. M. Girdler, president of the corporation, to become effective on Aug. 31. This brings the employes' benefit program to about $60,000,000.

A year ago the company purchased what was then one of the largest group insurance contracts ever written in Pennsylvania and the most comprehensive ever underwritten for the steel industry. The contract now becomes one of the largest on the books of the Metropolitan Life.

For the large majority of the employes the individual life insurance benefits are increased materially, ranging from $1,000 to $6,000. The corporation and the employes will share the cost of the premiums.

American Chain Co. Wins Suits.

The American Chain Company, Inc., has won a decision in three patent suits involving recoverable profits and damages estimated at $500,000 from the Stewart-Warner Products Service Station, the Grable-Berger Company, Inc., the Franklin New York Company, Inc., and the Franklin Motor Service Company, it was announced yesterday. Federal Judge Marcus B. Campbell held that three spring bar automobile bumper patents, all owned by the American Chain Company, were valid and had been infringed.

HEADS TWO CANDY MAKERS

H. A. Fehn Directs Both Sweets Company and Croft and Allen.

Election of Henry A. Fehn, president of the Sweets Company of America, as president and general manager of the Croft and Allen Corporation, one of the oldest candy manufacturers in the country, was announced yesterday. He succeeds Frank P. Snyder, who has resigned from those offices, but has kept his place on the board of directors.

Negotiations are understood to be in progress for acquisition of the controlling interest in Croft and Allen by the Sweets Company. Mr. Fehn retains his position as president of the latter organization.

New Stock for Graybar Employes.

The Graybar Electric Company has issued a second and continuing stock purchase plan to place stock within the reach of employes whose increases in time service and salary scale have made them eligible since Jan. 1 for more stock ownership. Already 700 employes have subscribed to 95 per cent of the additional stock offered.

MERGER APPROVED BY GOODRICH BOARD

Further Step Taken in Plan to Acquire the Hood Rubber Company.

STOCKS TO BE EXCHANGED

Proposal Will Be Submitted to the Hood Stockholders Aug. 30—Goodrich Common Up.

The directors of the B. F. Goodrich Company yesterday approved a plan for acquisition of the Hood Rubber Company through an exchange of stocks of the companies on the basis of two shares of Hood for one share of Goodrich. A subsidiary of the Goodrich company is to assume the Hood company's debts and to retire its preferred and special stocks and those of the Hood Rubber Products Company on their respective redemption dates at the redemption prices. It is estimated that it will take about 100,000 shares of Goodrich stock to accomplish the exchange. Goodrich has 1,500,000 shares authorized and 953,638 outstanding.

Stockholders of the Hood company, whose directors have approved the plan, will have the proposition submitted to them on Aug. 30.

The Hood Rubber Company was incorporated in 1896, and has a plant at Watertown, Mass., with ninety-six acres of land and buildings with 2,048,510 square feet of floor space. Its main products are rubber footwear, rubber heels and soles, automobile tubes and tires, rubber tilings and rubber molded goods.

Holdings of Hood Company.

The Hood Rubber Company owns all the common stock of the Hood Rubber Products Company, which distributes the Hood products. This company was incorporated in 1919, as a consolidation of the following subsidiaries of the Hood Rubber Company: Hood Tire Company, Inc., Watertown; Pilgrim Rubber Footwear Company, Boston; Pioneer Rubber Shoe Company, Minneapolis; Dearborn Rubber Company, Chicago; Iowa Rubber Shoe Company, Davenport, Iowa; Southwest Rubber Footwear Company, Kansas City, Mo.; Capital City Rubber Company, Columbus, Ohio, and Grand Rapids Shoe and Rubber Company, Grand Rapids, Mich. It maintains branches and warehouses in forty cities of the United States. It has outstanding $500,000 of common stock, all of which is held by the Hood Rubber Company, and $1,000,000 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock.

The Hood Rubber Company has authorized capital stock of 300,000 shares of no par value common; $10,000,000 of 7½ per cent. cumulative preference $100 par value shares, $492,600 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred par value $100 shares, and $500,000 of 8 per cent employes' special $10 par value shares. Of this authorized stock there is outstanding 200,000 shares of the common, $5,627,400 of the 7½ per cent. preferred, $492,600 of the 7 per cent preferred and $190,870 of the employes' special shares.

Payments of Dividends.

Dividends on the preferred and employes' special shares have been paid regularly. The common shares received quarterly dividends of $1 from Dec. 31, 1920, to March 31, 1927, and on Dec. 31, 1927, and March 31, 1928. No dividends have been paid on the common stock since.

The funded debt of the company consists of an issue of $5,400,000 of fifteen-year 7 per cent sinking fund gold notes, dated Dec. 1, 1921, of which $600,000 has been retired, and $5,000,000 of ten-year 5½ per cent convertible gold notes, dated Oct. 15, 1926.

The company reported a net loss of $1,473,104 for 1928, explained as being due, in part, to breaks in the price of crude rubber. Goodrich common stock closed at 75¾ yesterday on the Stock Exchange.

General Electric to Combine Its Wholesale Distributers

The General Electric Company on Oct. 1 will consolidate into the General Electric Supply Corporation of Delaware its fourteen wholesale distributing corporations, it was announced yesterday. These companies for years have distributed General Electric products. No change in ownership is involved.

The consolidated company will be able to supply equipment and apparatus through any one of seventy-six houses, through the interchangeability of stocks. C. E. Patterson will be president and a director of the new company, according to the plan. Gerald Swope, president of General Electric, will be chairman.

CHICAGO BANK RATE 8% ON COLLATERAL

Institutions Announce Advance Following Amendment to Illinois Usury Law.

AIM TO AID STOCK MARKET

Change Designed to Equalize Charges With Those in New York, Holding Funds When Needed.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Chicago's downtown banks today advanced the rate on brokers' collateral loans to 8 per cent, thus taking advantage of the recent amendment to the Illinois usury law permitting a higher charge than 7 per cent on loans on stock-market collateral.

Heretofore the Chicago securities markets and the banks were considered largely at the mercy of the New York Stock Exchange in times of credit stringency. When the call-loan rate rose above 7 per cent in Wall Street, big corporations and wealthy individuals in the Middle West found it profitable to transfer their surplus funds to New York. The result has been that banks here have been drained of deposits and the Chicago securities markets have been handicapped by lack of funds.

Now the Chicago banks will be able to assure clients who wish to lend money on stock-market collateral as profitable rates as can be obtained in New York. Therefore, it is expected, the new system will bring an influx of money to La Salle Street in flush times and prevent any serious outgo in periods of stringency.

"The present 8 per cent rate and the future course of rates will apply only to brokers and to individuals carrying stocks for speculative purposes," Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company, explained. "The change is designed to equalize the Chicago collateral-loan rates with those of New York."

Chase Bank Opens New Branch.

The Chase National Bank yesterday opened the twenty-second of its chain of branches throughout Manhattan and Brooklyn. The new office, at 18 East Forty-eighth Street, is in the heart of the uptown jewelry district and will also contain a branch of the Chase Safe Deposit Company. Following the merger of the National Park Bank with the Chase, to become effective next Saturday, the enlarged Chase National will have twenty-seven offices. The new branch will be in charge of Richard H. Mansfield, manager, and Louis E. Brunner, assistant cashier.

ACCEPTANCES ROSE $13,649,559 IN JULY

INCREASE DUE TO WHEAT

Bill Market Rates Without Change—Reserve Bank Purchasing Likely to Maintain Stability.

The volume of bankers' acceptances outstanding on July 31 was $1,126,698,805, an increase of $13,649,559 over the figure for the close of June, according to the monthly survey of the American Acceptance Council, released last night by Robert H. Bean, executive secretary. The volume of bills now stands $148,834,879 above the level for a year ago and $385,000,000 above the record for the corresponding date in 1927.

"The increase at this time," Mr. Bean said, "is almost wholly caused by the volume of wheat bills that have been coming on the market since mid-July. Cotton bills have not as yet made their appearance in any considerable volume, but should swell the bill total in another month, particularly if market rates for acceptances continue at the present level.

"The influence of wheat financing is seen in the volume of bills of banks in the Chicago district, where there is a current increase of $12,000,000 for the month. It is again seen in the volume of bills against domestic warehouse credits, which have advanced $11,000,000 since June 30, and to some extent also in the total of bills against goods stored abroad or shipped between foreign countries, which is $16,000,000 higher.

"Import acceptances and dollar exchange bills both fell off $7,000,000 during July, while export acceptances and those against domestic shipments remained practically unchanged.

Acceptance Rates Steady.

"Bill market rates on acceptances have been steady and without change for the entire month since the last survey report. After a period in July when the volume of bills in the dealers' hands was increasing and there was some doubt whether acceptance rates could be kept down, the market has been considerably more active, with bills moving easily at the prevailing rates."

Following is a record of the outstanding volume of bankers' acceptances classified according to the nature of the credit:

	July 31.	June 29.
Imports	$346,199,571	$332,497,542
Exports	348,230,469	368,019,731
Domestic Shipments	14,623,876	14,196,987
Domestic Warehouse credits	$8,914,521	$7,814,230
Dollar Exchange	48,806,140	55,856,128
Based on goods stored in or shipped between foreign countries	279,918,228	263,664,719

In discussing the position of the bill market, Mr. Bean makes no mention of the recent action of the Federal Reserve in lowering the bill-buying rate. The move has, however, aroused the greatest interest among bill dealers. While the purchase of bills by the Reserve banks has been a normal Autumn development, some doubt had been entertained, in view of the Federal Reserve Board's reluctance to see a general expansion of credit, whether the shrunken portfolio of the bank of issue would be expanded next Fall.

Relaxation Follows Unsettlement.

The bill market experienced in the early part of the year a period of unsettlement during which rates were successively lifted to a point 1 per cent above the level at the opening of the year, reaching a peak of 5½ per cent in March. Since then bill rates have relaxed and all maturities up to 90 days now stand at 5¼ per cent bid, 5⅛ per cent asked.

Now that the Reserve Bank has served plain notice that it intends to purchase bills, it has been concluded generally that no difficulty will be experienced in maintaining the present rates and at the same time taking care of the increased volume of paper being created to finance the harvest.

Why Gamble?

Rarely has the fundamental soundness of the plan upon which the Massachusetts Investors Trust was founded been better demonstrated than it was during the market reaction of December 1928.

During this period which witnessed a collapse from 295.62 to 257.33 in the Dow-Jones industrial average—a drop of 38.29 points—the shares of this Trust declined exactly 2⅜ points from 52⅞ to 50½.

(The price of these shares is revised weekly, and is based on the market value of the Trust's holdings.)

Nor is this contrast peculiar to any one break. It was the same in the June break of 1928 and in the reaction of March 1926.

These facts seem to prove that clear-visioned management achieving wide diversification with the combined funds of many investors, has created in this Trust an ideal investment medium.

Why gamble—when you can employ the safe, sane and profitable method represented by shares in this Trust?

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

FRENCH TENDENCY IS FIRM

Volume of Trading, However, Is Still Small—Depression on the German Boerse.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The firm tendency continued on the Stock Exchange today without much increase in the volume of business. Following some investment demand, British funds showed improvement, although there was little change in the gold situation. The 5 per cent war loan advanced to £101⅛ and the 3½ per cent conversion loan to £74⅛.

The industrials were irregular. The talking machine group was quiet, with Columbia Graphophone dull at £12 15-16 and His Master's Voice Graphophone at £7 7-16. There was improvement in textiles on the arbitration proposals. The figures record even a bigger increase in British rubber stocks than was anticipated on Friday last, consequently the price of the commodity further declined by ⅛ to 10⅝d. a pound.

Oils were the most buoyant section, owing to favorable reports from the United States, including improvement in earnings. Discussions among leaders are taking place, it is stated, looking to a big oil investment trust being formed in New York. There was also a favorable factor in last week's decline in United States crude output and the possibility of further shrinkage.

Demand from the Cape enlivened South African gold mining. Rhodesian copper shares closed firm after a quiet opening.

Resumption of the Continental gold demand was the chief topic in Lombard Street today, on account of which the discount market was firmer. Fine three-month bills were quoted at 5 7-16 to 5½ per cent. The bank of England sold £1,711,536 of bar gold today, £00,000 of which was for France and the remainder for Germany. After a steady opening, sterling on New York improved to $4.84 25-32-$4.84 13-16.

Tone Is Steady at Paris.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The Bourse remains steady but with a very limited volume of trading. Apart from some speculative buying, mostly stimulated by orders from other countries, there was little activity at the session today.

The market appears to be little influenced by events at The Hague conference, and despite the dullness, the general tone is firm. Rentes, however, proved an exception today in this respect. Apparently due to the unfavorable outlook at The Hague conference this morning, most categories of rentes suffered declines. Because of lack of activity they failed to make any recovery during the day, closing as follows: The 3 per cents, 74.25; 1918 4s, 91.75; 1920 amortisable 5s, 125.60; 1928 5s, 180; 1920 4s, 105.25; 1927 amortisable 4s, 122.80.

Declines on German Boerse.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—The financial collapse of the Frankforter General Insurance Company caused general depression at today's session of the Boerse and all groups dropped several points. Electricals were especially weak, Siemens, leading the decline, dropped 7 points.

Losses in the mining section averaged two to four points. Reichsbank shares dropped 4½, Schubert & Salzer 9, Zellstoff Waldhof 7, Deutsche Linoleum 6 and Dye Trust 5½ points. Continental Caoutchouc, Silesian Gas, Berlin Karlsruher Industry, Bavarian Motors, Artificial Silks and Spirits were also depressed.

Introduction of the new Ford shares and the State loan bonds of 1929 failed to change the situation and the Boerse closed weak. The money market was tighter, with call loans at 7½ to 9½ per cent.

BANK IN GERMANY CLOSES.

Sudwest Fails in Connection With Insurance Company's Troubles.

BERLIN, Aug. 19 (AP).—In connection with the financial difficulties of the General Insurance Company of Frankfort-on-Main, one of the largest insurance concerns in Germany, the Sudwest Deutsche Bank of Frankfort, a subsidiary, closed its doors today.

All transactions of directors of the insurance company passed through this bank. Its collapse caused a great sensation in Berlin today. It was alleged that the insurance company had engaged in speculative transactions entailing losses amounting to 25,000,000 marks (about $6,200,000). It was reported that the largest insurance company in Germany, the Alliance Trust, might come to the aid of the Frankfort concern.

PRICES IRREGULAR IN LISTED BONDS

Good Gains Made by Some Issues—New Jersey Public Service Convertible 4½s Up 7½.

GERMAN INDUSTRIALS OFF

But Changes Are Generally in the Foreign Group—Trading Light in Liberty Loans.

The listed bond market was decidedly irregular yesterday, although a handful of issues, including several of the convertibles, made impressive gains. The principal gain was scored by Public Service of New Jersey convertible 4½s, which jumped 7½ points to 268¼, just below the record high of 270. American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s shot up to a new high at 217 on extremely active trading, closing at 215, up 7 points net. International Telephone convertible 4½s also reached a new peak at 187 and finished 3 points below this figure, with an advance for the day of 5½ points.

New Haven convertible 6s were fractionally lower, as were Atchison convertible 4½s. American I. G. Chemical 5½s lost a point and American International 5½s slipped back 1¼. Commercial Investment Trust 5½s reached a new high at 106¼ and closed at 105¾, up 2¾ points net.

Sugar bonds were inclined to be irregular following the gains registered on Saturday. Cuban American 8s were unchanged, Cuba Cane 8s off 1½, the 7s off ¼, and Cuban Dominican 7½s gained 2 points. Vertientes Sugar 7s dropped 1½ and Sugar Estates of Orient 7s moved up ¼ of a point.

The general run of industrial bonds was irregular. Pathé Exchange 7s provided a feature with a run-up of 3 points to 67 at the close.

A drop of 11 points in Fiat 7s, with warrants, to a new low at 119, was a feature of the foreign list. South American issues were irregular and German industrial loans were inclined to be easier. Outside of the movement in Fiat 7s, price changes in this group were not important.

The Liberty loans got off to an irregular start this week, with final prices from 5-32 point up to the same amount off. Trading was extremely light.

BUYS INTO CHEESE CONCERN

Selected Industries Gets Interest in Kraft-Phenix Corporation.

Selected Industries, Inc., has acquired an interest in the Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation, it was announced yesterday by Charles D. Barney & Co. Stockholders of Selected Industries will be required to make additional payments on subscriptions totaling $18,750,000. With subscriptions fully paid and outstanding warrants exercised, the company will then have resources of $100,000,000.

R. S. Reynolds, president of Selected Industries, said its investments at cost totaled $39,152,000. These comprise $17,496,000 of securities of "special interest," $14,753,000 of railroad stocks, and $6,903,000 of other securities and syndicate participations. Market appreciation of holdings was about $3,500,000 on Aug. 17. Selected Industries also has $11,000,000 out on call.

TO GIVE $2,400,125 RIGHTS.

Central and South West Utilities to Offer Additional Stock.

The directors of the Central and South West Utilities Company have voted to offer to holders of common stock rights to buy one new common share at $100 for each ten shares held on Sept. 3. At the closing price of $150 yesterday each right is worth $4.55, and the total value of rights is $2,400,125. On the basis of 527,500 shares outstanding, the proceeds of the financing will be $5,275,000.

A special meeting of stockholders has been called at Wilmington, Del., for Sept. 16 to vote on a split-up of the common shares on a five-for-one basis. Rights to subscribe to the common stock will expire on Oct. 15, and it is planned to split the stock on that date, which will make the outstanding common stock 2,901,250 shares.

The directors propose to pay dividends on the increased capitalization in the form of common stock dividends to common stockholders at the annual rate of 4 per cent. Dividends on the present no par common stock are at the annual rate of $3 a share. The company, a holding concern, is controlled by the Middle West Utilities Company, operated by the Insull interests of Chicago.

Plan $1,000,000 Holding Company.

Application for the incorporation of a holding company to buy and hold stocks of industrial banks and similar institutions, to be known as the Goldwyn National Corporation, was announced yesterday. Capitalization will be more than $1,000,000 and Alexander Goldwyn will be president. The first company to be acquired will be the Goldwyn Loan and Investment Company of New York.

INSTALMENT BUYERS OF STOCKS WARNED

Better Business Bureau Says Raskob's Advice Should Lead to Increased Demand.

FEARS THE UNSCRUPULOUS

Cautions Small Investors to Investigate Before Making Any Purchases.

A warning to prospective purchasers of securities on the instalment plan to exercise caution in the selection of stocks was issued yesterday by the National Better Business Bureau of New York. The bureau said an increased demand from small investors for stocks on time payments was expected, owing to John J. Raskob's advocacy of that method of investing.

"Mr. Raskob's message will undoubtedly be followed by public response," the bureau said. "But from past experience we know this public request will encourage unscrupulous promoters to offer to sell stock on instalment payments to uninformed investors.

"There are three important features that should be constantly borne in mind. First, a purchaser should buy a substantial stock. Second, the purchaser should be sure that upon the completion of payments the stock will be delivered to him. Third, he should investigate the cost charged to him for purchasing by instalments to make sure that it is a reasonable rate.

"To assure himself that he has a sound stock the investor should buy securities that have an open market.

"The second feature of making sure the investor will receive his stock when his instalment payments are completed can be obtained by many investors who are employed by substantial companies which have plans to sell stock to their employes, or by purchasing through a responsible house whose responsibility can be demonstrated. Many banks are willing to loan money to their clients to buy good securities. There is, however, real danger in buying stock on an instalment plan unless the purchaser is unquestionably safeguarded to assure his receiving his stock when payments are completed.

"Regarding the third feature, a reasonable cost for the service charge to buyers on the instalment plan is already in effect in companies where employes purchase stock in their firms. In some instances the employes have an opportunity to buy stock at considerably less than the current market value. The fee charged by banks is only the interest on the loan and brokerage charges, which amount to a nominal cost. Service charges by private concerns other than the types mentioned may vary. It is the purchaser's responsibility to determine the service rate best suited for his purpose."

MUNICIPAL LOANS.

Announcements of Awards to Bankers and New Offerings to Be Made.

Oakland, Cal.

The city of Oakland, Cal. issued yesterday a formal call for sealed bids to be opened on Aug. 29 on a new issue of $1,000,000 harbor improvement bonds, maturing serially on July 1, 1930 to 1966. Bidders are required to stipulate the rate of interest in multiples of ¼ of 1 per cent at not to exceed 5 per cent. Last April the city awarded an issue of $1,000,000 harbor improvement bonds, as 4½s, at a price of 100.74 or a 4.68 per cent basis.

Boston, Mass.

The only bidder yesterday for the issue of $1,000,000 city of Boston temporary notes, dated Aug. 20 and due Oct. 8, was the Shawmut Corporation of Boston. The bankers bid a 5.75 per cent basis for the notes, which are issued in anticipation of taxes.

Rockford, Ill.

Award of an issue of $500,000 Rockford, Ill. Sanitary District 4½ per cent bonds, series B, due serially on Sept. 1, 1930 to 1949, was made yesterday to the National City Company and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., at their joint bid of 97.5833, about a 4.63 per cent basis. The second highest bid was 97.236, made by the Harris Trust and Savings Bank and the First Trust and Savings Bank, both of Chicago, and the third bid, 96.45, by the Continental Illinois Company, Inc., and the Northern Trust Company, also both of Chicago. The next bid was 96.129, by Ames, Emerich & Co., Inc. The district reports an assessed valuation of $88,512,116 and a total bonded debt of $500,000, excluding this issue.

Chattanooga, Tenn.

Offering of a new issue of $500,000 city of Chattanooga, (Tenn.) 4¾ per cent improvement bonds, due on Aug. 1, 1959, will be made today by Harris, Forbes & Co. and Rogers Caldwell & Co, Inc., at a price of 100.80, to yield about 4.70 per cent. The city has an assessed valuation of $131,350,000 and a net debt, including this issue, of $11,895,200.

$97,875,000 New Securities On Today's Investment Lists

New securities totaling $97,875,000 will be placed on the market today by New York banking houses and syndicates. Of this amount only $500,000 consists of bonds, the balance being in stock, including both common and preferred.

Municipal $500,000

Museum Gets Colombian Ceramics.

The museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, recently received an important addition to its collection of ceramics from Colombia. Some years ago, through the gift of James B. Ford, a large collection of pottery vessels and human effigies from the region of Cartago in the Cauca Valley was acquired. Now, from Frederick F. Sharpless, the museum has a choice collection from near Medellin, considerably north of Cartago, but in the Cauca Valley region. This material, gathered more than twenty-five years ago, is important for the human figures and the incised vessels which it contains, and which are characteristic of this ancient culture area.

Skulls Added to Collection.

Dr. H. S. Dickey, who conducted the Thea Heye-Dickey Expedition to the upper Orinoco last year, brought to New York, as a part of the product of his collecting, a number of human skulls and fragmentary bones which have been added to the collections of the Division of Physical Anthropology of the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation. The skulls, six in number, were collected from a cave near the junction of the Tomo and Odinoco Rivers, forty miles from the Orinoco on the Colombia side. The preliminary sexing resulted in an equal number of male and female specimens, that is, three of each.

Oil Company Considers Sale.

Stockholders of the New Bradford Oil Company will meet in Denver, Col., on Sept. 30 to consider the purchase of 532,000 shares, or 80 per cent, of the stock of the Argo Oil Company. An offer has been made to New Bradford for the sale of 145,000 shares of Argo at $3 cash a share. The remainder of the purchase could be accomplished through an exchange of stock, with New Bradford shares accepted at the par value of $5. This would be equivalent to an exchange on a basis of five shares of Argo for three shares of New Bradford. The Argo company has a production of about 1,300 barrels of crude oil daily.

NEW STOCK ISSUES.

Corporation Shares to Be Offered to the Public for Subscription.

Solvay American Investment.

Offering of a new issue of $25,000,000 Solvay American Investment Corporation 5½ per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value a share will be made today at par by a syndicate headed by Lee, Higginson & Co. and White, Weld & Co. and including Brown Brothers & Co. and the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh. The proceeds will be used to increase the company's holdings of common stock of the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation by 100,000 shares, bringing them to 466,488 shares.

The preferred shares will carry warrants entitling the holder to purchase at any time up to Sept. 1, 1934, Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation common stock at $325 a share in the ratio of one share for each four shares of preferred held. The Solvay American Investment Corporation was organized in 1927 in Delaware by Solvay & Co. of Belgium, which holds all the common stock.

Eastern Aircraft Corporation.

A block of 70,000 shares of Eastern Aircraft Corporation common stock of no par value will be placed on the market today at $12.50 a share by Charles S. Rodd & Co. The company plans to introduce German aircraft into America through the manufacture of all-metal Messerschmitt airplanes such as are manufactured by the Bavarian Aircraft Corporation at Augsburg, Germany. The capitalization of the company consists of 300,000 shares of no par common stock, of which 180,000 shares will be outstanding. Application will be made to list the stock on the New York Curb Exchange.

Associated Telephone Company.

Joint financing for the Associated Telephone Company of California and its associate, the Associated Telephone Utilities Company of Delaware, will be done today by the offering of 34,500 units of the stock by a syndicate composed of Paine, Webber & Co., Bonbright & Co., Inc., and Mitchum, Tully & Co. Each unit will consist of three shares of $1.50 dividend cumulative preferred stock of the Associated Telephone Company and one share of no-par common stock of the Associated Telephone Utilities Company. The units will be priced on application. According to the bankers, application will be made to list the stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

Oils, Fats and Greases Decline.

Quotations on animal, vegetable and fish oils, fats and greases had a downward trend during the week ended Aug. 15, according to The Oil Paint and Drug Reporter. The index number of prices was 130.8, based on 100 in August, 1914, compared with 131.1 a week earlier and 134.6 at the same time last year. Business was fairly active.

This advertisement is subject to the more complete information contained in a letter from Mr. C. F. Stone, President of the Company, setting forth information regarding the Company and its Preference and Common Stocks. There may be obtained from the undersigned copies of this letter which Mr. Stone has summarized in part as follows:

"Blue Ridge Corporation, hereinafter called the 'Company', has been formed under the laws of Delaware to buy, sell, trade in and hold stocks and securities of any kind, to participate in syndicates and underwritings and to exercise such other of its charter powers as its Board of Directors may from time to time determine. The Company has been organized at the instance of Shenandoah Corporation; the latter corporation is to purchase for long time investment 6,250,000 shares of Common Stock of the Company for $62,500,000 cash.

Shenandoah Corporation was organized in July, 1929, under the joint sponsorship of The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and Central States Electric Corporation. Each of these corporations then acquired and now holds for long time investment 2,000,000 shares of the common stock of Shenandoah Corporation. The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and Central States Electric Corporation are now purchasing for long time investment from Shenandoah Corporation for cash at par and accrued cash dividend 750,000 shares (par value $50 per share) of its Optional 6% Convertible Preference Stock, Series of 1929, and at $33⅓ per share 750,000 shares of its common stock. The sale of these shares of preference and common stock, all of which will be of additional issue, will provide Shenandoah Corporation with the required $62,500,000 cash.

The membership of the Board of Directors of the Company is identical with that of Shenandoah Corporation, namely, Harrison Williams, Clifford F. Stone, Waddill Catchings and Sidney J. Weinberg, and John Foster Dulles of counsel.

The Company will commence business with at least $127,500,000 of cash and/or common stocks, valued at or below the closing prices on August 17, 1929 on the New York Stock Exchange on which all such stocks are listed. The proceeds from the sale of the 1,000,000 shares of Preference Stock and 7,250,000 shares of Common Stock will be net to the Company, as all of the expenses in connection with its organization and the issue and distribution of these shares are to be borne by the bankers.

The Company has entered into a contract with Shenandoah Corporation which provides in substance that, so long as Shenandoah Corporation owns at least 6,250,000 shares of the Common Stock of the Company, then, in case the Company shall have issued during any year additional shares of its Common Stock, the Company will issue to Shenandoah Corporation warrants, exercisable at any time thereafter, for the purchase of not more than an equal number of additional shares of Common Stock. The price per share at which such warrants will entitle holders to purchase shares of Common Stock shall be the net asset value per share of the outstanding Common Stock of the Company at the close of such year, determined by valuing the Company's assets at cost or market, whichever is higher, but the price shall not be less than $20 per share, subject, in case of both the warrant price per share and the minimum price per share at which warrants may be issued, to adjustment in the event of split-ups, combinations, certain Common Stock dividends, rights to subscribe, etc.

Except for this contract with Shenandoah Corporation, there are no options on any unissued stock or management contracts calling for compensation other than that to be paid to officers and employees in the regular course of business."

Preference Stock $51.50 Per Share and Accrued (Cash) Dividend

Common Stock $20 Per Share

These shares are offered subject to allotment or prior sale and in all respects when, as and if issued and/or delivered and accepted by us and subject to the approval of Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell. We reserve the right to reject any and all subscriptions in whole or in part. It is expected that delivery of temporary stock certificates will be made on or about September 5, 1929, at the office of Goldman, Sachs & Co., 30 Pine Street, New York, N. Y., against payment therefor in New York funds.

Blue Ridge Corporation

60 Broadway

New York, August 20, 1929.

Blue Ridge Corporation (herein referred to as the Company) was recently organized under the laws of Delaware to buy, sell, trade in and hold stocks and securities of any kind, to participate in syndicates and underwritings and to exercise such other of its charter powers as its Board of Directors may from time to time determine.

Optional 6% Convertible Preference Stock, Series of 1929, of par value $50 per share (herein referred to as Preference Stock) and Common Stock, of no par value (herein referred to as Common Stock) of the Company are being offered for subscription today by Messrs. Goldman, Sachs & Co. For the terms and conditions of such Preference Stock and Common Stock, reference is made to the bankers' circular published today, copies of which may be had upon request.

Under the plan of organization of the Company, there are available shares of its Preference Stock and Common Stock for exchange for the common stocks listed in the subjoined table, under the plan set forth herein. This plan of exchange is arranged as a means of acquiring blocks of such stocks for the Company's investment account.

Accordingly, the Company is prepared to receive from financial institutions and security dealers (acting in their own behalf or for account of clients) tenders of blocks of one or more of such common stocks for exchange on the basis indicated below.

DEMAND DEPOSITS DECREASE IN WEEK

Condition Report of Member Banks Shows Increase in Time Deposits.

BANKS IN 101 CITIES LISTED

Holdings of United States Government Securities Show Little Change.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in 101 leading cities on Aug. 14 shows declines for the week of $132,000,000 in loans and investments, of $49,000,000 in net demand deposits and of $44,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve Banks, and an increase of $18,000,000 in time deposits.

Loans on securities declined $143,000,000 at all reporting banks as well as at reporting banks in the New York district and $7,000,000 in the Chicago district, and increased $9,000,000 in the San Francisco district. "All other" loans increased $13,000,000 in the New York district, $18,000,000 in the Chicago district and $41,000,000 at all reporting banks and declined $11,000,000 in the Kansas City district.

Holdings of United States Government securities show little change for the week, while holdings of other securities declined $16,000,000 in the New York district, $7,000,000 in the Chicago district, and $21,000,000 at all reporting banks.

Net demand deposits, which at all reporting banks were $49,000,000 below the Aug. 7 total, declined $44,000,000 in the New York district, $22,000,000 in the Chicago district, $9,000,000 in the Cleveland district and $8,000,000 in the Richmond district, and increased $19,000,000 in the San Francisco district and $9,000,000 in the Atlanta district. An increase of $29,000,000 in time deposits in the Chicago district was partly offset by reductions in most of the other districts.

The principal changes in borrowings from Federal Reserve Banks for the week comprise a decrease of $98,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and increases of $18,000,000 at Cleveland, $15,000,000 at Philadelphia.

RESERVE LOANS SHOW AN INCREASE

With Investments, Member Banks Report Rise of $318,000,000 in Three Months.

$35,711,000,000 ON JUNE 29

Loans Advance $714,000,000 and Investments Drop $396,000,000 in the Quarter.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP).—Loans and investments of Federal Reserve member banks were shown to have increased $318,000,000 in three months from March 27, in figures announced today by the Federal Reserve Board as received on the bank call of June 29. Loans and investments totaled $35,711,000,000 on June 29, which was an increase of $650,000,000 in the last year.

Total loans of the banks increased $714,000,000 for the quarter and $1,356,000,000 during the year, while investments in United States securities and other securities declined $396,000,000 during the quarter and $706,000,000 during the year.

Loans of member banks from New York City increased $587,000,000 between March 27 and June 29 and $913,000,000 during the year, while their investments in United States Government and other securities declined $153,000,000 for the quarter and $191,000,000 during the year.

Member banks in Chicago reported a decrease of $23,000,000 in loans since March 27 and of $23,000,000 in the last year, and a decrease of $3,000,000 in investments for the quarter and of $114,000,000 for the year.

Loans of member banks in other reserve cities went up $56,800,000 between March 27 and June 29 and $131,000,000 during the year, while their investments declined $122,000,000 during the quarter and $258,000,000 through the year. At country banks loans on June 29 were $94,000,000 higher than on March 27 and $339,000,000 above a year ago. Investments of country banks showed a decline of $117,000,000 for the quarter and $143,000,000 for the year.

Net demand deposits of all member banks, the board reported, on June 29 aggregated $18,977,000,000 or about $114,000,000 above the March 27 total, but $213,000,000 less than a year ago. Member banks in New York City reported an increase of $271,000,000 in net demand deposits for the quarter ended June 29, while member banks in Chicago reported a decline of $13,000,000. Other Reserve city banks showed a decline of $19,000,000 and country banks a decline of $96,000,000. For the year ended June 29 member banks in New York City reported an increase of $155,000,000 in net demand deposits, member banks in Chicago a decline of $47,000,000, other Reserve city banks a decline of $208,000,000 and country banks a decrease of $118,000,000.

Capital and surplus of member banks was $186,000,000 above the total reported last March 27 and nearly $600,000,000 above the total reported for June of last year.

Your Will Is a Call on Future Service

WHEN YOU make your will you cannot foresee the business and economic changes that may occur during the period required to settle your estate or carry out trusts you have created.

You can, however, assure that your executor and trustee will be in close touch with business and financial affairs, and have the organization and experience necessary for the sound administration of your estate—by appointing this Company in your will.

Our Service in the Planning of Your Will

WE do not draw wills, but our long experience is available to you in planning the practical provisions of your will. We shall be glad to discuss our service with you at the Trust Department of any of our offices.

Our booklet, "Questions to Decide When Making Your Will," will be sent on request.

TRADING IS QUIET IN COUNTER STOCKS

Insurance Issues Most Active, but Some Leaders Decline After Early Strength.

FIRM TONE IN INDUSTRIALS

The over-the-counter market was quiet yesterday, with insurance stocks showing the greatest activity. Trading in bank, chain store and utility stocks was generally dull.

In the insurance group Massachusetts Bonding, Aetna Life, Boston, North River, United States Merchants and Shippers Preferred Accident Insurance, City and National Union Fire were higher. Several leaders of the group declined after an early display of strength. Among these were Connecticut General Life, Globe and Rutgers, Home and Maryland Casualty.

Fractional declines were registered by some of the leading utilities, while industrials displayed a firm tone. In the latter group, Foster Wheeler common, Welch Grape Juice preferred, West Virginia Pulp and Paper common and Wheeling Steel A and B preferred were higher, while Dictaphone preferred and West Virginia Pulp and Paper preferred were lower.

The bank stocks were irregular, Kings County, Commercial National, First National, Guaranty and National City advancing, while Murray Hill, Times Square, Chatham Phenix and Pennsylvania Exchange were lower.

CHANGE IN BROOKLYN EAGLE

F. E. Gannett Transfers Control to the Gannett Company, Inc.

Frank E. Gannett has passed the control of The Brooklyn Daily Eagle, purchased by him last January, to the Gannett Company, Inc., a holding company formed by him to manage his chain of newspapers. The holding company's shares recently were listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

The transaction involved the purchase of all common stock of The Brooklyn Daily Eagle Corporation by the Gannett Company, Inc. The Brooklyn Daily Eagle Corporation owns all the capital stock of the Brooklyn Publishing Company, which in turn owns 68.51 per cent of the capital stock of The Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

Other recent acquisitions of the Gannett Company, Inc., from the personal holdings of Frank E. Gannett, are Th eAlbany Evening News, The Knickerbocker Press, The Ithaca Journal-News, The Malone Telegram and The Ogdensburg Republican-Journal.

TWO RADIO CONCERNS DISCUSSING MERGER

Reports of negotiations for a merger of the Charles Freshman Company with the Kolster Radio Corporation were confirmed yesterday by Clarence A. Earl, president of Freshman, after the stockholders of the company had met and changed its name to the Earl Radio Corporation.

One report was that an agreement had been reached for an exchange of stocks on a basis of one share of Kolster for three shares of Freshman. Mr. Earl said his company would not consider such an exchange, as the intrinsic value of the Freshman stock was not properly reflected by its price on the New York Curb Exchange, where it is quoted around 10. He said sales of the company in June and July had been 350 per cent greater than in the same months of 1928.

Kolster Radio closed at 30¼ on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday.

The two companies will have a combined output this year of approximately $50,000,000.

It is expected that officials of the two companies will meet within a few days to discuss a possible basis for an exchange of stocks.

DIVIDENDS ANNOUNCED.

GENERAL LIST RISES IN UPSWING ON CURB

Many New High Records Set Following Gains by Electric Bond and Share Group.

OIL STOCKS LESS ACTIVE

The utilities returned to the lead on the Curb Market yesterday, a general rise following a brisk gain in the Electric Bond and Share group. Leading industrials also soared, a number advancing to new high levels. The oils were less active and declined moderately, with few exceptions. The investment trusts moved forward on a small scale as a rule.

In the public utility group Electric Bond and Share continued its advance, setting a new high mark, as did Cities Service. Strong gains were scored by Applied Power and Light, American Light and Traction, American Superpower, Central States Electric, Electric Investors, Long Island Lighting and United Light Power A. American and Foreign Power warrants rose to a new high. Moderate gains occurred in American Gas and Electric, Middle West Utilities and United Gas Improvement.

Among the oils Chesebrough in small trading rose briskly to a record peak, while losses occurred in Humble Oil, Ohio Oil, Vacuum Oil, Standard of Indiana and Standard of Ohio.

In the investment trust section Haygart, Goldman Sachs, Shenandoah Trans-American and utility and industrials moved forward, and National Investors advanced sharply to a new high mark.

In the general list new highs were set by Anchor Post Fence, Dayton Aircraft, Donner Steel, Hood Rubber, International Cigar Machinery, Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator and National Casket. Strength was also shown by Atlas Plywood, Grigsby-Grunow and Tung-Sol Lamp, while declines appeared in Newport Company and U. S. Gypsum.

UTILITY EARNINGS.

Statements Covering Twelve Months Issued by Public Service Corporations.

Associated Gas and Electric.

The Associated Gas and Electric System reports for the twelve months ended on June 30 gross earnings and other income of $61,560,693, an increase of $20,191,970, or 49 per cent, over the preceding year. Net earnings after expenses and taxes were $28,196,556, an increase of $9,929,491, or 54 per cent.

After allowing for underlying preferred dividends and interest of subsidiary operating companies there was a balance of $22,240,706, a gain of $9,104,003, or 69 per cent. The balance for dividends and depreciation of the parent company was $12,330,215, an increase of $4,169,597, or 51 per cent. Net income after depreciation was $9,038,418, against $8,147,182 in the preceding year, an increase of $2,891,236, or 47 per cent.

Public Utilities Consolidated.

The Public Utilities Consolidated Corporation reports gross earnings of $2,617,328 for the twelve months ended on May 31, an increase of $174,139 over the preceding year. Net income before interest, depreciation and amortization was $1,129,627, a gain of 10.02 per cent.

Kansas City Public Service.

The Kansas City Public Service Company reports net income after all charges for the seven months ended on July 31 of $453,356. The net for July was $48,094.

Insull Gets Loper Fire Alarm Co.

STONINGTON, Conn., Aug. 19 (AP).—It was announced today that the Federal Electric Company of Chicago, an Insull organization, had purchased the Loper Fire Alarm Company for about $250,000. The Fire Alarm Company was established eighteen years ago by A. P. Loper, sole owner, who remains as consulting engineer. The business will be moved to Chicago. The Federal company also purchased Mr. Loper's patent on a wireless fire alarm system.

Associated Gas Offer Ends Sept. 10.

The Associated Gas and Electric Company announced yesterday that on Sept. 10 all offers of exchange of securities of the parent and subsidiary companies would end, and that no other voluntary exchange offers would be made this year. There are 962,968 common and preferred shares exchangeable for 6 per cent convertible debentures and $177,160,350 bonds exchangeable for 5½ per cent investment certificates.

F. J. Cavanaugh in Curb Position.

The board of governors of the New York Curb Exchange has made Frank J. Cavanaugh purchasing director of the institution. William A. Lockwood, counsel to the exchange, will be among the speakers at the twelfth annual convention of the National Association of Securities Commissioners now being held at St. Paul, Minn.

WHEAT PRICES DROP, LACKING SUPPORT

Market Is Regarded as Overbought and Profit-Taking Starts Values Down.

VISIBLE SUPPLY LARGER

Trade in Corn Is Light and the Market Is Easier—Oats Close Uneven—Rye Off.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Wheat values were on the down grade a good part of the day, due largely to profit-taking as the result of the advance of over 12 cents from the low point of last week. Technically, the market was regarded as overbought and a profit-taking movement found support less aggressive. The finish was at the bottom, with net losses of 2¾ to 3¼ cents.

A crop of 320,000,000 bushels of wheat for Canada was suggested by the Canadian Pacific Railroad's interpretation of the recent government report and this report, with the increase of 13,355,000 bushels in the domestic visible supply, had some affect on values by inducing selling. Winnipeg weakened and closed 2¼ to 3⅛ cents lower, while Buenos Aires, after being 2¼ cents higher early, was 1⅛ cents lower at the close. Liverpool finished unchanged to ⅜ pence lower.

Commission houses were on both sides of the market on a fairly liberal scale, with scattered longs gradually getting out of September and into the deferred deliveries. Cash interests bought September and sold December at about 3½ cents difference. The total visible supply is the largest on record, aggregating 189,368,000 bushels, against 156,013,000 bushels the previous week and 79,065,000 bushels last year.

The spot basis here and at Kansas City was steady to 1 cent lower, as compared with the September. Threshing operations are making progress in the Canadian Northwest, with 19 cars of new wheat received at Winnipeg.

Primary arrivals today, 4,315,000 bushels; week ago, 6,034,000 bushels; last year, 3,918,000 bushels. Shipments, 2,456,000 bushels; week ago, 2,257,000 bushels; last year, 1,325,000 bushels.

Trade in corn was light and the market easier with wheat, the close being at net losses of ⅞ to 1¼ cents, May showing the most decline. Increasing complaints of dry weather damage are coming from Nebraska and there is an almost general need of rains now over the greater part of the belt.

There are only 434,000 bushels of contract grain in store in public elevators here. A decline of ½ cent in the spot basis was due more to lack of demand than to pressure of cash grain. The visible supply decreased 1,180,000 bushels for the week and is 7,105,000 bushels, against 8,285,000 bushels the previous week and 12,423,000 bushels last year.

Primary arrivals today, 470,000 bushels; week ago, 786,000 bushels; last year, 702,000 bushels. Shipments, 999,000 bushels; week ago, 486,000 bushels; last year, 610,000 bushels.

Oats were unchanged to ¼ cent lower with September leading. Rye was off 2¾ to 2¾ cents.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

Extols Virtues of Black Raspberry.

Black raspberries can regain the recognition and popularity that they once enjoyed and so much deserve only by the development of better varieties, says Dr. U. P. Hedrick, director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station in Geneva and for many years in charge of the station's fruit investigations, in commenting on the decline in black raspberry culture in New York. The station is making a special effort to breed superior kinds of black-caps and already has a most promising new sort, adds Dr. Hedrick. "No small fruit has yielded so readily to domestication and none is more easily improved than the black raspberry," says this authority. "Systematic breeding of black-caps will give more immediate results than in any other small fruit."

Dinner for Max J. Schneider.

Max J. Schneider, who recently was appointed a vice president of the Lefcourt National Bank and Trust Company and will be in charge of the bank's two branches in the Bronx, will be entertained at a dinner on Thursday in the Concourse Plaza Hotel to celebrate his entrance into the banking field. Honorary chairmen of the dinner committee are District Attorney McGeehan of the Bronx, County Judge James M. Barrett and I. J. P. Adlerman, Assistant District Attorney.

HAGUE STILL A CITY OF QUAINT CUSTOMS

Sinister-Looking Aanspreker Announces Deaths While Lace on Doors Indicates Births.

The Hague, Holland's capital, where the momentous world conference to discuss the new plan for settling the German reparations problem assembled, is in Southwestern Holland, about two miles inland from Scheveningen on the coast.

"The tourist on his first trip to Holland might mistake The Hague for a transplanted French city," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society. "There are no signs of windmills, or quaint Dutch caps, or wooden sabots, or any of the colorful things that first visitors to Holland expect to see even in the cities.

"Except for the occasional Aanspreker who treads the streets, the inhabitants look like any crowd of New Yorkers that one might pick out at random. The Aanspreker, the modern survivor of an early custom, makes the rounds of the neighborhoods announcing deaths. He is attired in somber black, with a large tri-cornered hat from which hangs a floating black streamer, and square-toed black pumps with huge silver buckles. Sometimes in the fish market there may be seen fisherwomen from Scheveningen in picturesque peasant costumes.

"Even the buildings of The Hague have a French touch. Although they are mostly the square, solid structures usually associated with Dutch architecture, they are embellished with decorative motifs in the French manner. Exquisite lace curtains adorn the windows of the larger private houses. Dwellings where the door is decorated with a large square of lace, hearing in the centre an embroidered coat of arms, are announcing the advent of a child in the family.

"The wide streets of The Hague, with their flat, yellow stone pavements, are immaculately clean. Large automobiles bearing coats of arms and splendid carriages roll through the streets. The city is the home of many of the Dutch nobility. Besides these people, with their picturesque but little-used titles of Count, Baron and Jonkheer, are wealthy diplomats from all the countries of Europe. The wealth embodied in the population is shown in the handsome houses of the city and the spacious shops which line Spui Straat and the Lange Poten.

"Compared with Amsterdam and Rotterdam, The Hague has very few canals. Those that exist are found in the byways rather than in the main streets. However, a resident of The Hague can view all the canals he desires by taking the railway trip of one hour to Amsterdam or the half-hour trip to Rotterdam. Many tired business men, wearied of the commercial aspects of Amsterdam and Rotterdam, commute every day to the comparative quiet of The Hague. Like Washington, it is a city of few industries.

"Also, just as Washington has its famous Rock Creek Park, The Hague has its famous Bosch, a large wood east of the city, where tame deer roam. Numerous precise little paths intersect the heavily wooded area. The Huis ten Bosch, or House in the Woods, a villa erected in 1647, is situated in the northeast corner of the park. It is noted for its interior done in Dutch, Japanese and Chinese. In the Japanese room is a chandelier made of cups and saucers. The Chinese room is papered in eighteenth century rice paper.

"Washington has its reflecting pool mirroring the Lincoln Memorial, and The Hague has the Vyver, a lake situated almost in the centre of the town, and surrounded by handsome buildings which it reflects. Near by stands the Binnenhof, a group of medieval buildings, The Hall of Knights, a lofty gabled and turreted building, is the most prominent.

"Perhaps the most famous building in The Hague is the Palace of Peace, built largely through the munificence of the late Andrew Carnegie. It was constructed from a design submitted in an international competition, and is of brick set off by marble trimmings.

"The Hague possesses one of the most famous collections of pictures in Europe in the museum at the Mauritshuis."

CANAL SETS RECORD IN WESTBOUND TONNAGE

Increase in Panama Waterway in May Was 195,015—Less in the Other Direction.

Statistics now available show that the cargo tonnage in the Panama Canal in May from the Atlantic to the Pacific set a new record for that month, increasing 195,015 tons over May, 1928. In the opposite direction tonnage fell off 155,764, making an increase in both directions over May, 1928, of 39,251 tons. The figures for the month were: Atlantic to Pacific, 920,269 tons this year, compared with 725,345 last year, and in the opposite direction 1,616,479 tons in May, 1929, and 1,772,243 last year. This also was the heaviest tonnage westbound of any month in the canal's history.

The low tonnage from the Pacific to the Atlantic was accounted for principally by the comparatively light shipments of grain and lumber, these two commodities having decreased 340,000 tons. These decreases were partly offset, however, by increased shipments in mineral oils and sugar, says The Panama Canal Record in analysing the movement of freight. In the opposite direction, cement, manufactured iron and steel, mineral oils, sugar, sulphur and cotton showed large gains.

"Sixty-five and three-tenths per cent of the cargo tonnage from the Atlantic to the Pacific originated on the eastern and Gulf seaboards of the United States and 2.44 per cent in Europe," says The Record. "Cargo originating in the United States was 119,061 tons, or 24.9 per cent greater than the tonnage from the United States in May, 1928, although the proportion of the total in May, 1928 (66.4 per cent), was slightly higher. Cargo from Europe also increased as compared with the corresponding month last year, 58,348 tons, or 29.6 per cent, while, with relation to the total tonnage, the percentage coming from this area in May, 1928, was higher than that passing through last month.

"Thirty-nine and eight-tenths per cent of the Pacific-bound cargo was destined to the United States, 20.4 per cent to Asia, 15.6 per cent to South America and 15.2 per cent to Australasia. Tonnage to all of these areas increased over May, 1928, the amounts of 92,632 tons, or 13.1 per cent; 38,348 tons, or 26.5 per cent; 38,226 tons, or 26.3 per cent and 45,538 tons, or 43.2 per cent, respectively. The percentage of the total destined to South America and Australasia was also slightly higher in May, 1929, while that to the United States and Asia was lower last month than in May, 1928.

"Of the cargo moving from the Pacific to the Atlantic 50 per cent came from the west coast of the United States, 27 per cent from South America, 11.9 per cent from Canada, 5.7 per cent from Asia and 4.1 per cent from Australasia. Cargo movement from Canada registered the heaviest decrease, from 383,745 to 191,898, a difference of 191,847 tons, or approximately 50 per cent, in comparison with the corresponding month last year; this was on account of lessened grain movement from that area. In May, 1928, Canada contributed to 21.7 per cent of the Atlantic-bound cargo. Tonnage from the United States and Australasia registered smaller decreases in the amounts, 16,619 tons, on 2 per cent, and 19,179 tons, or 12.4 per cent, respectively, under May, 1928, although the percentage of the total from the United States last month was higher than in May, 1928. Cargo tonnage from Asia increased 61,370 tons over May, 1928 (92,772 tons, compared with 31,402), a gain of approximately 200 per cent, owing to several large shipments of sugar and cocoanut oil from the Philippine Islands. Cargo from South America gained a little less than 600 tons, although the tonnage with relation to the total was considerably higher in May, 1929.

CHANCE OF PROFIT IN POOR FARM LAND

Secretary Hyde Proposes Tree Culture as a Step in Agricultural Relief.

WOULD CUT SURPLUS CROPS

Planting of Forests Would Also Contribute to Soil Conservation and Flood Prevention.

Diversion to timber growing of certain lands now being farmed at a loss is advocated as a measure contributing to farm relief by Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture.

In writing to a Pennsylvania farmer-engineer in reply to an inquiry similar to others received from many parts of the country, the secretary emphasized the practicability of extending forestry practice at a profit to lands which, though best suited to timber growing, are adding to surplus production of agricultural crops at a loss. It was pointed out that extension of forestry to marginal and submarginal lands would not only be a practical measure of farm relief but at the same time would increase future supplies of wood and contribute to soil conservation and flood prevention.

"Our agricultural economists," the secretary wrote, "know that much land that is submarginal for agriculture is still being cultivated, notwithstanding the fact that many millions of acres of farm land have been abandoned during the past two decades. The pressure of increasing poverty will eventually force the cultivators of submarginal agricultural land to abandon their farms also. Meanwhile, however, their misdirected efforts not only lead to their own impoverishment but are an important factor in contributing to the depression of the entire industry.

Federal Purchase Proposal.

"The proposal that a reasonable amount of such lands, in regions where depression is most acute and the prospects of early agricultural success most dubious, be purchased by the Federal government or some other agency financially able to carry the investment for a sufficient period to realize on the greater value of the land for forestry purposes, has much to commend it as a humane and businesslike measure.

"Some such plan might possibly be worked out on a scale sufficiently large to be of real consequence as a farm relief measure. It should, of course, be coordinated with the forest land purchases now being conducted by the Department of Agriculture under the general control of the National Forest Reservation Commission.

"In any event the farm lands which have already been abandoned require attention. For the most part such land under present circumstances springs up to an incomplete, inferior, and relatively unproductive forest. Unquestionably there needs to be a much broader conception of the forest as a farm crop, which by proper methods of establishment and culture can be made a real revenue producer and a valuable feature of diversified agriculture. A more systematic and aggressive effort to secure the acceptance of this idea by farm owners and probably, in some measure, to provide for public acquisition of such lands would be desirable.

"The problem of bringing larger areas of land into use for timber growing has been given some detailed consideration by this department during recent years, and plans have been discussed looking toward a detailed economic classification of lands and toward other fundamental studies which would supply the basic information needed for converting to and maintaining in forest those lands that are economically most suited to that use.

Matter of Taxation.

"The matter of taxation is important. Many States have tried by exemptions, bounties and special forms of forest taxation to promote reforestation and forestry practice by private owners. To only a small degree have these efforts been successful.

"The situation is one of such importance and complexity that under the terms of the Clark-McNary law this department, through the Forest Service, is making a thorough-going investigation of sound principles of forest taxation. That study has been under way for two or three years and will continue for at least that much longer.

"On the whole, it appears that forest lands can and should bear their share of taxation. However, it is important to determine what is a fair tax to place on forest lands and then to develop a system providing for payment at such times and in such ways as will not be an unreasonable obstacle to growing forest crops by private owners."

Canton Crepes in Active Call.

A good call for Canton crêpes is noted in the silk trade. Manufacturers find price levels of the Canton raw silk used in these goods attractive in comparison with those prevailing on Japanese sorts. In a season of strong price pressure the difference is a factor meeting the price views of buyers of silk goods. Flat crêpes in lower and medium price ranges continue active. The demand for satins promises to grow with the advance of the season. Transparent velveta with silk back are sold well ahead.

Gets Order for Auto Brakes.

Says High Waistlines Will Take.

Little question of the acceptance of the higher waistlines sponsored by Paris should exist in the minds of buyers, one of the best-posted dress men in the market said yesterday. There is one angle, however, that should not be overlooked. That is that the new silhouette is more acceptable to young women and small women than to women of more matronly figures. Advance business done in sizes 16 to 20 was said by the informant of THE TIMES to prove this, as does the hesitancy of buyers to take up the new models in sizes 38 to 42. Whereas the new silhouette gives a desirable "grown up" look to young women and small women, he said, the higher waistline brings the upper figure of larger women into prominence.

Jewelry Matches Fall Necklines.

Orders for novelty jewelry are steadily increasing, with deliveries to retailers of lines recently offered beginning early in September. Designs of many of the new necklaces are in harmony with the varied neckline treatments of Fall dresses. They feature stone and metal combinations, with much use of gold and silver finishes. Pearls and crystals continue in marked favor and are expected to be active through the season in both choker and longer lengths. Baguette crystals are emphasized in better grade merchandise. There is a general trend toward the use of semi-precious gems in items set with stones. Earrings are now gaining.

Dress Production Costs Rise.

Higher production costs on the new Fall models incorporating longer skirts will make competition between the higher and lower-price garments in the popular-price field less severe than for some time, it was said here yesterday. The greater yardage required to make the new styles, it was added, will make it difficult for manufacturers of $3.75 to $10.75 garments to offer the good values they have in recent seasons. Adding four to six inches to the length of a skirt means adding from eight to twenty-four inches in the yardage used in a dress, it was pointed out. When thousands of dresses are cut this is no small factor. The additional labor required to make the new styles is also increasing production costs.

Warns of Foreign "Sample" Trick

A warning to manufacturers to make thorough investigation before committing themselves to the purchase of "sample" shipments of tool steel, bearing and babbit metal and packing from foreign companies is being prepared by the headquarters of the National Association of Purchasing Agents. The warning, according to G. A. Renard, secretary of the organization, is made necessary because of the increasing number of complaints from those who have signed order blanks for sample shipments, which they thought called for $10 worth of merchandise and later learned that their ignorance of the foreign contract had committed them to the purchase of $1,000 or $5,000 worth of goods.

Spring Clothing Levels Stable.

Prices on Spring clothing lines will be practically stabilized owing to the slight changes in quotations which mark lightweight woolens, it was said here yesterday. Values in the $22.50 and $35 retail ranges, however, will show up strongly. No letup is indicated in the merchandising attention that will be given the former range, which is credited with retaining its market importance from a volume standpoint. The two-pants suit, it was added, will also be stressed, despite the belief in manufacturing quarters that its vogue has hurt the clothing trade in cutting down the average number of suits bought by consumers.

Banjo Clocks Selling Well.

The banjo wall clock continues an outstanding item in the clock trade. It is being well ordered in a variety of colors and ornamentation. Tambour and smaller Gothic shape clocks with chimes are in demand, but principally in mahogany and walnut woods. Color is finding its greatest use in kitchen clocks, with green, red and yellow hues favored. Increased business is reported in novelty numbers such as desk clocks of ship's wheel design and combinations of timepieces and barometers. Manufacturers are looking forward to increased buying activity right after Labor Day.

Early Start on Topcoats.

Retailers are planning an early start on their Fall topcoat offerings, clearances of men's Summer clothings now dwindling. Indications are that in the higher grade merchandise camel's hair, llama and other pile fabric garments will repeat their success of last Fall. A gain in interest is reported in cheviot topcoats, particularly styles featuring the smoother finish weaves. Buying has centred mainly on straightline styles with set-in sleeves, the percentage of raglans being smaller and only evident to any degree in imported lines.

Will Watch Haywood Merger.

One angle of the coming of the T. Holt Haywood and the Dickson & Valentine departments of the Commercial Factors Corporation, which was reported in yesterday's TIMES, attracted considerable attention in the Worth Street district. That was Mr. Haywood's leaving New York after the merger becomes effective on Jan. 1 to take charge of the office to be established by the new concern at Winston-Salem, N. C. It was regarded as establishing a new and important angle of merchandising, in having a competent distributer in close touch with the mills represented. It was pointed out that Mr. Haywood is especially fitted for this. Not only is he a graduate of the Philadelphia Textile School, but a practical mill man by experience. The idea will be carefully watched.

Cotton Rise Aids Gray Goods.

The advance in cotton yesterday was of material aid to the local gray goods market in strengthening the price tone. First hands were firm in their price position, and second hand offerings were lacking from all accounts. Printcloth sales of the day included 39-inch 68-72s at 5⅝ cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 7⅛ cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 6⅝ cents. Forty-inch 2.50-yard sheetings sold at 13½ cents, and prices for 2.85s in the same width ranged from 10¾ cents to 11. For 37-inch 48-square 4-yard sheetings 8¼ cents was paid. Not much was done in the fine-yarn goods or specialties, although good makes of 37½-inch 4.37-yard sateens moved at 11 cents.

AVERAGE PRICES SHOW LITTLE CHANGE IN YEAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Continued upward movement of wholesale prices is shown for July by data collected in leading markets by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor. The bureau's weighted index number stands at 98 for July compared with 96.4 for June, an increase of 1 2-3 per cent. There was an increase of 2¼ per cent over May, when the index number was 95.8, the lowest level reached during the present year. Compared with July, 1928, with an index number of 98.8, a decrease of one-third of 1 per cent is shown.

Farm products showed the greatest price increases from June to July, with pronounced advances for all grains, especially wheat, and for eggs and potatoes. The net increase for the group as a whole was more than 4 per cent. Foods also showed a decided increase in average price, with wheat flour, cornmeal and certain meat products advancing considerably. Butter, cheese and milk showed a decrease in average price. The net gain in the group as a whole was slightly less than 4 per cent.

Hides and skins and leather continued their upward movement, resulting in a net increase of over 1 per cent for the hides and leather products group. Boots and shoes and other leather products showed very little or no change.

Textile products and fuel and lighting materials recorded the greatest decreases among the groups as a whole. Minor changes took place in metals and metal products and building materials, with no change shown for the group of chemicals and drugs.

Raw materials, semi-manufactured articles and finished products all averaged higher than in June, as did also non-agricultural commodities, taken as a whole.

Of the 550 commodities or price series for which comparable information for June and July was collected, increases were shown in 130 instances and decreases in 118 instances. In 302 instances no change in price was reported.

Comparing prices in July with those of a year ago, as measured by changes in the index numbers, it is seen that metals and metal products were considerably higher, while building materials were somewhat higher. Smaller increases took place during the year period in farm products, foods, house-furnishing goods, and articles classed as miscellaneous. Hides and leather products decreased over 12 per cent from July, 1928, to July, 1929, with smaller decreases shown for textile products, chemicals and drugs, and fuel and lighting materials.

The July index number for the principal groups of commodities compares as follows with June, 1929, and July, 1928. The monthly average of 1926 is reckoned as 100:

COPPER PRODUCTION CONTINUES TO DECLINE

World's Output for July Less Than for Any of the Previous Three Months.

A further decline in the world production of copper during July was reported yesterday. The daily average for the month was 5,631 short tons, compared with 5,820 in June, 6,217 in May and 6,561 in April. The daily average for the full year 1928 was 5,236 tons, and for the second half of last year it was 5,519 tons.

The output of reporting countries in short tons, together with an estimate of the American Bureau of Metal Statistics of the unreported output that comes to about 2 per cent of the total, is given in the following table:

	May.	June.	July.
United States	108,561	90,529	94,600
Mexico	6,036	5,282	5,627
Canada	5,955	6,211	7,190
Chile and Peru	38,947	32,068	31,222
Japan	6,139	6,780	6,954
Australia	1,303	811	737
*Europe	12,000	12,400	11,800
†Belgian Congo	13,228	12,576	13,567
†Elsewhere	3,060	3,000	3,000

W. R. Ingalls, director of the bureau, reports that the world's production of copper during the first half of 1929 was 22.4 per cent greater than during the same period of 1928. Figures of the bureau indicate a refinery output of 1,095,318 short tons in the first half of this year, compared with 876,235 tons in the first half of 1928, an increase of 24.9 per cent. Mr. Ingalls says the world production of copper as reported by refiners is always in excess of that reported by the smelters because of the inclusion by the former of reworked scraps.

TIN FUTURES ARE QUIET.

Prices at the Close Show Little Change From Last Week.

Tin prices showed little variation from the close of last week on the National Metal Exchange yesterday. August and September had a net rise for the day of 5 points, while October rose 10 points. The turnover was fifty tons, with the first and last hours the only active periods at 35 and 15 tons, respectively. The market closed dull.

Price ranges yesterday were:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.	Last Year.
August	46.40	46.40	46.30n	46.25
September	46.40	46.35	46.30n	46.25
October	46.75	46.60	46.60	46.50

Bids on the copper market on the Exchange indicated strength, asked prices in some cases being above the price of electrolytic copper in the outside market.

HIDE FUTURES ADVANCE.

Turnover on Exchange 160,000 Pounds, All in December Position.

Continued firmness in the spot market remained a bullish factor in hide futures trading yesterday on the New York Hide Exchange and resulted in another price advance. Trading continued moderate, the turnover for the session being 160,000 pounds, all confined to the December option, which made a net gain of 20 points.

POLICE THINK SUICIDES ARE MOSTLY INSANE

Police blotters everywhere are filled with brief reports of suicides and attempted suicides. Most of the victims are elderly men and women, although occasionally they are young people who take their lives in a fit of depression. As a rule the story behind these little tragedies is prosaic enough.

The victims are either down and out or ill and depressed. They feel they are a burden to themselves and to others, and after periods of brooding they quietly make their exist from the world. Some of them make several attempts to end it all before they are successful.

According to the police there would be fewer suicides if persons possessed of the mania could be placed in institutions until they could recover their mental balance. Desk lieutenants who have studied such cases are convinced that most of the victims are suffering from some form of insanity. They cannot understand why sane men and women would take painful methods to snuff out their lives. For instance, there are suicides who hurl themselves from windows and roofs. Although some of them are killed instantly, others live for several hours, enduring great suffering. And there are suicides who swallow poisons and die in agony.

Cocoa.

Heavy liquidation in the final minute of trading sent prices lower yesterday on the New York Cocoa Exchange and the market closed from 2 to 15 points lower. At the opening, the market was influenced by strong European and local buying, but late in the afternoon sentiment changed and a large volume of futures was offered with no bidders. Sales totaled 210 lots, or 2,814 tons.

RAW SILK FUTURES EASY.

Decline Follows Profit-Taking by Speculative Interests.

Raw silk futures closed easy yesterday on the National Raw Silk Exchange. Trading was fair, ninety-five contracts changing hands, equivalent to 825 bales. Interest centred in new contracts, which totaled seventy, or 700 bales. All active options were lower, the result of liquidation and profit-taking by speculative interests. Far Eastern markets, while reported firm, showed declines of from 2 to 7 points. Another factor was the number of transferable notices issued yesterday against old August options, which totaled sixty. This had a tendency to bear down on prices in that position and the rest of the list dropped accordingly.

LIVE STOCK AT CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Hog prices were generally 25 to 35 cents lower and values the lowest in six weeks, with some sales at the last showing 50 cents decline as compared with the extreme of Friday. The top was lowered 10 cents, to $11.75, with the general average 25 cents lower at $10.50. The break was due to larger receipts than anticipated. Bulk of sales were at $9.75 to $11.35, with 250-to-350-pound butchers quoted at $10.15 to $11.15, 200-to-250-pound kinds at $10.75 to $11.75 and 160-to-200-pound averages at $11.15 to $11.75. Packing sows sold at $8.75 to $9.75. Packers bought 26,900 and shippers 6,000, with 9,000 left over. Receipts, 42,000, with 20,000 estimated for tomorrow.

While best steers sold at former prices, the bulk of offerings sold at 25 to 50 cents decline. Receipts of 27,000 were the largest since Nov. 10. Best steers sold at $17, with bulk of beef cattle at $13.50 to $16. Liberal receipts had a depressing effect on lambs and prices were weak to 25 cents lower. Bulk of natives sold at $13 to $13.50, with Westerns at $13.40 to $13.50. Sheep steady, $5 to $6. Receipts, 24,000.

LIVE STOCK AND MEATS.

These prices were reported yesterday in the New York and New Jersey markets by the United States Department of Agriculture.

RUBBER FUTURES DROP.

Prices in Sharp Decline on Exchange Due to Statistical Position.

Liquidation, chiefly from commission houses in the shape of stop-loss orders, sent rubber futures down 30 to 50 points at the start of the week on the Rubber Exchange yesterday. Much of the selling was based on an unfavorable turn in the statistical position for the commodity, both here and abroad.

London closed steady after being easy. Spot and August, 10 1-16d; September, 10⅛d; October-December, 10¼d; January-March, 10 9-16d. April-June, 10 13-16d, bid, and 816 to 5-16d down. Singapore was easier and down 5-16d on all positions.

TO CENTRE TIRE BUSINESS.

United States Rubber Company Will Concentrate at Detroit.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Aug. 19.—Tire activities of the United States Rubber Company will be concentrated at Detroit within a few weeks by F. B. Davis, president, it was said today.

Executive, sales and office staffs of the company will be moved here from New York about Oct. 1. There will also be a greater centralization of the tire manufacturing operations at Hartford, Conn.

Economies in production, overhead cost and management; proximity to motor car and truck industries; better distributing facilities and closer coordination of tire making, are the advantages expected to accrue from this move, officials say.

COFFEE RECEIPTS DECREASE

A total of 794,586 bags of Brazilian coffee were in this country or afloat for this country on Aug. 17, compared with 907,031 bags on the same date last year and 933,052 in 1927, according to statistics compiled by the New York Sugar and Coffee Exchange.

From July 1 to yesterday receipts of coffees at Rio and Santos were 1,348,000 bags, as compared with 1,515,000 bags in the same period last year and 1,878,000 in the corresponding period in 1927.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 19.—The tropical disturbance in the absence of vessel reports near the centre is apparently moving west-northwestward with intensity unknown, probably central tonight about latitude 15, longitude 65. Caution has been advised to vessels south of Porto Rico and Santo Domingo during the next twenty-four hours.

Pressure is relatively low off the Middle and North Atlantic Coast and over the Carolinas and Central Georgia. The northwestern disturbance is moving slowly eastward, being central north of Manitoba. An area of high pressure is advancing slowly eastward over the lake region; and pressure is high in the region of Bermuda and on the North Pacific Coast.

During the last twenty-four hours showers and thunderstorms have occurred in the Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic States, Southern New England and over the Plains States and northern and middle Rocky Mountain region. Temperatures have fallen in the Middle Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley, the interior of New England and over the Northern Plains States; the shortest distance and Canadian Northwest.

The outlook is for showers on Wednesday in the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region, the Middle Atlantic States and Southern New England and for showers on Tuesday and Wednesday in the South Atlantic States and portions of Virginia. Elsewhere the weather will be fair Tuesday and Wednesday in the Washington forecast district. Temperatures will rise Tuesday night in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region.

COAST-WISE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours, from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and conditions at 8 A. M., and those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

OUR PEARL BUTTONS A COMPLEX PRODUCT

Ocean and Fresh Water Shells and Vegetable Ivory Used in Their Manufacture.

ARE LARGELY HANDMADE

Among the perplexities arising from the administration of the tax laws are those which are due to the nature of the business being taxed, the methods or materials used in manufacture, or other factors peculiar to an industry.

One of the problems with which the Bureau of Internal Revenue has had to contend is the valuation of pearl-button inventories. In a discussion of this subject in Internal Revenue News, Herbert G. Potthoff of the bureau's audit review division furnishes a survey of pearl button manufacturing and explains some of the industry's accounting features.

The manufacture of a pearl button, he says, is probably far more complex than the average layman realizes, it coming as a surprise to many to learn that such a button is largely handmade. Human fingers touch the cylindrical blank of shell in each productive process from the time it is cut from the shell until it emerges the finished button sewn on the card or placed in bulk.

Many different kinds of finished product having various market or selling values are all obtained from the same basic source—the mussel from the river. Buttons of every character—iridescent, ball, bevel, staple, first grade, second grade, fish eye, smoked, colored, tips, spots (dark and light), chips (light and heavy), ad infinitum, all having relatively different market values, are all produced from raw material having the same basic unit cost.

Quality of Shell Varies.

The quality of the shell likewise varies. Certain species of shell produce certain grades of buttons. Shells obtained from the various rivers vary in value and quality. Sandshell, niggerhead, pimple-back, &c., all have their distinctive qualities and respective commercial values.

The raw material in the manufacture of pearl buttons consists principally of ocean and fresh water shells and vegetable ivory (tagua nuts). This material is obtained from all parts of the world. The mussel or fresh water bivalve mollusk is found in the Mississippi River and its various tributaries; the ocean pearl shell is imported mainly from Manila, Western Australia, Singapore and the Sulu Sea; the vegetable ivory is obtained from tagua nuts grown in Ecuador, Colombia and Panama. Buttons are likewise manufactured from shin bones of cattle, from glass and from papier-mâché saturated with linseed oil.

Prior to 1890 Mr. Potthoff says, this country was dependent for its supply of buttons on foreign countries, mainly Austria-Hungary and Germany. Growth of the button industry subsequent to this time was steady and gradual. Protective tariff laws were enacted; the United States Bureau of Fisheries became active in the propagation and conservation of mussels; factories sprang up along the Mississippi River and its tributaries. Production of fresh water shells increased to such an extent that in 1913 this country was shipping mussel shells to Austria-Hungary and Germany, instead of being dependent on those countries. He continues:

"The problems confronting the bureau in applying the inventory valuation regulations to the fresh-water pearl button industry arose chiefly from the facts that so many different classes of buttons having various sales values are produced from the same raw material and that a uniform system of ascertaining true production costs of each class of buttons had not been established by the manufacturers.

"Many methods of valuation contrary to the regulations were used. The base stock or constant price, opinion value, estimated selling price, and arbitrary percentage write-off methods were all employed. Cost was considered impossible of ascertainment. Cost or market, whichever is lower, was deemed to be inapplicable to the industry.

"As the result, however, of cooperation between the bureau and the manufacturers a system of allocating the manufacturing costs to the several classes of buttons produced has been developed which not only complies with the requirements of the regulations but has been adopted as well by a majority of the members of the National Association of Button Manufacturers.

How Buttons Are Made.

"In the production of fresh-water pearl buttons, it appears, there are five major operations: (1) Cutting, in which a cylindrical piece of shell called a blank is produced with face and back unfinished; (2) grading, in which the blanks are classified according to the thickness determined by a roll classifier; (3) grinding, in which each blank is placed on a belt grinder and ground to a standard thickness, the shell back being entirely or partly removed; (4) machining, in which the face of each blank is shaped according to the required design—fish eye, bevel, ball, &c. (the number of holes, two, four, &c., are likewise drilled in this operation); (5) sorting, in which the finished button, after having been machined, polished, colored, smoked, &c., is sorted according to thickness and quality.

"From nine to fourteen grades are sorted according to degree of commercial value."

Buys New Home in Great Neck.

Dr. Maxwell J. Siegelstein has bought from the Reiss Holding Corporation a residence being completed for Sept. 15 occupancy at the southeast corner of Deep Dale and Wilbur Drives, Great Neck, together with an adjacent plot. The property was held at $145,000, according to Emanuel E. Siegelstein, who acted as attorney. Edgar Storms Jr. was the broker.

REVIEW OF THE DAY IN REALTY MARKET

Brokers Report a Few New Scattering Transactions in Manhattan.

DEAL IN CHELSEA SECTION

New York State Realty & Terminal Company Buys Twenty-third St. Parcel—Other Sales.

With only a few scattering deals in Manhattan reported yesterday, the day was one of the dullest of the Summer from the trading point of view.

No deal of importance was reported from the suburban area of the Bronx, but announcements were made of two important financing arrangements in Manhattan involving millions and which will result in the erection of two large buildings, one on Central Park West and the other on the upper east side.

The New York State Realty and Terminal Company, representing the New York Central Railroad Company, bought 510-512 West Twenty-third Street, a plot 57 by 98 feet. This parcel is the easterly portion of the 300 feet front which the Premier Grand Piano Company, Otto Dall, president, owns on the south side of Twenty-third Street between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues. Derschuch & Co. acted as brokers in the deal, the railroad interests being represented by Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., brokers.

On the upper east side Edward Pechan bought the six-story apartment house at 439 East Seventy-fourth Street, on a lot 25 by 100 feet. The property was held at $45,000 and was sold through A. Karhan & Son, brokers.

Max Jackel bought the five-story tenement house at 428 East Eighty-third Street, near York Avenue, from Fredericka Metz. The house is on a lot 25 by 102 feet.

A client of Morris A. Schoenfeld, attorney, purchased from the New York Edison Company the five-story apartment house at 203 West Eighty-fourth Street. The house is on a lot 27 by 102 feet, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue.

Christian J. Moller sold to a client of Talley & Lamb, attorneys, 244 West Fifty-sixth Street, adjoining the southeast corner of Eighth Avenue, a five-story building on a lot 20 by 100 feet.

The recently formed 8 Jones Street Realty Company, represented by Egan & O'Reilly, acquired from Lucy C. Driscoll the five-story building at 8 Jones Street, 25 by 100 feet.

Apartments in buildings in the better residential sections of Manhattan are renting rapidly, according to announcements of renting agents, who reported another batch of leases yesterday in the Fifth and Park Avenue areas.

Thomas M. Schumacher, chairman of the executive committee of the Western Pacific Railroad Company, has bought an apartment of twelve rooms and five baths comprising the ninth floor of the 100 per cent cooperative house at 2 East Eighty-eighth Street, south corner of Fifth Avenue, being erected for occupancy next Summer by Bing & Bing, Inc., from plans by Pleasants Pennington and Albert W. Lewis. Douglas L. Elliman & Co. were the brokers.

REALTY FINANCING.

New Central Park West Apartment Mortgaged for $5,000,000.

The Manhattan Square Bernsford Corporation, Henry Pollack, president, has obtained a $5,000,000 first-mortgage loan on the new twenty-story apartment house occupying the Central Park West block front from Eighty-first to Eighty-second Street. The structure contains 1,359 rooms, exclusive of baths. Hughes & Hammond and Kenneth Stawson Hobbs, Inc., were the brokers.

A sixteen-story apartment house to be erected at 241-51 East Seventy-second Street has been financed by an $800,000 loan to E. M. Krulewitch, who acquired the 100-foot site recently. The structure, designed by Gronenberg & Leuchtag, will have small suites similar to those in the house recently completed by Mr. Krulewitch at 315 on the same street. The R. F. Brooks Company, Inc., arranged the loan.

APARTMENT LEASES.

Miss E. Whitlock and Elinor T. Jones, in 400 East Forty-ninth Street, now being erected; Mrs. J. C. Dumont, in 1,125 Fifth Avenue, now under construction; F. H. Baker, in 444 East Fifty-second Street, from Brett & Wycoff; Dr. Ezra Burth Sanford, in 146 East 93d Street, from Hamilton, Lesh & Co.; Pease & Elliman, brokers.

Charles A. Peabody, American representative of William Waldorf Astor Estate and former president of Mutual Life Insurance Company, floor in 535 Park Avenue; Eugene S. Taliaferro, Thomas R. Dew and Barrett C. Nichols, in the Buchanan, 155 East Forty-fourth Street; George Underwood, 340 East Louise Vigo; and Miss Virginia White, in building recently completed at 301 East Thirty-eighth Street; Brown, Wheelock: Harworthy of receiving an interest in the business and must have a record of successful transactions. Write, stating qualifications.

ENGINEERING AWARDS DROP.

Contracts in Metropolitan Area Show Decline During Week.

Building and engineering contracts awarded in the metropolitan area of New York during the six days comprising the business week of Aug. 10 to 16 totaled $15,019,300, which was 28 per cent less than the aggregate for the first eight business days of August and 40 per cent less than the figure for the corresponding week last year, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation.

Last week's total included $6,961,300, or 47 per cent of the total, for residential buildings; $3,872,400, or 22 per cent, for public works and utilities; $1,671,000, or 11 per cent, for commercial buildings, and $1,085,900, or 7 per cent, for social and recreational buildings.

During the period from Jan. 1 through Aug 16, 1929, there was $801,535,700 worth of building and engineering work contracted for in the area as compared with $972,738,500, the amount for the corresponding period of last year. The daily average of contracts awarded for the part of 1929 ended with Aug. 16 was $4,173,600, as compared with $5,040,100, the daily average for the corresponding period last year.

Projects reported during the week of Aug. 10 through Aug. 16 as being in the contemplated stage amounted to $102,270,700. This is more than three times as great as the figure for the first eight business days of August, and more than twice as great as that for the corresponding week of last year. There was $90,607,100 worth of industrial projects reported as contemplated, making the exceptionally high figure.

MORSE ESTATE AUCTIONED.

Courtland Palmer Gets Long Island Home—New Jersey Sale.

Grey Gables, a twenty-acre estate at Water Mill, in the Southampton area of Long Island, was auctioned last Saturday for Edward P. Morse, shipbuilder, to Courtland Palmer of Manhattan. Mr. Palmer acquired the property for his own account, according to Joseph P. Day, the auctioneer. The selling price was $100,000. A house with nine master bedrooms and eight baths is on the property, which fronts on Mecox Bay, Montauk Highway and Halsey Lane.

At the same time Mr. Day's organization auctioned seventy-five lots in "Floyd's Self-Master Village" at Union, N. J. for close to $150,000. A plot at Union Avenue and Self-Master Parkway was purchased by Charles Pfeifer of Newark for $61,250. The opposite corner brought $30,000. Interior lots on Self-Master Parkway sold for $900 each. A plot of two and a half lots on Morris Avenue brought $12,650. Both corners of Chestnut Street and Globe Avenue went for $5,850 each, with adjoining plots on Chestnut Street going for $3,600 each. The buyers included M. Schwartz, Abraham Einstein, Alfred Lino and Mary McKay of Newark; Matilda Meisle and Edward C. Smith of Union, N. J.; Jack Bardy of Springfield, N. J., and Anton J. Roessner of Bloomfield, N. J.

Loan Association Leases in Bronx.

The Railroad Cooperative Building and Loan Association has leased for its first branch office the first floor and basement, about 7,000 square f.et, in the building under construction at 316 East Kingsbridge Road, adjoining the northwest corner of Fordham Road. The lease is for forty-two years, at a total rental of about $1,000,000, according to the Herman A. Acker Corporation, the broker. The association expects to occupy about Oct. 1.

MEN.

The best money-making proposition HARMON ever has offered is about to be started in WESTCHESTER—bigger, better, easier commissions than in the super-box-breaking Bronx Hills campaign of 1928, when we paid nearly $150,000 to salesmen in 30 days.

GET ABOARD OUR SALES-WAGON.

We'll give you all the ACTION you will want during the next few months.

HARMON selects only 100 per cent sure-fire properties to sell—properties that mean active sales and speedy commissions to salesmen. We have never had a failure.

But this one—this is the CREAM OF THEM ALL. It took over a year for us to find it. We turned down dozens of offerings that probably would have looked good to the average concern. We wanted the EXTRAORDINARY property—and we have it. Close in; fronting directly on one of Westchester's beautiful parkways.

Right now we are putting in concrete streets and other improvements. Water, gas and electricity are there now. Our building program is going ahead rapidly. We have real estate that PEOPLE WILL WANT!

Now, Mr. GOOD SALESMAN, come and help us sell it quickly. Come and get YOUR share of the big commissions that will be paid. Here is the best proposition for you since we put Bronx Hills across last year with a bang!

If you are an experienced lot salesman this should be the easiest and most profitable job you ever tackled. If you have a car of your own, you ought to clean up big on this remarkable property.

Come to our office THIS MORNING and we'll tell you about it. If you are as good as you think you are we'll give you a bigger and better chance to make money than you can find anywhere else.

CUNARD IN NEW BID FOR HAVANA TRADE

Transatlantic Liner Carmania Added to Winter Service—Will Stop at Nassau, Too.

CHALLENGE TO BE MET

But Officials of Ward and Munson Lines Refuse to Discuss Rivalry.

The Cunard Line announced yesterday that the company would resume its Winter passenger service to Havana next December with two transatlantic liners. Last season it transferred the Caronia to the Havana service, and this year it will add the Carmania, intensifying its competition for the southern passenger trade.

Last year considerable rivalry resulted from the Cunard Line's entrance into a service which for many years had been maintained exclusively by the Ward Line. As a result of the Caronia's appearance in this service, the Ward Line, unable to meet the competition afforded by the larger steamer, made an arrangement with the United States Shipping Board to increase its services.

The liner President Roosevelt was immediately transferred from the Atlantic run and placed in competition with the Caronia. She was operated as a Ward Line steamer and, being of similar class to the Caronia, made the challenge a real one. During the Winter the two ships raced from New York to the Cuban port in a bid for patronage.

This year, however, the Ward Line cannot turn to the Shipping Board for help, as the Roosevelt, along with the rest of the fleet, has been sold and turned over to the new operators, the United States Lines, Inc.

The Ward Line, nevertheless, will have an ally in the Munson Line, embroiled in the friendly struggle by expansion of the Cunard service to the port of Nassau. As the service last year proved so successful financially, despite the competition of the President Roosevelt, the Cunard Line decided to add not only another ship but another port of call.

So, to complicate the bidding for patronage, the liner Carmania, a transatlantic Cunarder, also will be withdrawn from the Atlantic and run with the Caronia during the Winter until the end of the season in the middle of March.

The two ships will add the port of Nassau, the Bahamas, to their itineraries, calling at that popular southern port before and after touching at Havana. This will afford a worthy inducement to vacationists who may make the journey down on one ship, stop over at Nassau for a few days, and pick up the next Cunard liner the following week.

This presents a serious problem to the Munson and Ward lines, although in shipping circles it is generally conceded that there is enough custom in these runs for the three shipping companies.

Both the Ward Line and Munson officials declined yesterday to comment on the situation, and neither would predict just how the competition would be met. There is no question that it will be met in some way, and it was rumored yesterday that the Munson Line may take one of her larger ships from the South American service and place it in the Nassau run for the season.

It was pointed out yesterday that there is plenty of time to rearrange schedules. The Cunard service begins Dec. 28, with the sailing of the Caronia.

As a further move to meet the Cunard competition last year, the Ward Line inaugurated a substantial passenger rate reduction to Havana, and there is a possibility that this may be done again.

GOVERNOR CLINTON OPENS.

Several Thousand Persons Inspect 31-Story Hotel.

The Governor Clinton, 1,200-room hotel at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-first Street, was opened yesterday. Several thousand persons inspected the new thirty-one story building. E. G. Kill, manager, presided at a buffet luncheon.

The hotel, it was announced, has been designed especially to accommodate "the traveling public and the mercantile centre of which it is a part." Additional land has been purchased and plans already have been drawn for an 800-room addition, with frontage on Thirtieth Street, to be erected shortly. Many of the sample rooms are in futuristic design for the display of modernistic goods. The decorations of the large "governor's room" are in Colonial Adam style. From the twentieth to the thirtieth floors suites have been built opening on terraces. An underground passage is provided to the Pennsylvania Station.

The hotel was named for George Clinton, first Governor of New York State and Vice President of the United States from 1805 to 1812, the year of his death. It was built by the Thompson-Starrett Company for Maurice Cantor and Herman Gabbe from plans by Murgatroy & Ogden. It was opened a year and a day from the date on which construction work was started.

HIGH HAT CLUB WINS.

Court Rules Evidence of Nuisance Must Cover Several Visits.

Evidence offered by a detective attached to Inspector Patrick McCormick's staff that the windows and doors of the High Hat Club at 150 West Fifty-sixth Street were barred and locked while thirty couples frolicked inside, was insufficient to sustain the charge against John Armstrong, 30 years old, of maintaining a public nuisance when he appeared before Magistrate Brodsky in West Side Court yesterday.

Detective Harry Felix testified that he bought liquor there several times and that on one occasion a girl entertained him, running his check up to $30. When the girl's back was turned, he said, he soaked his liquor in a sponge and squeezed it into a bottle instead of drinking it.

Felix said that information regarding the raid Aug. 16 must have leaked out in advance because the raiding party found only a small quantity of liquor.

Magistrate Brodsky said proof of the maintenance of a nuisance could only be shown when the evidence covered several occasions.

Felix then asked for adjournment until Aug. 26 of a similar charge against Albert Brown of the Red Slipper Club at 114 West Forty-eighth Street. Brown's bail was set at $500.

MORE CUSTOMS MEN HERE.

60 Inspectors to Be Transferred to Handle Peak Travel.

Additional customs inspectors will be transferred to the Port of New York from Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia during the peak of the return travel traffic from Europe, it was announced yesterday by Frank X. A. Eble, who recently was appointed executive head of the United States Customs Service.

Mr. Eble said that from fifty to sixty trained and experienced customs inspectors are available in the three cities who can be brought here and pressed into the New York service until Oct. 25, when the shipping travel traffic begins to wane. According to Henry C. Stuart, assistant collector of the port, there are approximately 550 customs inspectors in this port but not all of them are always available for baggage inspection.

Today will be one of the heavy days of the season for the Port of New York, with the arrival of the North German Lloyd liner Bremen, the White Star liner Majestic, and the French liner Ile de France, together with a number of smaller ships which altogether will land about 7,000 passengers. Only 200 customs inspectors are available to inspect their baggage. If all the ships docked simultaneously, every inspector would have to take care of the baggage of thirty-five passengers. The vessels, however, dock at intervals of three to four hours.

SANITATION BILL SIGNED.

Walker Acts to Get Referendum to Voters in November.

The bill to create a sanitation commission which will be submitted on a referendum in the Fall was signed last night by Mayor Walker at City Hall after it had been before him a week without any objections being expressed.

The Board of Elections asked the Mayor to sign the bill at once so that 32,000 voting machines could be adjusted for the referendum before election. The proposed commission would give supervision of sewage and garbage disposal and street cleaning to one department head. The bill limits the powers of the Borough Presidents in Queens and Richmond, who now supervise street cleaning in those boroughs. Controller Charles W. Berry has declined to serve as head of the proposed commission, and as yet there is no candidate for the position in sight.

DEPORTEE AT SEA GETS WORD HE CAN RETURN

Canada Cancels Expulsion Order Against Russian Refugee by Wireless.

Abraham Rabinovitch, 31-year-old Russian, sailed Thursday night aboard the France as a deportee from Canada.

Yesterday he learned by wireless that he may return to Canada.

The French Line received a message from the Immigration Department of Canada at Ottawa, advising that the Canadian immigration service had rescinded its deportation order.

If he returns, however, he must do so at his own expense. He said that $140 was owed him from his last work, done on the Detroit-Windsor bridge, when he was seized by immigration authorities. He left almost penniless and his passage back will be a minimum of $80. He declared before he left, however, that he would return, no matter what the cost. He said he faces imprisonment if he returns to Russia.

Rabinovitch, who is versed in Russian, French and English, insisted he entered Canada legally.

He disclosed that in making an application to attend the University of Michigan he used the family name of Rabinovitch, which he had dropped in leaving South Russia, to adopt the name of Mosniam. To have used the family name, he declared, would probably have prevented his getting out of Russia. He said he had made the same disclosure to the Canadian immigration authorities, and that the deportation order followed.

Open a Block of City Hall Place.

Another step in the city's plan to develop a Civic Centre north of the City Hall was taken yesterday when one block of City Hall Place extending from Pearl to Duane Streets was opened to traffic. The street forms the east boundary of the plot the city has acquired in the vicinity of the new county court house.

MISS PERKINS CALLS CITY WAGE HEARINGS

Will Begin Inquiry Tomorrow Into Carpenters' Charges of Break-Down of Law.

PROMISES THOROUGH STUDY

Constitutionality of "Prevailing Rate" Act May Be Taken Up in Testimony on Subway Jobs.

State Industrial Commissioner Frances Perkins announced yesterday that she would hold public hearings here; beginning tomorrow, on the complaint of officials of the New York District Council of the Carpenters' Union that contractors on the city's new subway system are violating the law requiring them to pay workmen the prevailing rate of wages.

Commissioner Perkins's announcement, contained in a telegram from Newcastle, Me., asserted that she recognized the jurisdiction of Deputy Controller Prial, before whom two hearings have already been held, but intended nevertheless to make a thorough investigation of the charges made by Charles A. Judge, president of the Carpenters' Union, and former Assemblyman F. L. Hackenburg, its counsel.

In a complaint filed with the Department of Labor two weeks ago Mr. Judge charged that a dozen contractors engaged in subway work paid carpenters only about half the prevailing rate of $1.50 an hour upon which the city figured in letting its contracts. Mr. Hackenburg, in applying for a department investigation, asserted that the labor laws pertaining to wage scales had broken down completely.

James A. Corcoran, acting head of the State Labor Department, declined to act unless specific evidence was placed before him, and referred the complainants to the City Controller's office, which, he declared, had jurisdiction under the law. Two hearings were held, dealing with specific cases, and on Aug. 15 further hearing was postponed until Sept. 7.

Commissioner Perkins's hearings, which are to be held at departmental headquarters at 124 East Twenty-eighth Street, may involve the constitutionality of the "prevailing rate" law. At the second hearing before Mr. Prial it was intimated by John F. Collins, attorney for a group of subway contractors, that employers in general were considering a test of the constitutionality of the statute, which has been in force for years.

Among those who attended the hearing before Mr. Prial on Aug. 15 was A. A. Tausky, Deputy Attorney General in charge of labor matters. It was said here last night that Commissioner Perkins's decision to hold public hearings was based upon reports sent to her by Mr. Corcoran after reviewing evidence brought out before Mr. Prial.

The contractors named in the original complaint to the Labor Department were:

DOWNPOUR COOLS CITY.

.73 Inch of Rain Falls in the Metropolitan Area.

Caught in the fold of a long, low pressure trough which extended from the West Gulf of the St. Lawrence to Norfolk, Va., the New York metropolitan area was a catch-all early yesterday morning for most of the rain that fell throughout the entire country. During the first eight hours of the day .73 inch of rain fell in short, heavy downpours, to the accompaniment of a sweeping northeast wind of high velocity and a brilliant electrical display.

Gathering in intensity from the time that it broke at 2 A. M. the precipitation reached its height shortly after 4 A. M. and ceased falling in a cloudy dawn.

The storm broke the incipient heat wave indicated on Sunday, the temperature reaching a high point of only 75 degrees yesterday afternoon. It extinguished a small forest fire which had been burning in Morris County, N. J.

DESCRIBE JEWEL THIEVES.

Maid and Child Give Clue in Weber Robbery in Flushing.

A description furnished by an 8-year-old girl and a maid in the home of Richard T. Weber in Malba Drive, Flushing, Queens, furnished yesterday the only clue on which police have to work in their hunt for the four armed and masked men who robbed Weber and his wife of about $30,000 worth of jewels and $400 in cash Sunday night.

The robbers were admitted to the Weber home by the maid, Wella Breatner, and Rita Weber, 8. After forcing Mrs. Weber to open the safe containing most of the loot, the robbers escaped in an olive-green sedan. The license number of the machine was not obtained.

Agents of the company that insured the gems declared that the loss might amount to only $15,000 as a result of finding several pieces of jewelry which at first were thought to have been included in the loot.

INCOME TAX REFUNDS FOR 5 NEW YORK MEN

Allowances Announced by Internal Revenue Bureau Amount to a Total of $361,024.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP).—An abatement of $103,984 to Paul Von Niendorff of New York for overassessment of income taxes in 1923, 1924 and 1925 was announced today by the Internal Revenue Bureau. The overassessments were due to a decrease in the amount of taxable gain realized from the sale of real estate, to a shift of income arising out of the sale of securities in which sales in a preceding year were reported, and to the elimination of penalties and interest on additional tax assessed.

A refund of $60,864 to Frederick W. Lincoln of New York City for overpayment of income tax in 1918 and 1919 also was announced. The overpayments represented overassessments heretofore allowed for the respective years and credited against an outstanding assessment of tax for another year after the expiration of the statutory period of limitations.

John R. Bradlee of New York City received a refund of $60,887 for overpayments of income tax in 1918 and 1919 for the same reasons.

Arthur H. Lamborn of New York City received an abatement of $83,713 for overassessment of income taxes in 1918. This abatement was due to a decision of the United States Board of Tax Appeals in Lamborn's favor.

J. A. H. Hopkins of New York City received an abatement of $51,576 for overassessment of income tax in 1917 and 1918. The adjustments were made in accordance with a stipulation approved by the United States Board of Tax Appeals.

WIRES DENIAL HE IS DEAD.

Former Bay Shore Resident Reads in Detroit of His Funeral.

Special to The New York Times.

BAY SHORE, L. I., Aug. 19.—When Charles Michaels of Detroit, a former resident of this village, read in a newspaper yesterday that he had been buried, with full military honors as befits a dead World War veteran, in Bay Shore on July 31, he telegraphed his two sisters here that the report of his death had, as Mark Twain once said, been greatly "exaggerated." The man buried here, it now appears, was a friend of Michaels who bore some of the latter's papers on his person when he fell dead in Detroit in July.

Michaels, according to the story pieced together today by his sisters, Miss Helen Michaels and Mrs. Beecher La France, both of 10 Centre Street, suffered a fractured leg last month in Detroit and dispatched a friend with his personal papers to apprise his landlady that he was at a hospital. On his way to the rooming house the messenger fell dead and the Detroit police, thinking him to be Michaels, sent the body to Bay Shore.

The funeral, conducted by the American Legion, followed in Oakwood Cemetery, with Michaels' relatives and friends as mourners.

The body of the other man, whose name is not known here, will be exhumed and sent back to Detroit.

Sons of Italy in Jersey Elect.

Special to The N. to York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 19.—Givovanni Delee, Bayone attorney, was elected Grand Venerable of the Order of Sons of Italy of New Jersey today at the convention of the order now in session at the Atlantic City Auditorium. The convention will close tomorrow. Other officers elected were: Emidio Civico, Hoboken, Assistant Grand Venerable; Ruggiero Fragall, Cliffside, Grand Lecturer; Giovanni Ciammichella, Carlsbad, Grand Recording Secretary; Antonio M. Jannicelli, Newark, Grand Financial Secretary; Michele Lecariello, Newark, Grand Treasurer.

Questions and Answers...about the famous

OLD GOLD CONCEALED NAME CIGARETTE TEST

Ask us another if we haven't answered here every question ever asked about it

There are 48 states in the Union, but there's a touch of Missouri in each and every one. A bit of the good old "show me" spirit. Everywhere there are charter members of the Skeptic Society; and their slogan is "prove it."

And prove it we will . . . answer cheerfully, and finally, every question ever brought up about the care and fairness used in making the Concealed Name Cigarette Test.

When a cigarette scores 112 victories out of 116 public tests, with more than 100,000 people participating . . . the public is entitled to know just how the tests have been conducted.

So . . . here are the questions most frequently heard . . . and the answers, never published heretofore. We think we've covered every one. If not, well, ask us another . . . or as many more as you can think of.

Question: Does OLD GOLD publish the score of every public test taken?

Answer: Yes . . . win, lose or draw!

Question: Is OLD GOLD always the same number?

Answer: No. In the actual tests there are no numbers on the cigarette masks. The participant smokes the four leading brands in any order he chooses. He, himself, then tears off the paper masks and finds out for himself which cigarette he has chosen as best.

Question: Is the Concealed Name Test a "guessing contest" . . . does the smoker attempt to guess brand names?

Answer: Decidedly not! The smoker states only which cigarette tastes best to him, and does not try to guess the name of the brand.

Question: Who conducts these tests?

Answer: Never the makers of OLD GOLDS, or their agents. The tests are conducted either by certified public accountants or officials of the organization or institution under whose auspices the tests are given. At Yale and Harvard, for example, the officials of the student newspapers presided. On the Ile de France, the maître d'hotel. On Broadway, the certified public accountants, Wiegner, Rockey & Co.

Question: Are all competing brands equally fresh and in precisely the same condition?

Answer: All four brands are purchased before each test at the same time in the same store out of regular retail stock, just as the public buys them . . . and the clerk who sells them certifies the purchase.

Question: Does the official conducting the test know which cigarette is which while the smoker is making the test?

Answer: No! Emphatically no! The cigarettes are arranged in sets of four . . . one each of the four leading brands. Then they are masked . . . their names completely concealed. When the official hands out these masked cigarettes it is obviously impossible for him, or anyone, to know one from another.

Question: Can a smoker tell by a few puffs which cigarette his taste likes best?

Answer: Nature has given us keen senses of taste and smell. Need you live with a rose to recognize its fragrance? Need you eat all of an egg to know that it is fresh?

Question: How does OLD GOLD dare make these tests? How does it dare lay itself open to merciless comparison with old established brands of fine cigarettes?

Answer: That's how OLD GOLD was born. For three years P. Lorillard Co., America's oldest manufacturers of tobacco, experimented. Tried blend after blend after blend. Finally, using only the proven leaves of the tobacco plant, they achieved a vastly smoother and better cigarette. Thousands of smokers made tests and compared this new cigarette at that time with the widest-selling brands. Brand names did not appear. Merit and taste alone decided. After this blend won, overwhelmingly, time after time, it was named OLD GOLD, and presented to you for the pleasure of your palate and the welfare of your throat... WITH NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD!

• • • • • • •

WHY not make this test yourself in your own home? We'll be happy to send you a set of the brand name masks and complete instructions. We invite you and your friends to check up the fairness and impartiality of the Concealed Name Test . . . and to check your taste up too, and see which cigarette you really do like best. Write to P. Lorillard Company, 119 West 40th Street, New York City.
